Testimony Ends In Fired Housing Director's State Appeal

By SUSAN SCHNECK

A former Winchester Housing Authority (WHA) board member testified before a state hearings officer in Boston last week that the WHA fired its administrative assistant, Clara Hewis, because of a personality conflict between her and WHA Chairman Mary Murphy.

During the second and final trial day of Hewis's appeal of her dismissal last Thursday, former WHA member Charles Doucette of Upland rd. testified that Hewis performed her job admirably during the seven years they both served the WHA. Doucette, a former selectman, Finance Committee and Town Meeting member, served as the WHA secretary for 12 years before he left that post in 1981.

By a 4-1 vote, the WHA fired Hewis from her $11,000 a year part-time job on May 10, claiming she violated state regulations in an attempt to obtain public housing for her mother and that she did not perform her job adequately.

Hewis ran the one-person WHA office operation for eight years before she was fired. The WHA is a state-funded agency which operates 112 units of subsidized housing in Winchester for low-income elderly people.

Hewis and her attorney Roger Witkin appealed her dismissal to the state Civil Service Commission to demand reinstatement.

The major part of the testimony, including that of Murphy, was heard Aug. 18. After the second day of testimony on Aug. 26, State Hearings Officer Robert Clewell will review the case and make a recommendation to a five-member Civil Service Commission board. Clewell estimated that the

Feds' Decision Speeds Swanton Street Bridge Replacement

By DAVE LEECO

The future of the Swanton st. bridge won't be suspended in air much longer.

Abandonment proceedings for the Boston and Maine Railroad line under the bridge had been moving with the speed of a freight train.

According to Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh, the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) approved abandonment of the freight line Aug. 13.That leaves only a federal district court hearing and approval by the MBTA and the federal Urban Mass Transportaton Administration before the line can be abandoned.

And that abandonment will enable Winchester to do without the Swanton st. bridge altogether. Plans are already being drafted to build an embankment across the rail line and under Swanton st., Saltmarsh told the Board of Selectmen Monday night.

Things are moving along so quickly, Salthmrash said, the embankment and the new section of Swanton st. should be completed by next spring — not too much longer than the reconstruction of the bridge would have taken.

And by building a road instead of a bridge, noted Saltmarsh, the state would save "at least $300,000" and "possibly a half-million."

Saltmarsh halted the reconstruction of the bridge June 10, after construction workers from the Sutton Corp. had been on the job for only a month.

Saltmarsh said that once he discovered the B & M was considering abandoning the railroad, it made no sense to continue the reconstruction.

And, Saltmarsh added, he made the decision to stop the reconstruction despite the fact that he had worked for seven years, since coming to the House of Representatives in 1975, to get the money

Tax Problems

Abatement Process For '82 Assessments Threatened By '83 Tax Bill Deadline

By DAVE LEECO

Some taxpayers may get their fall fiscal 1983 tax bills before the assessors are finished reviewing their spring 1982 abatement applications.

The Board of Assessors may have to forget about working on abatement applications for a while just to get this fall's tax bills out.

Unless they get those bills out on time, the town will once again be forced to borrow money to pay its bills. Even a few day's delay could end up costing the town money, according to Comptroller Al Faggiano.

Assessor Chairman Werner Carlson told the Board of Selectmen Monday night, "I think we can meet the Oct. 1 deadline" for getting the tax bills out.

But to meet that deadline, he said, the assessors will have to work three or four nights a week, "working on new values for new houses or homes with additions."

The problem, Carlson continued, is that at the same time they must work on those new values, the assessors must also finish up their review of abatement applications for the last tax bills.

Because of the threat of having to borrow more money to cover late tax bills, Carlson said he would halt work on abatements and concentrate on preparing the coming tax bills.

Carlson listened to Faggiano explain that the town would have to borrow money sometime in early October if tax bills didn't go out Oct. 1.

"In the past, when tax bills have gone out on time, we usually get $400,000 in September, about 10 percent of the levy, or $800,000, the first week after the bills go out, and another $800,000 the second week," explained Faggiano.

"That brings in enough money to pay the bills," said Faggiano. "But the first of October is a very tight period."

After hearing that, Carlson said he would drop work on the abatement requests.

"This changes my priorities," said Carlson. "I would want us slowing down on abatements and pushing on getting the tax bills out."

But Assessor George Andersen argued that sending out tax bills before finishing abatements would confuse and anger taxpayers.

Andersen pointed out that the assessors had 90 days after the spring tax bills were due on Aug. 16 to complete abatement reviews. That means, he said, that some abatement requests might be waiting until Nov. 16.

Conceivably, he continued, a taxpayer might have to pay a fall 1983 tax bill based on his 1982 assessment. And that assessment might change because of an abatement application, he said.

"Someone who hasn't heard from us on their 1982 abatement and gets a 1983 tax bill with the same assessment as in 1982 will say he didn't get the abatement," said Andersen.

"He'll be obligated to pay that full bill, and then if we abate the 1982 bill, we'll have to go back and abate the '83 bill,"

More Than 260 Tax Delinquents Get Demand Notices, Owe Town $648,000

By SUSAN SCHNECK

A very expensive time bomb is steadily ticking away for the unpaid tax bills of an estimated 266 procrastinating residents.

To date, $648,823.08 worth of taxes have not been paid, according to Town Treasurer Carol Thomas That debt translates into about 266 bills since the average tax bill in town is $2,442.24. (That figure was determined on the basis of the average assessment of $106,000 and the $23.04 tax rate).

The deadline for payment of the $8.4 million owed to the town was Aug. 16. Taxpayers who failed to meet that deadline are charged 14 percent interest for every day their bills are late. And interest calculations start from July 16, the day bills were mailed.

If a delinquent taxpayer decided to make amends today and pay a $2,442.24 tax bill at Town Hall, that person would be hit with a fine of $43.96, increasing the bill to $2,486.20. Early this week, demand bills were mailed out to taxpayers who still owe the town money. Continued failure to pay those bills will not result in legal action against the debtors until Oct. 1, 1984.

At that time, the town will place a lien on property with unpaid bills.

"It (tax liens) doesn't make them pay their bills, but if they want to sell their house, they would have to clear up the lien first," explained Treasurer Thomas. "The town has to put the lien on the property within three years or it loses the option to do so."

Thomas noted that the town has placed "many" liens on property in the past for failing to pay tax bills.

"When that happens, they not only have to pay their tax bills, they have additional fees, such as court costs, and the interest increases to 16 percent after title," she added.

Contaminated Amberwood Fill Is Still On Site

STILL THERE — Chemically-contaminated fill continues to sit on Amberwood dr. while developer Felix Pittorino searches for a landfill which will take the gray clay. Pittorino, noting that publicity has made towns wary of accepting the fill, requested an extention of the Board of Health's Aug. 27 deadline for removing the fill last week. The board granted the extention until Sept. 7, but warned the fill must be out by the beginning of school. (Staff photo by Noreen Murphy)

By DAVE LEECO

Developer Felix J. Pittorino is racing against time to find somewhere to put the chemically-contaminated fill banned from his two Amberwood dr. building lots.

Urging him on in the race is the Board of Health, which banned the fill from Amberwood in July, and has maintained since then that the fill must be out before school begins.

To date, Pittorino is losing the race. He has been unsuccessful in finding a landfill operator who will take the gray clay from the Amberwood lots.

But according to Pittorino's lawyer, Charles Burgess of Waltham, his client may find a site for the fill by the end of the week.

Difficulties in finding a landfill site for the fill forced Pittorino to request last week that the Board of Health extend its Aug. 27 deadline for removing the fill.

On Aug. 25, Pittorino requested an extension after the city of Woburn refused to allow the developer to dump the clay in its landfill.

Pittorino blamed press coverage of the events on Amberwood dr. for frightening off towns from taking the fill which came from the MBTA Alewife transit station construction in Cambridge.

"Towns who had previously been using this material in their sanitary landfills have now refused to get involved because of the circumstances," Pittorino wrote to the board.

Press coverage began in May, after Amberwood dr. neighbors discovered that the MBTA tunnel which the fill came from was dug underneath a W.R. Grace chemical dump.

Subsequent tests by the Board of Health showed the clay contained 16 chemicals, many of them cancer-causing, as well as several metals.

Engineers from the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering and the federal Environmental Protection Agency told Board of Health members that although the chemicals were present in the fill in very small quantities, they could pose a health problem.

After listening to the testimony of the engineers, the Board of Health ordered the fill removed from Amberwood.

In his Aug. 25 letter, Pittorino requested the deadline for removing the fill be extended to Sept. 10.

The Board of Health refused, as school classes begin Sept. 8. Board members and neighborhood residents have stated that they want the fill out before school begins, as the Vinson-Owen School is less than a mile away from Amberwood by road, and approximately 1,200 feet away in a straight line.

"Due to our strong desire to have the contaminated fill removed before the start of school, the extension has been granted to Sept. 7," Health Director Steven Weinstein wrote Pittorino.

According to Pittorino's lawyer, Burgess, Pittorino is negotiating "with two or three locations to take the fill."

"But I have not heard if he has any definite answer," added Burgess.

Burgess reiterated Pittorino's claim that publicity over the Amberwood fill made it difficult to get rid of the clay.

"Because of the reaction to the publicity, all I'm going to tell you when he finds a location is that he has a place," said Burgess.

"The best place for it now is in Winchester itself," in one of the quarries," said Burgess. "But people wouldn't stand for that.

"Because of the publicity, the city of Woburn won't take it (the fill) and a couple of other towns won't take it," continued Burgess.

If Pittorino can't find a site for the fill, Burgess said, "we'll go in court and get an order that the fill stays right where it is. Then, we'll get the Board of Health to accept a safe way of keeping it there."

While he searches for a place to bring the fill, Pittorino has his crews bringing in "clean" fill to the two Amberwood sites.

Those actions alarmed the Board of Health. Weinstein noted in his reply to Pittorino that some of the contaminated fill was being covered up by the "clean" fill, making the removal of the chemically-contaminated fill more difficult.

But Weinstein said that much of the clean fill is being brought in by Pittorino to make the area strong enough to support heavy equipment.

"It's a judgment call," said Weinstein. "He (Pittorino) maintains he's going to take all the material out, and the way he takes it out is up to him."

Weinstein noted the town has a ready check to see if all the contaminated fill brought to Amberwood is removed.

"We know apprximately how much fill came in," said Weinstein. "And if he brings it to a waste disposal site, they have a manifest listing how much is brought to the site. We can just compare the two numbers."

But right now, Weinstein, the Board of Health, Pittorino and the Amberwood neighbors are only worrying about one number — the six days before school begins.

QUILTER — Lexington Arts and Crafts Society is pleased to announce that Maureen Cook of Forest st., a member of the Quilters Connection will be teaching traditional Quilting For Beginners in their fall program. Cook's home was in the mid-west where she was one of the founding members of the Illinois Quilters Inc. Her quilts have hung in juried shows in that area, where she also instructed adult classes. Students will learn the basic techniques of quilting ad at the conclusion should have a largely completed quilt top.

Players Seek Cast For Shaw's 'Arms'

The Winchester Players are seeking actors for their fall production of George Bernard Shaw's "Arms And The Man." Auditions will be held Thursday, Sept. 9, and Sunday, Sept. 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Metcalf Hall at the Winchester Unitarian Church, 478 Main st.

"Arms And The Man" was the first of George Bernard Shaw's "pleasant" plays and his first commercial success. Shaw called his play an "anti-romantic comedy" but for today's audience the play will appear as a true romance.

Actors are asked to read the play before try-outs and to consider accepting any part. The roles are all of equal importance and all require skillfull acting. The following parts are available:

Captain Bluntschli — 30s. A swiss mercenary artillery officer. While he has a prosaic, factual approach to life of a professional soldier, he is the most romantic of all the characters in the play.

Major Paul Petkoff — 50s. The major holds the highest rank of any Bulgarian in the Bulgarian army, but the army is officered by Russians. A cheerful, bumbling man who is a leader in Bulgarian society only by accident of birth and wealth.

Major Sergius Saranoff — Early 30s. A handsome, dashing, Byronic hero, given to posery. He learns how to look at himself and see through his image.

Raina Petkoff — 23, but acts as a romantic school girl, with her head full of fairy princes and dashing cavalry officers. Like Sergius, she knows she is posing and ends up marrying her truly romantic chocolate cream soldier.

Catherine Petkoff — over 40. A striking woman who should preferably dye her hair jet black. By force of personality and without a trace of unpleasantness, she runs her house, her husband, her town, the Bulgarian army and anthing or anyone else that corsses her path.

Louka — The Petkoff's servant girl. A determined, bright young lady who marries her hero.

Nicola — The Petkoff's serving man. The quintessential servant and shop keeper. He is the most intelligent character in the play and this should show.

Officer — Appears for one page only in act I. Requires a military bearing and a commanding speaking voice. We will minimize rehearsal time.

"Arms And The Man" is a period costume play, set in the late 19th century. Rehearsal schedule is to be announced. First rehearsal will be Sept. 16. Performances are Nov. 5, 6, 12 and 13 in Metcalf Hall. Dot Roemer, Wendell st., has extra scripts. Best time to call her is 8 a.m.

Pupil And Teacher Exhibit At Winchester Hospital Shop

Larry MacLeod was diagnosed as an autistic child when he was 3 years old. Two years ago at age 24, Larry began taking art lessons at the studio of Valia Downes, local art teacher and art therapist.

His paintings can be seen at the Winchester Hospital Coffee Shop until Sept. 11.

Downes describes Larry as a born colorist, with great enthusiasm for his work. This use of art expressions is one of sublimation and of a creative outlet. He loves symphonic music and is a friend of the Boston Symphony and a great fan of symphony orchestras and conductors. These interests are reflected in his paintings. When he isn't painting MacLeod works at the Community Work Shops in Boston.

From Sept. 11 to the end of the month, paintings by the teacher Valia Downes will be displayed. Downes who has worked as a registered art therapist for 3 years at the Glennside Psychiatric Hospital in Jamaica Plain, is best known as a painter and print maker. She had exhibited nationwide, and received many awards for her work. She is included in the permanent collection at the DeCordova Museum.

These exhibits are sponsored by the Winton Club. Paintings can be purchased at the Winton Gift Shop at the hospital.

Eleven Laid-Off Teachers Rehired

But Four Teachers Won't Be Going Back To School This Fall

By DAVE LEECO

All but four of the 15 teachers laid off by the School Committee Aug. 10 will be back behind Winchester school desks this fall.

The approval of a federal grant for the WIN (Winchester Intervention Network) program allowed the school system to hire back six of the laid—off teachers, according to Personnel Director Diane Hall.

Five of the teachers ——Donna Guildersleeve, who teaches adaptive physical education, elementary counselor Elaine Rosen, adjustment counselor Lorna Weinstein, speech therapist Judy Levin—Charns and special ed teacher Ellen Arvantis ——will be working directly in the WIN program, Hall said.

The grant also allowed the school system to rehire McCall teacher Cynthia Papoulias, Hall said. She explained that Papoulias had been laid off to make room at McCall for Dr. Jerry Goldberg, head of the WIN program. With the program continued for a fourth year, Hall said, Goldberg would continue as WIN coordinator at Lynch, and Papoulias would return to McCall.

Hall also found room in the school system for another five of the laid—off teachers. Three elementary teachers Mary Brooks, art teacher Barbara Gagel and reading specialist Linda Popp, will have full—time jobs after Labor Day. Two others, science teacher Bruce Hall and business education teacher Dolores Cordeiro, will be working part—time in the schools.

But unless enrollment in the schools drops by less than expected, four teachers ——elementary teacher Edna Accardo, Latin teacher Mary Behnke, and pupil service staffers Diane Boettcher and Judith Messinger —— will not be coming back.

According to Hall, the fate of those jobs rests on the accuracy of the school administration's enrollment projections.

"We will wait until the actual enrollment figures are in ——we usually take them in the first couple of days —— and see if there is a change from our predictions," said Hall.

"There might be a bulge, say in the elementary school, with more students than we predicted," said Hall. "In that event, we could hire one of the elementary teachers back."

Hall said she will recommend hiring back, if it is needed because of unexpectedly high enrollment, at the Sept. 14 School Committee meeting.

But judging from last year's predictions, there seems little chance the four Winchester teachers still without jobs will be rehired.

Last year, the school administration predicted enrollments of 1,530 in the elementary schools, 659 in the junior high school, and 1,365 in the high school. Those figures were off by only 44 students, as the actual enrollments came in at 1,500 for the elementary schools, 658 in the junior high and 1,378 at the high school.

It was enrollment, or the lack of it, which led to most of the 15 teacher lay—offs.

In briefing the School Committee on the lay—offs, Hall on Aug. 10 said that the administration predicted a 200—student drop in enrollment for next year ——100 from the elementary schools and 100 from the secondary schools.

Hall said that the school administration has figured on 1,400 elementary pupils, 640 junior high students and 1,290 senior high students for the coming year.

Accardo, Messinger, Boettcher and Behnke were all laid off because of declining enrollment, Hall told the School Committee.

Voters May Get Absentee Ballots, Vote Early

Town Clerk Carolyn Ward has announced the procedure for obtaining an absentee ballot for the State Primaries Sept. 14.

"If a voter plans to be out of town or will be unable, due to illness or physical disability, te get to the polls on Sept. 14 he or she may vote by absentee ballot," said Ward. "The voter must apply for a ballot, either in writing, or in person, by noon on Monday, Sept. 13, the day before the primaries.

"If the applications are made by mail, the voter should indicate whether the ballot should be mailed to him or if he would prefer to vote in person at the town clerk's office," said Ward. "If the ballot is mailed to the voter, then it must be notarized and returned by mail so voters must be sure that time will permit the process by mail.

"Voters who know they will be out of town on primary day can apply and vote at the same time. Ballots cast in person are witnessed by the office staff and do not have to be notarized.

"We have already processed over 100 absentee ballots and 60 people, mostly college students or businessmen with travel plans, have already voted in person at the office," Ward cntinued.

The absentee ballots are carried to the various precinct polling places and opened and counted by the election officers at the polls. In 1980, over 13,000 absentee ballots were cast in Massachusetts for the State Primary and 38,368 for the State Election.

Ward noted that the 1980 State Election was a presidential election which always produces a significant increase in overall voter participation, both in percentage of total votes cast and the number of people voting absentee. This year's primary turnout is expected to be heavy because of the governor's race and the many contests for lieutenant governor, state senator and district attorney.

Voters are urged to contact the town clerk's office if they have any questions about the absentee ballot process.

Archives Spruce-Up Planned

The Winchester Historical Society is planning a three-day "labor-day" series on Sept. 9, 10, and 11.

Anticipating a gala reopening in late Sept., the Henry E. Simonds Archival Center on High St. promises lots of new activities for all "would-be" archivists through the efforts of the Winchester Historical Society and all volunteers.

The three-day labor series is open to all who would like to share in the "spruce-up" of the center. Businesses are invited to help by donating products that could be helpful. Individuals are invited to share anything in their homes that would be needed for cleaning, painting, or polishing.

Paint brushes will be slapped, nails will be pounded, paper towels will be swished, carpet will be shampooed, and lots more.

To help or donate, just call the Archival center and leave a name and telephone number. Calls will be returned.

Seniors To Hear Insurance Facts

On Wednesday, Sept. 15, at 10 a.m., Winchester's seniors will learn facts about insurance from Elizabeth Connell, president of the Life Insurance Association of Massachusetts.

A coffee and socializing at 9:30 at Jenks Senior Center will precede the speaker.

Questions will be welcome following Connell's talk. Medicare changes, the need for supplementary health insurance, questions of under insurance and over insurance, the confusion about hospital, nursing home and home care coverage, plus other things seniors may want to have discussed.

Connell represents 14 life and health companies with home offices in Massachusetts. She is a graduate of Cornell University and of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. Her extensive experience in the health care field, especially as expert consultant to the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, and her directorship of government relations for a Washington, D.C., based health care trade association are indicative of her expertise.

She serves on the Joint Legislative-Executive Commission on Hospital Payment Systems and on the Governor's Health Care Cost Containment Coalition on Determination of Need. She was recently honored as one of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce 10 Outstanding Young Leaders.

An invitation is extended to all who are interested in this important subject to avail themselves of the opportunity to receive the information from a sepcialist in the field. The meeting will be moderated by Dr. Leonor M. Rich of the Winchester Seniors Association.

JIM LYONS
State Senator

Jim Lyons spends tax dollars the same way he spends his own dollars — with care and effectiveness.

Jim Lyons learned budget management the most effective way — he used his own money! Against the tremendous hurdles facing the small businessman, Jim's enterprises flourished. His successful businesses include wholesale and retail florist operations and a real estate corporation which he founded.

As a school committee member, Jim transferred his valuable business skills to the public sector. During the Lyons years, school budget increases were held under 2%, reversing a pattern of 10% increases. Quality services were maintained at reduced cost to the taxpayer.

As your state senator, Jim Lyons will continue to provide public services to all citizens at reasonable cost to all taxpayers.

A Salute To Those Who Serve

Winchester Girl Scouts Celebrating Their 65th Year Of Activity In Town

By JEFFREY REMZ

"The biggest need (for Girl Scouts) is that it is still the only organization where the girls work as a unit," says Veronica Fiorillo, community president of the Winchester Girl Scouts.

The Winchester Girl Scouts enable young women from first through twelfth grades to learn from each other and participate in group activities, according to Fiorillo.

"I think we are in an era where everything is done for the individual," Fiorillo says," and they don't have that in a troop. Everything is for each other, and they have to work together or else the troop fails.

"Girls can see when they don't work together, and they don't have their troop running correctly. It won't work." The 65-year-old organization today has about 450 Girl Scouts in 24 troops in Winchester.

As a result of this philosophy, most of the Girl Scout activities are geared to group interaction. For example, among the group's activities are camping trips; a father-daughter square dance in March; a roller skating party in November; and an ice skating party in February.

Several different camping trips are held during the school year, depending upon the age of the Girl Scouts. Brownies consist of girls in grades 1 through 3; junior scouts are in grades 4 through 6; cadettes are in grades 7 through 9; and senior scouts are in grades 10 through 12.

The junior scouts, for example, have an encampment in October. A townwide encampment for Winchester's Girl Scouts in junior, cadette, and senior divisions is scheduled for May at Camp Wabasso in New Hampshire.

"The encampment has participation of girls throughout the whole town," Fiorillo says. "They camp as individual troops, but a lot of the activities planned for the weekend combine the girls from the whole town."

Among the events held at an encampment are the traditional Girl Scout campfire, swimming, games and a talent show.

"Most of the camping trips deal with a social aspect," Fiorillo says, "but it is also how to deal with the outdoors and how to deal with the environment and how to treat the environment. It is a process of (the Girl Scouts) really learning how to handle themselves outside."

In addition to the major May encampment, the sixth grade Scouts have their own townwide outdoor winter day in January, held to promote continuing into the cadettes division of Girl Scouts, according to Fiorillo. The weekend is held at Cedar Hill in Waltham.

"The purpose of the sixth grade encampment is to meet one another and to meet new friends and to continue on (in Scouts)," Fiorillo says. "You pray for snow because there are a lot of activities that the Scouts can do there — snowshoeing, sledding, and cross-country skiing. It's a fun weekend, especially if there is snow."

The brownies have their own townwide play day in May in a chance to meet brownies from other troops in Winchester.

The most important activity of the Winchester Girl Scouts perhaps is its involvement in organizing an annual bloodmobile for the American Red Cross. The third blood drive organized by the Scouts takes place this coming year around Valentine's Day.

"All troops do service projects during the year, but the bloodmobile involves all of the girls (brownies, juniors, cadettes, and seniors)," says Fiorillo, who first became involved in Girl Scouts 12 years ago because of her daughters' participation.

"A blood drive had been done in Rhode Island, and we had been trying to find a more worthwhile service project for the older scouts to get involved in, and in doing so, we found one that everyone could get involved in," Fiorillo says.

The scouts organize the publicity, recruiting of donors, thank-you notes, and babysitting for donors' children during the bloodmobile. The senior scouts take a full training course enabling them to perform all work with donors, except the actual drawing of blood.

Two of the older Scouts — Lisa Maney and Christine Ryan — received the Gold Scout Award this past year, Girl Scouting's highest award, which is similar to the Boy Scouts' Eagle award. The Gold Scout Award is given for performing service projects and obtaining badges.

Many attended an international scouting event in Jamaica this past summer for eight weeks, one of only 13 scouts in the country to attend.

Badges, which are awarded for gaining proficiency in a particular field of study or activity, have changed through the years, according to Fiorillo. "They are now more modern," she says. "Girls can work on badges about space, flying, auto mechanics and woodworking. It's not just cooking and sewing anymore."

Many of the badges have remained the same, although requirements for obtaining the badges have changed, Fiorillo says. "They have added or changed the requirements for them to make it more interesting for the girls to work."

Girls Scouting in Winchester began in 1917 following a talk by two women from Boston on the movement to members of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness. Only one week later, a local council under the tutelage of Eugenia Parker formed with 30 members. The local branch quickly affiliated with the national movement, which was then only five years old.

From these beginnings, the Girl Scouts have engaged in many activities, including camping, selling cookies, earning badges, performing community service projects, marching in EnKa parades, serving at senior citizen luncheons, making tray favors for Winchester Hospital and selling coffee at the breaks during the town meeting.

In 1963, the local Girl Scout council joined with 12 other Middlesex communities to form the Mystic Area Council, resulting in more interaction among Girl Scouts from different communities. Among the activities were the "Walk-a-Girl-to-Camp" fund-raising project held in Middlesex Fells Reservation in April 1979. Other councilwide activities have included an Expo at the Burlington Mall and a family festival in Malden.

In May 1977, the Winchester Girl Scouts celebrated its 60th anniversary with a tea honoring past presidents, commissioners, and leaders. More than 300 Scouts marched in the EnKa parade with yellow birthday balloons released following the parade.

Randall's Expands

GROWN — The new Randall's addition will open today, providing 90 more seats in the Mt. Vernon st. restaurant. The addition, located in the former One-or-Two Things, will allow Randall's owner John Drougas to double the capacity of his restaurant to 200 diners, increase his menu to 43 entrees, and provide a greater variety of beers and wines. The new dining room will also be available for functions, Drougas noted.

Police Log

MONDAY, AUG. 30

— A Highland ave. home was broken into, as intruders removed a kitchen screen. The intruders went through the upstairs bedroom and study. Women's jewelry and loose change were reported missing by the owner.

— Officers Claude Austin and Barry Donaghey were called to a Thompson st. shop after the owner discovered a snake in the shop's sink. The snake was transported to the Mill Pond, and released on personal recognizance.

SUNDAY, AUG. 29

— An Indian Hill rd. home was reported broken into. According to officer William Wright's report, the home had not been ransacked. The intruders apparently got into the house through an unlocked door. A Nikkormat camera, a Sun Pack flash unit, a stereo radio and a cable television remote control were reported missing.

— Over 30 calls were received at the police station because of an audible alarm on Water st. The alarm, which rang for 45 minutes, awoke residents from as far as Symmes rd., according to police. The false alarm went off at approximately 5 a.m.

SATURDAY, AUG. 28

— A 19-year-old Woburn man was arrested for driving under the influence and his 17-year-old passenger taken into protective custody after the Woburn man's car forced a police cruiser off the road.

Officers David Poole and Lewis Best were heading north on East st. when they saw a car coming at them at a high rate of speed. The car veered into the cruiser's lane, and Poole was forced to swing the cruiser into the Chesterton Co. parking lot. He turned the cruiser around, and caught up to the car as it made an "erratic" turn into an East st. driveway, according to the report.

Stephen Flaherty, of Woburn, was arrested for operating under the influence and reckless driving.

— A BB was reported shot through the window of a car parked in a Main st. driveway.

— An Enfield, N. H., man was arrested for driving under the influence after officer Jonathan Dean pulled the 1969 red Cadillac the New Hampshire man was driving over in Arlington.

Dean reported he began chasing the car after seeing it pull out of the intersection of Lockeland and Ridge st., narrowly missing a car travelling on Ridge st.

The driver, Michael Tenney, didn't stop until Dunster ln., after crossing the Arlington line, Dean reported.

— Officers Poole and Best arrested a second man for driving under the influence. The two officers saw a car with Tennessee license plates weaving back and forth across the yellow line on Washington st., almost striking two parked cars.

The driver, Michael Martin of Memphis, Tenn., and Arlington, was arrested for driving under the influence.

FRIDAY, AUG. 27

— A 22-year-old Loring ave. man was placed in protective custody after being found unconscious, lying face down on McDonald Field by Sgt. Charles Culhane.

— A 25-year-old Somerville man was arrested for willful and malicious damage to personal property after he broke into a car owned by a Church st. man.

Officer Thomas Faulkner, called to the Church st. address by the owner, found the Somerville man asleep in the back of the Church st. resident's 1975 Volvo. The rear, driver's side window had been broken. The Somerville man said he broke into the car for somewhere to sleep.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 25

— A warrant was issued for the arrest of a 19-year-old Hemingway st. man after his brother reported the 19-year-old had withdrawn $1,000 from the brother's checking account.

Robert McDonald of Hemingway st. reported his brother, Thomas, had taken his bankbook and withdrawn $1,000 from the Winchester Cooperative Bank. A warrant against McDonald was issued for larceny of over $100, a felony charge.

Guess Who's Getting Away With Murder?

The criminals in Middlesex County, that's who. Just take a look at the figures the Globe reported in its 1981 study on crime in Middlesex County.

Of the 47 homicide cases tried by the present D.A.'s staff between 1978 and 1980, only 9...count them...9...persons were convicted as charged. Almost 50% plea bargained to lesser charge. 38% of those the D.A. tried were acquitted. That's right. NOT GUILTY...

Ed Gargiulo knows it takes a competent experienced prosecutor to make the charges stick.

The public record says the present D.A. just isn't doing the job.

Ed Gargiulo's record says he's the ONLY other candidate who has ever prosecuted a criminal case.

And that's the Gargiulo Difference.

He puts them away.

The Harriet Hoctor Ballet School is not a "dance recital" school which spends students' class time and money on preparation and expensive costumes. Total class time is spent learning and improving technique and skill. We are a "training" school with efforts directed toward the goal of giving our students a secure foundation in classical ballet technique while developing coordination, rhythm, poise and self-discipline, which is so important to the beginning and intermediate student. We also give the individual guidance and attention to those students who wish to go on and pursue a career as a professional ballet dancer.

Tight Houses And Open Houses — A Question Of Lifestyle

By TERRY MAROTTA

Frequently you hear people talk about having a tight house — about how theirs is already pretty tight, or about what steps they're taking to make it tighter.

Now a tight house, presumably, is one that effectively seals out the elements. What's outside stays outside: snow, for example, and icy winds. What's inside stays inside: the heat we all sweat blood to produce from our dollar-devouring furnaces. . . .

Well, my house is not tight, by any stretch of the imagination.

It's an old house, to be sure, older than the century. So maybe there's some excuse. But in our house the curtains blow even with the windows closed. In our house the ivy grows right between the upper and lower sashes of the windows, turns a few corners and appears inside, trailing picturesquely down the wallpaper. . . .

And the animal life! The animal life is a story unto itself: our house is a refuge, a Noah's ark, a Home for Little Wanderers to critters of every sort.

Here's what I mean: I come downstairs the other morning to the kitchen — I fumble blearily from the stove with the kettle to get some water, realizing the necessity for caffeine. But wait. What's this? The vitamin C bottle overturned and cap off in the sink? The little vitamin C bottle which ordinarily reposes on the window sill above the sink?

What's responsible? A strong gust of wind? Health-minded intruders? No matter, I figure. Might as well retrieve it and fire down a few milligrams of the stuff right now.

I pick it up; bring it to within six inches of my face. And what do I find inside it?

A bat. There's a bat in with the vitamins, little pointy ears and all. He wears that small curmudgeonly expression common to his kind. He's furry and sort of attic-colored. He has those long spiny wings folded along his snoozing sides. He looks like a moldy toy kite, an elf's umbrella woven out of grey moss. And here he is, sleeping with my vitamin C — dreaming, no doubt, of cures for the common cold.

I don't scream, I don't throw up. I don't heave him across the room. He's just another tenant I didn't know about. I set him on the back steps and go about my business. An hour later he's gone, back home for breakfast under the eaves probably, or for brunch among my high school scrapbooks.

At least he has the sense to keep a low profile.

The bird family wouldn't dream of doing that. They live in the chimney, just above the damper, not six inches away from the rest of us actually. They chatter and chirp all day long. I hear trilled murmurings from them as I make the beds in the morning — robin gossip I guess it is. I can always get a response by walking into the room and yelling "Hi guys!"

But the high point of their day occurs every time an airplane flies by overhead. They go crazy; you should hear them: "NO! (Peep peep) OH NO!" They sound like beseiged Britons sweating out the Blitz from their subway shelters beneath the streets of London. Maybe they think planes are giant birds themselves, great predators swooping through the heavens in search of juicy morsels like them. . . .

And then there are the cats. We don't own them, you understand, but various neighboring felines hang out on our side porch, tussling with one another, crooning and practicing scales. More and more often, lately, I'm finding them inside the house too — coming down from the third floor, for example, or whisking businesslike through the kitchen and out the back door. They look up at me with glances that seem to say, "So long, Mom. I'll be home in time for dinner." I want to rush after them, to shout "What do you mean, 'Mom'? And how did you get in here, anyhow?"

As I say, ours is not a tight house.

It's a way station, a drop-in center for the whole animal world. Junebug suicides are played out against the living room windows. Daddy longlegs teeter on the edge of the bathroom sink and watch you brush your teeth. Troops of serious-minded ants hold midnight maneuvers in the bedrooms, marching in disciplined columns across the blankets. . . .

It makes for lively times, inhabiting a latterday Ark this way, but I guess I'm getting used to it.

The distinction between inside and out is blurred all right, and there's frequent commerce between the two. I find that sort of appealing in a way. I'd rather live in a log cabin than a hermetically sealed fortress with artificial air and light anyway.

And if houses were people, ours would sure be the type I warm to: the type who welcomes all the wayfarers; the type who's not locked up or sealed off or bolted in. The type that's accessible to influences; who entertains a frequent commerce between World and Self.

In the meantime, on a less exalted level, I make my peace with the Kamikaze Junebugs; and I approach the morning's array of bottled vitamins with slow and careful deliberation.

'I make my peace with the Kamikaze Junebugs; and I approach the morning's array of bottled vitamins with deliberation.'

Letters To The Editor

MSPCA Criticism Is Grossly Inaccurate

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Through a friend living in Winchester, I have received a copy of The Winchester Star of Thursday, Aug. 19, 1982. On page 8 appears a letter under the caption "M.S.P.C.A.'s Macomber Farm Is Not Doing What It's Supposed To Do — Help Suffering Animals."

This letter is grossly inaccurate practically from the first paragraph to the last. The estate "Raceland" was Mr. John R. Macomber's only home (not his summer home) and under the terms of his will was left without restriction (underscore) to the M.S.P.C.A., of which he was a director and trustee for many years.

Anyone wishing to check out this fact may do so at the Probate Court of Middlesex County. The estate was left to the M.S.P.C.A without endowment.

Please note there are admission charges to the Boston Aquarium, the Children's Museum, Benson Wild Animal Farm to name a few. Practically the only buildings free are the public libraries.

Macomber Farm was not established to care for suffering animals. The society has other means of so doing on which I need not elaborate. Lastly, the domestic animals at Macomber Farm are housed there through the winter months with the same care as at other seasons. They do not "go back to the farms where they are obtained in the first place."

How do I know this to be a true presentation of the facts? I was the private secretary to Mr. Macomber for a period of 10 years and am also a legatee.

Saltmarsh Thanked

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Through the "Letters to the Editor" column of your newspaper, the Wednesday evening Family Support Group of the Eastern Middlesex Mental Health Association in Wakefield would like to publicly thank Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh of the Winchester, Stoneham area for attending one of our recent meetings.

We appreciated Representative Saltmarsh's response to our invitation, his interest in what we had to say concerning issues about mental illness, and his positive attitude to learn more about this most important subject.

Our sincere thanks to Representative Saltmarsh for taking the time to be with us.

Thank you,
Wednesday Evening

Homsi 'Thanks'

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On behalf of my wife and sons, I wish to thank all of my faithful and dedicated customers for your business throughout the past 21 years.

Effective Sept. 1, George Geannaris, a mechanic in the town of Winchester for 10 years, will become the owner and operator of Winchester Exxon.

To all our friends, "thank you" for 21 wonderful years.

Deadly Force In Self Defense

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Reliance on the local police, however dedicated they might be, is a fundamental problem. In our quest for safety on earth, this forced dependence is tantamount to self-destruction.

The prerequisite for survival is self-defense. Judges and lawmakers who tamper with this basic right should be fired forthwith.

A key to self-defense is the possession of a better weapon than the adversary. When the repeating revolver was introduced it was dubbed, "the great equalizer." With it, given the willingness and ability to use it, a 90-pound female became the equal of the most ruthless desperado.

Because the safety of the citizen is of paramount importance, the ownership of handguns should be encouraged.

There are valid complaints against the use of excessive force. They are few. Is it excessive to rearrange an assailant with a shotgun when threatened with a knife, club, or other deadly weapon?

The romantics claim the elimination of handguns will render the criminal element weaponless. That argument is not even worth refuting.

The bleeding hearts complain of occasional accidental deaths and injuries associated with firearms. A small price to pay for the elimination of anguish and suffering caused by intentional violence.

It is the citizen's right to defend himself. Likewise it is his duty to apprehend or otherwise decommission perpetrators of violent crime whenever possible. If he allows a scoundrel to escape, the next victim will pay dearly for that cowardice.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. What are the three main issues voters are concerned with this year? Many people will tell you the top three are taxes, taxes, and taxes. Over the past three years, the House and Senate have held several roll call votes on tax increases and decreases. This week, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" presents a comprehensive tax report compiling legislators' votes on key tax votes from 1980, 1981, and 1982. (Editors' note: Some roll calls go back to the 1980 session. A dash (-) is used for any representative or senator who was not yet serving in the legislature when the roll call vote was held).

This week's report also includes legislators' latest attendance records for 1982. Attendance records in the House are based on 322 roll calls, and senators' are based on 125 tallies.

Winchester's Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh achieved a 99 percent attendance record during the 1982 session. Sen. Samuel Rotondi's attendance record was 83 percent.

APPROVE TAXES(H 3515)—In November 1980, House rejected 94-25, Senate rejected 23-6, a constitutional amendment requiring a two-thirds vote in each branch, approval by the governor, and approval by the voters before any new tax or increase in an existing tax can be imposed. Under the measure, an emergency new tax or increase could be declared without voter approval by a three fourths vote of each branch, but would terminate at the end of the fiscal year unless approved by the voters. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment. A "No" vote is against it).

Saltmarsh — Yes.
Rotondi — No.

FEES(H 6662)—In July 1980, House approved 70-56, Senate approved 25-14, a bill allowing the Secretary of Administration and Finance to set the amount of fees and charges for various licenses and services rendered by the state. Under the bill, the fee would be effective in seven days unless the House or Senate rejected it. Since the bill was passed, many fees in the state have been hiked. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill. A "No" vote is against it).

Saltmarsh — No.
Rotondi — Yes.

GAS TAX(H 6793)—In July 1980, the House approved 74-73, the measure replacing the previous 8.5 cents per gallon gas tax with an "open ended" one equal to 10 percent of the wholesale cost of a gallon of gas. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill. A "No" vote is against it).

Saltmarsh — No.

GAS TAX(H6793)—In July 1980, the Senate rejected 21-15, an amendment to the bill replacing the flat 8.5 cents per gallon gas tax with one equal to 10 percent of the wholesale price of gas. The Senate amendment would have eliminated the change and instead used the increase in recent state fees for licenses as the funding mechanism for the emergency fuel assistance program the increased gas tax was supposed to fund. (A "Yes" vote is against the change in the gas tax. A "No" vote is for the change).

Rotondi — No.

ELDERLY TAX CREDIT(H 6793)—In July 1980, the House rejected 86-60, an amendment to the gas tax bill. The amendment would provide a $10 tax credit for elderly drivers over 60, with an

Motorists Warned To Watch Back-To-School Traffic

Motorists beware! The back-to-school traffic is about to begin.

Soon, hundreds of Winchester youngsters, juggling book bags and lunch boxes, will be scampering toward school buses, darting across intersections and winding their bikes through the streets.

After the comparatively quiet road patterns of the summer, motorists — the Insurance Information Institute notes — will quickly need to adjust for all this back-to-school traffic.

And the institute urges parents to make sure youngsters are aware of the traffic hazards they'll face in going to and from school. By following safety rules, school children can lessen the chances of being involved in an accident.

With school resuming, drivers should:

—Use extra caution at school crosswalks. Watch for and obey the guard or patrol on duty.

—Be alert. Children don't always remember they shouldn't run out from between parked cars.

—Watch for school buses loading and unloading students. You must stop for flashing red lights — it's the law.

The institute suggests parents be sure their children:

—Learn and obey safety rules whether walking, riding or biking to school.

—Always walk facing traffic if there are no sidewalks.

—Ride bicycles that have been checked for tire wear and whose spokes, chains, gears, handlebars and seats are in safe condition. Reflectors, brakes, lights, the horn and other safety gear should be checked regularly during the school year.

—Ride with the traffic and in single file.

—Watch out for car doors being opened.

—Be alert for potholes, manhole coverings and loose gravel.

Parents are urged to instruct children riding school buses to keep their arms inside bus windows.

AA And Ala-Non Members To Speak

Betty and Bill, members of Alcoholics Anonymous and Ala—Non, will be the guest speakers Tuesday, Sept. 7, at a meeting of Ala—Family. The meeting, open to people of all ages who have a family member with alcohol problems, will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in Winchester Hospital's Russell House on Fairmount st.

A film, "Chalk Talk Prevention," will be shown the following Tuesday Sept. 14. A young Lynnfield member of Alateen will lead a discussion group of Ala—Family on Sept. 21.

"Doctor, You've Been Lied To" is the title of the film to be shown on Sept. 28.

BACK TO SCHOOL ADVISE — Fields Fashion Consultant, Carolyn Burke (l) gives fashion advice to Winchester resident Lorna Murray, at the Fields Hosiery store in the Meadow Glen Mall. Burke was available in the store immediately after the mall's Back-to-School Fashion Show; she discussed the family hosiery fashion needs with Fields' customers.

Health Dept. Trains Volunteers

The Winchester Health Dept., in conjunction with the American Cancer Society, recently conducted a training session for community volunteers who will act as researchers in a national cancer study.

The new research program will attempt to identify the relationship between environment, life style, and the development of cancer.

The researchers will each work with 10 families, helping them fill out a questionnaire which touches upon saccharine, hair dyes, exposure to low-level radiation, coffee, passive smoking and other suspected risks.

A brief follow-up in which the researcher documents deaths and address changes is initiated every two years for six years.

According to Mike Curren of the American Cancer Society's Malden office, one million people will partcipate, 32,000 of them from this state.

A large study like this is the most effective way to find out which environmental factors increase risk and need most control, and which carry little or no risk, Curren said.

Steven A. Weinstein, Director of the Winchester Board of Health, offered the board's appreciation for the residents who have agreed to participate. In an emotional tone, Weinstein told the group that his mother had radical neck surgery and extensive radiation treatments about five years ago for cancer. She's doing quite well now and in fact is participating in the study in New York, he added.

Weinstein said it is hoped that this study will identify risk factors that will prevent or at least minimize such tragedies.

Interested residents may still participate in the study by calling the Health Department.

income of less than $10,000. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment. A "No" vote is against it.)

Saltmarsh — Yes.

EXCISE TAX(H 6953)—In June 1981, House rejected 143-3, an amendment allowing cities and towns to increase the motor vehicle excise tax from the $25 per thousand limit imposed by Proposition 2.5, back to the former $66 per thousand ceiling. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment. A "No" vote is against it.)

Saltmarsh — No.

RENTERS AND 2.5(S 2432)—In December 1981, the House rejected 87-64, an amendment removing the $2000 limit renters can deduct annually on their state income taxes. The amendment removes the $2000 cap and allows renters to deduct half their annual rent, with no ceiling. There was no cap in the original Proposition 2.5 approved by voters. (A "Yes" vote is against the $2000 cap. A "No" vote is for the $2000 cap.)

Saltmarsh — Yes.

SURTAX(S 2032)—In August 1982, the Senate rejected 23-14, Governor King's bill to phase out the 7.5 percent state income surtax. In July, the House, 75-66, refused to discharge the Committee on Ways and Means from further consideration of a bill phasing out the surtax. The House vote left the bill tied up in the committee. (In the Senate, a "Yes" vote is for the bill phasing out the surtax. A "No" vote is against the bill. In the House, a "Yes" vote is for discharging the bill onto the House floor. A "No" vote is against discharge.)

Saltmarsh — Yes.

Rotondi — No.

INCOME TAX(H 6625)—In August 1982, the House 118-16, and the Senate 24-5, both approved the bill increasing the personal exemptions in the state income tax by $200, from $2000 to $2200. This cut amounts to a savings of about $10.75 a year for each taxpayer. (A "Yes" vote is for the tax cut. A "No" vote is against it.)

Saltmarsh — Yes.

Rotondi — Yes.

MORE INCOME TAX(H 6625)—In August 1982, the Senate rejected 18-10, an amendment increasing the proposed increase in personal exemptions in the state income tax from $200 to $500. This would make the exemptions $2500 as opposed to the $2200 proposed in the bill. (A "Yes" vote is for the increase from $200 to $500. A "No" vote is against it.)

Rotondi — No.

Indoor Tennis Assn. Team Plays In Michelob Light Championship

Winchester netmen took on the best tennis players in the region last weekend in Waterville Valley during the New England sectionals of the Michelob Light Championship.

And although the local players from the B-1 team of the Winchester Indoor Lawn and Tennis Assn. were eliminated in the early rounds of the tourney, team captain Alex Popp said just playing in a U.S. Tennis Assn.-sanctioned tournament was enough to satisfy his squad.

"We're all still glad we had the experience of going up there," said Popp. "It was well organized, in a beautiful setting, and there were very nice red clay courts.

"Everything was so well done, it will be an incentive for our A and C teams to do better next year, so they can get into the tourney," said Popp.

The B-1 team was able to get into the tourney as a result of their winning season in the Northeast Suburban Tennis League. Popp explained that league winners from all over New England were invited to the New Hampshire tournament.

But league play did not prepare the Winchester netmen for the caliber of competition they faced in the Michelob Light Championships.

"There's a big difference between playing in a league once a week and playing against some of the squads in New Hampshire," observed Popp.

"The competition was very, very keen," he explained. "And it's especially difficult to judge what kind of player you'll be facing in our division, because in the Bs, you have players close to the A division and other players closer to C."

The tournament was set up with each team playing two singles matches and three doubles matches in a round-robin against two other teams in the division, noted Popp.

Winchester faced a team from Rocky Hill, Conn., in the first round, but dropped the match to the squad 4-1 despite three matches that went to the third set.

The Winchester team had even less success in the second round, against Somerset. Somerset, one of the finalists in last year's Michelob Championship, came into the match against Winchester after beating Rocky Hill handily.

For the record, Somerset won all five matches to eliminate Winchester from the tournament. But the last match might have been Winchester's.

Popp explained that he and Ric Bush were playing third doubles in the last match against Somerset. The local duo were leading 4-3 in the third and rubber set when tournament officials called the game because of darkness.

"I asked them how the other teams had done and when I found out that we had lost all four, I gave it to them (Somerset)," said Popp. "We wouldn't have been able to go on in the tournament anyway."

The Winchester tennis players didn't give up in the first round, though. Popp, at second singles, Leo Laurentano and Jim Phillips, at second doubles, and Ric Bush and Vince Cortina, at third doubles, all took their opponents to the third set before bowing.

But as the round ended up, only the first doubles team of Ralph Bates and Brent Collar was able to win a match in the tourney.

Bates and Collar won easily, 6-2, 6-1 in the only bright spot in the match against Rocky Hill. "We were all a little nervous in that first round," admitted Popp.

The team's first singles player, Paul Murray, felt the nervousness early in his

Swim And Tennis Club Teams Complete Winning Seasons

The youth of the Winchester Swim and Tennis Club have experienced an exciting and rewarding season of competitive swimming and tennis.

The swim team, coached by Dana Hodges, held a 4-1 record in the Bi-Centennial League for the season. On Aug. 21, the team took second place in the league's championship meet held at the Cedardale Club in Groveland.

The tennis team, coached by Phil Kadesch, a native of Winchester and the number one ranked men's singles player in New England, holds an impressive record in the Sudbury Valley Junior Tennis League. The boys team finished 7-3 and the girls team came through the season undefeated.

Both Marco Cosentino and Diane Intravaia played undefeated tennis throughout. Shawn Herlihy was a finalist in the Winchester Cathedral 14-and-under Division A Singles Tournament; and, he was the winner of the New England 14 and under Division B Singles Championship played at Chamberlain Pines Tennis Club in Holliston. Susan Burke was a semi-finalist in the 14-and-under Division A New England Singles Tournament played at Cedardale.

In celebration of the season, a cookout was held at the club. "Coaches' Awards" were presented in recognition of selected team members who displayed outstanding commitment throughout the season.

Under the leadership of Rosemarie Vita, the women of the Winchester Swim and Tennis Club have completed their first season in the New Women's Outdoor Summer Tennis League. League members include: Captain Rosemarie Vita, Joan Byrne, Ann Ferry, Marilyn Lane, Arlene Estabrook, Marlene Rothmann, Angela Pollino, Michele Ferrera, Sue Burke, Nancy O'Herron, Roseann Berkley and Ginny DelVecchio.

Forty-four women participated in the Annual Member-Guest Tournament held at the Winchester Swim and Tennis Club on Aug. 4. Cited for their contribution in hosting the event were: Phil Kadesch, Tennis Pro, for arranging the tennis format and Jacqueline Heffernan for the social organization of the tournament.

Overall tournament winners were Anne Ferry and Mary Golden. Finalists were Marlene Rothmann and Jane Johnson. Consolation winners were Angela Pollino and Sue Cowen. Consolation finalists were Arlene Estabrook and Wanda Beckham.

At the conclusion of the tournament, the first "Woman of the Year" award was presented to Rosemarie Vita in recognition of her "Outstanding service to competitive women's tennis" at the Winchester Swim and Tennis Club.

Junior Tennis Tourney Registration Ends Today

The annual Junior Town Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Winchester Recreation Dept. and the Winchester Tennis Association, will be held at the Packer Courts during the weeks of Sept. 7 and Sept. 26.

This tournament is open to all junior residents of Winchester. There will be two age divisions, 15 and under and 12 and under. Both age groups will include boys' and girls' singles and doubles events. Trophies will be awarded to all finalists and winners in each event.

Applications are available at the Winchester Sport Shop and from Whit Gray, supervisor at Packer Courts.

Deadline for applications will be Sept. 2.

Fall Tennis Tourney Slated

Winchester's Fall Tennis Tournament will begin on Saturday, Sept. 11, and run for two weekends with the finals scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 19.

Any resident or town employee 16 years or older may enter in one or two of the six events offered.

Play will begin on Saturday morning at the Packer Courts with the Men's Singles events, followed by the Women's Singles, Senior Men's Singles and Men's Doubles. Women's Doubles and Mixed Doubles play will begin on Sunday.

Individual prizes will be awarded to all winners and finalists. Winners' names will be engraved on the traditional trophies now permanently housed at the Winchester Indoor Tennis Center.

Applications are now available from Packer Court supervisor Whit Gray or the Winchester Sports Shop. Completed applications should be returned to Don and Lynn Robinson, 3 Bacon st., no later than 6 p.m. on Sept. 8.

A satisfactory physical condition is as essential to successful driving as it is to other activities of daily living. In fact, it may be said to be more important to good driving than to many other activities. There are many things that we can do when we are not feeling up to par, but if we drive when our physical condition is below a desirable level, we may add to the possibilities of accidents. Just as an athlete, or an astronaut, keeps his physical condition at a high level so that he can give everything needful to what he is going to do, so must a driver understand that his physical condition can affect his driving favorably or adversely.

High School Gym Will Open For Local Sports

The Winchester Community Use of School (CUOS) program will begin its tenth year of operation on Monday, Sept. 13.

As usual the high school gym will be open on Monday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 10 for adults only — 18 years and older. The weekend schedule will become effective on Saturday, Nov. 20. From that date on the gym will open on Saturday and Sunday from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. through Sunday, March 29, for family use.

The program is open to all residents who want to keep fit, to exercise for enjoyment, to meet new neighbors, to get a night out or to simply enjoy themselves.

The fee is $1 for everyone who uses the facility. This dollar opens the door to play basketball — the most popular event — volleyball, paddleball, to jog or use the weight lifting equipment.

On most nights all the courts are in use. However, the gym is spacious and seldom does anyone wait long for a court to open. This is an "open" program, so there are no reserved courts or scheduled games. All courts are filled on a first come basis. There are no locker room, bathroom or telephone facilities — so come to the gym ready to play. Appropriate footwear is mandatory.

Emerson Hospital To Host 15th Annual Tennis Tourney

The deadline to enter the 15th annual Emerson Hospital Tennis Tournament is Sept. 8 at 6 p.m. Sponsored by the Concord Unit of the Emerson Hospital Auxiliary, the benefit draws over 500 players of all skill levels from the many towns in the hospital's service area. Starting after the draw on Sept. 10 the matches will run for three weeks.

The Adult Finals will be held indoors at the Thoreau Tennis Club in Concord on Sunday, Oct. 3, followed by a victory party at Concord's Colonial Inn at 7:30 that evening. The Junior Finals will be held a week earlier on Sept. 25 (rain date, Sept. 26) outdoors at the Nashoba Valley Tennis Center in Acton.

The tournament has 20 divisions, including Men's A & B Level Singles, Men's Doubles, Mixed Doubles, Women's Singles and Doubles, Senior and Super Senior Singles and Doubles, Parent-Child, and Boys' and Girls' Singles and Doubles.

Tournament entry blanks will be available at tennis and country clubs throughout the area, as well as at sporting goods stores, supermarkets, libraries, athletic and health clubs, and Emerson Hospital Volunteer Office.

match against a younger player from Rocky Hill.

"He told me he couldn't get going," noted Popp. And by the time Murray started moving, he had lost 6-4, 6-2.

Popp, at second singles, then found himself "in a real rollercoaster of a match." He lost the first set, 4-6, but came back to take the second set with a withering serve, 6-0.

The third set for Popp started out rough, and the team's captain found himself behind 4-3. He almost tied it up in the next game, and was leading love-40 before dropping the game, the set and the match.

Popp noted that the showdown exhausted him so much that he took himself off second singles, and played the final match at third doubles.

The second and third doubles teams didn't have any more luck than Popp had. Laurentano and Phillips battled all afternoon, but lost in three close matches, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Bush and Cortina took their third doubles match to the third set, and to a tie-breaker in that set, before losing 6-7.

Somerset didn't give Winchester the same chances.

The Somerset team beat first singles player Pat Anniello 6-1, 6-1, and took Laurentano at second singles 6-3, 6-3.

The Somerset squad had a bit more trouble with the doubles players — both sets against second doubles team Paul Murray and Jim Phillips were resolved with tie-breakers, and darkness got them out of a tough match with Bush and Popp at third doubles. The first doubles team of Bates and Collar, though, fell 6-4, 6-1.

Paul Vincent To Conduct Youth Hockey Power Skating Clinic

Winchester Youth Hockey has announced that Paul Vincent will be conducting a new professional Power Skating Clinic at the USA Rink on Conant rd. The clinic will consist of 10 consecutive Friday nights, beginning Sept. 10 through Nov. 12 from 5 to 6 p.m.

Those interested should apply early as there are a limited number of openings. Please contact Richard Winn, 23 Carter st., by telephone for further information.

All applicants must arrive one-half hour early for official registration.

Openings on a first-come basis.

Continental Cow

Travel The World Of Cheese Without Leaving Winchester

If cheese is what you're looking for, then Ralph Carasso of Continental Cow, 32 Church st., Winchester, has the answer and the supply. Ralph's self-described "European foodmarket" carries 125 varieties of cheese from 17 countries.

"I like to think that you can come and see Ralph and travel throughout the world of cheese without leaving Winchester," Carasso said. "It's the truth. I feel like I can go around the world every day."

Brie, boursault and brillat savarin are the most popular cheeses, according to Carasso. Other popular cheeses include Swisses, parmesan, gruyere, and Danish creamy cheeses. In addition, Continental Cow carries a large selection of Italian and French goat cheeses from the strongest tasting to the creamiest, Carasso said.

Carasso also makes gourmet cheese boxes, which can be shipped throughout the U.S., and cheese trays and platters for parties for between 5 and 500 people.

Continental Cow also carries a selection of fresh meats, such as sugar-cured Morrell ham, sirloin and Delmonico steaks, London broil, roast beef and kidney lamb chops.

An array of fresh vegetables and fruits; spices; imported foods, such as jams, cereals, mustard, and vinegar; 14 different types of coffee beans; and cookbooks from the Nitty Gritty series also are available from Ralph.

Fresh, homebaked bread is available daily with hallah, whole wheat rye, light rye, and pumpernickel among the specialties.

Although most of the gourmet items are intended for home use, Ralph can satisfy your hunger during the day with a take-out sandwich of either chicken, ham, turkey, roast beef, or salami on fresh bread.

Continental Cow is open Monday through Wednesday from 8:30 a.m. until 7 p.m.; Thursday and Friday from 8:30 a.m. until 8 p.m.; Saturday from 8:30 a.m. until 6 p.m.; and Sunday from 8:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. For more information, call 729-6294.

Marguerite Dyson Is Married To Francis Santino

Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Santino

Marguerite Monica Dyson, daughter of Mrs. George F. Dyson of 37 Pierrepont rd. and the late Mr. George F. Dyson, and Francis Paul Santino Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Santino of Medford, were married on July 29.

The double-ring ceremony was held at St. Mary's Church in Winchester, with the Rev. Benedict Mawn officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, George W. Dyson.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Deborah Clayton of Wayland. Bridesmaids were Anne O'Donnell of Medford and Jane Towey of Arlington. The bride's nieces, Mara R. Higgins of Minneapolis, Minn. and Molly Dyson of Detroit, Mich., were the flower girls. Marc Santino of Medford, the bridegroom's son, was ring bearer.

The bride wore her mother's gown of slipper satin with a V-neckline, empire waistline, and long tapered sleeves. The slim-line gored skirt flowed into a cathedral train. Alencon lace and an open crown held the Priscilla cathedral-length mantilla, and seeded pearls accentuated the lace.

The bridesmaids wore purple and lavender sleeveless print dresses, carried bouquets of miniature white roses surrounding purple carnations, and wore a sprig of baby's breath in their hair.

The flower girls wore lavender, full-length taffeta dresses with an overlay of white lace and puffed sleeves.

A reception followed at the Towne Lyne House in Lynnfield.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School and the College of St. Elizabeth and is an elementary school teacher in Belmont.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Medford High School and Burdett College, and attended Bentley College.

Following a cruise to Nassau and Bermuda aboard the S.S. Oceanic, the couple are residing in Medford.

Muncaster Is Married To Holland

Althea Muncaster became the bride of James S. Holland in a double ring ceremony on Saturday, Aug. 14, at the Lutheran Church of the Cross, Evergreen, Colo.

The Rev. David E. Brunscheen performed the ceremony. The altar was decorated with white gladiolas and pink carnations. Pink and white carnations tied with pink bows decorated the ends of the pews.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Neil K. Muncaster of Evergreen and Spencer and Patricia Holland of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Denver, Colo., respectively.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a white sheer Edwardian gown with an embroidered lace yoke. She carried an arm bouquet of pink long-stemmed roses.

Pamela Muncaster of Evergreen, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a white shadow organdy gown with a pink satin sash and pink horsehair hat trimmed with a white satin streamer. She carried a bouquet of silk pink roses and white carnations.

The bridesmaids were Susan A. Muncaster of Evergreen, sister of the bride; Therese Masters, of Littleton, Colo.; sister of the bridegroom, and Cherisse Croll, twin sister of Therese, also of Littleton. They were attired like the maid of honor. The flower girls, Kirstin and Jodie Nissler of Evergreen, wore flowered calico pinefores and carried baskets of rose petals.

Jeffrey Perkins of Fort Collins, Colo., was the best man. Brian Muncaster, brother of the bride, was the head usher.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother wore a pink and navy street-length dress with a pink organza jacket and a corsage of white silk roses. The Mother of the bridegroom wore a floor-length deep rose gown with matching shawl and a corsage similar to the bride's mother's. Also in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Olcott Hooper of Vershire, Vt., formerly of Winchester, grandparents of the bride.

Both the bride and bridegroom are students in Fort Collins where they will make their home after a honeymoon in Vail.

Donna Criscione Becomes The Bride Of Robert V. Vieraitis Jr.

Donna and Robert Veiraitis

Donna S. Criscione, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel S. Criscione of 11 Trinity rd., and Robert V. Vieriatis Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vieraitis of Fairfield, Conn. were married on June 26.

The Rev. James Haddad officiated at the wedding mass at St. Eulalia's Church. A garden reception followed at the home of the bride.

Wearing her mother's gown of satin and Alencon lace, the bride was escorted down the aisle by her father. The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Cara Criscione of 11 Trinity rd. Also attending the bride was Andrea Vieraitis of Fairfield, Conn. sister of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom was attended by Joel Feldman of Cambridge, as best man. Sharing the duties of ushers were Paul Criscione, Steven Criscione and David Criscione, brothers of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School and Mount Holyoke College. She is a compensation analyst with Choate-Symmes Health Services Inc. in Woburn.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Roger Ludlowe High School in Fairfield, Conn., and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is an officer in the United States Air Force and works as a computer analyst with the electronic systems division at Hanscom Air Force Base in Bedford.

Lynn M. Kelley Is The Bride Of Thomas Haggerty

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Haggerty

Lynn M. Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Kelley Sr. of Elmwood ave., was married to Thomas M. Haggerty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Haggerty of Rock ave., on June 12.

Rev. Benedict Mawn officiated at the double-ring ceremony in St. Mary's Church. The bride was given away by her father during the 6:30 p.m. nuptials.

The bride wore a Victorian-styled gown featuring a taffeta underskirt with a Chantilly lace overlay and neck. She also wore lace gauntlets.

Her hairpiece was of roses, carnations and baby's breath. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The maid of honor was Sheryl Norris of Elmwood ave. The bridesmaid was Donna Kelley, the sister of the bride.

The maid of honor wore a mauve qiana gown with a lace cape. She wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a bouquet of daisies, pink mini-carnations and baby's breath.

The bridesmaid wore the same style gown as the maid of honor in orchid. She also wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a bouquet of daisies, orchid-colored mini-carnations and baby's breath.

The best man was Lawrence Weller of Billerica. Kevin Kelley of Cambridge, a brother of the bride, and Neil Haggerty of Woburn, the bridegroom's brother, served as ushers.

Mrs. Suzanne Kelley of Main st., sister-in-law of the bride, was in charge of the guest book at the reception held at the Woburn Country Club.

After a wedding trip to Maine, the couple have settled in Winchester.

Deborah Chandler Is Married To Anthony Galli

Deborah Galli

Deborah Ann Chandler was married to Anthony F. Galli on June 26 at a nuptial mass in St. Mary's church.

Rev. Mark Sheehan officiated at the ceremony. A reception followed at the Myopia Hunt Club in Hamilton.

Mrs. Galli is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Chandler of Herrick st. and Rockport. Mr. Galli is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Galli of Portland, Maine.

Colleen Chandler of Winchester was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Joan Ray of Portland, Maine, the sister of the bridegroom; and Kimberly Wilkinson of New Jersey, niece of the bride.

Arthur Galli of Falmouth, Maine, served as his brother's best man. Ushers included David Galli of Saco, Maine, the brother of the bridegroom; Barry Crommett of Concord; Wayne Clark of Falmouth, Maine, and Philip Perrino of Scarborough, Maine.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of Winchester High School and a 1977 graduate of Westbrook College. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Maine.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Galli are residing in Portland, Maine.

Alison Kuhns Macmillan Becomes The Bride Of Marc Rene Desmeules

Alison Kuhns Macmillan of Vermont and Marc Rene DesMeules of Vermont were married recently at the Church of the Holy Spirit in Wayland.

The Rev. Roger William Smith officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Alexander S. Macmillan and the late Dr. Macmillan of Wayland. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. DesMeules of Main st.

Maid of honor was Cameron Macmillan, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Anne and Lucy Macmillan of Wayland, sisters of the bride, and Laurie Macmillan of Wellesley.

The best man was Peter DesMeules of Vermont, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Alexander S. Macmillan III of Wellesley, and James P. Macmillan of Pennsylvania, brothers of the bride and David Cate of New Hampshire.

A reception followed at the Codman Farm in Lincoln.

The bride is a graduate of Connecticut College, and is a botanist with the Vermont Agency of Environmental Conservation.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Marlboro College, Vermont and is employed as a field biologist with the Nature Conservancy.

Following a trip to Prince Edward Island, Canada, the couple are residing in East Calais, Vo.

LABOR DAY

Celebrate, America! This day of rest is well earned! It's you men and women of our work forces that set the wheels of this nation in motion. We have prospered and flourished tremendously through your devoted efforts month after month, year after year. By working as a team to get the job done, you have bettered the standards of American life. Today, we take the time to reflect upon the dignity and the priviledge of productive labor. Tomorrow, we will return to our respective jobs with a renewed vigor. We welcome the challenge each day brings, as we're ever reminded of how essential each one of us is in the future development of our fine country. Let's work together with a sense of achievement!

THE CONNECTION — State Senator Sam Rotondi makes a voter connection at Leverett Circle in his shoe leather campaign for Lt. Gov.

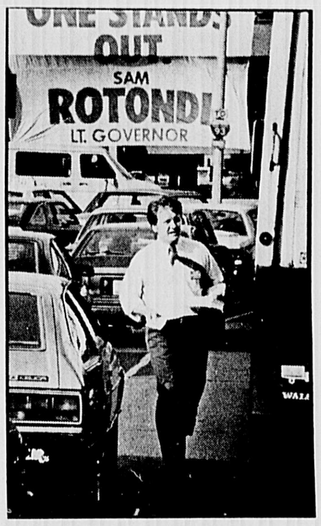
'Hi, I'm Sam Rotondi!'



The Local Candidate For Lt. Gov. Who Puts His Faith In Shoe Leather, Connections, Family, And Flexibility

By DAVID S. MILLSTONE, JR.

Name recognition.

That's the name of the game. You don't become Lieutenant Governor, if, on November 14, your prospective constituents mumble "Rotondi who?" in the voting booth.

Political candidates are made and broken on how readily that ubiquitous, omnicient and fickle collective being — "The Public" — can recall his-her name.

"The biggest problem facing any of us is name recognition," says three-term State Senator and candidate for Lieutenant Governor, Sam Rotondi of Winchester.

"We're not really running against each other (the five Democratic candidates for Lieutenant Governor), we're running against being unknown," he said.

Rotondi, in fact, considers name recognition so important that he has shaped his campaign around a grueling schedule of public appearances designed to stamp his face in "The Public's" mind. Pols everywhere are, of course, interested in the same end, but Rotondi stands out — in Massachusetts at least — in that he does not depend primarily on the media for such exposure.

To wage war against anonymity, the other four Democratic candidates have relied primarily on TV and radio ads to secure a niche in the voters' memory. But Rotondi believes that the media will ultimately fail them unless, like him, they treat the media as only "one front" in a broader battle.

"When a guy gets off the train at seven in the morning and sees me, he says 'I saw you on tv last night.' This is important," says Rotondi.

"The media is going to sell me as much as I sell myself, but the media is only one flank."

So for the past summer, Rotondi's campaign strategy has emphasized public exposure, rather than media exposure. Such commitment to canvassing the entire state calls for continuous, 100 percent exertion, every day, 18 hours a day. Yet for Rotondi and his staff, it is the shoe leather which will pay off on primary day, not the bill for a TV-radio spot alone.

A day in the life of the candidate seems to confirm that Rotondi believes in hitting the summer picnics and commuter stops, that a "good hit" at a gathering of a few hundred people is worth spending the better part of a day on. His is a strategy of visibilities, hits, "MEGAvizes" and "slam-dunks"...political jargon for a --good--better--best description of a candidate's exposure at individual campaign activities.

One typical campaign day for the candidate began in the refreshingly cool dawn of Thursday, Aug. 19. It would be a hot day, not the best for hits, but now the light 60 degree tingle served to wake up the Senator and his driver-aide, Mark Fitzgerald of Winchester.

This 6:30 a.m. rendezvous in the Rotondi driveway is actually a late start for the two men, now used to 4:30 wake up calls and getting to sleep well past midnight, and the schedule is considered light: a viz-hit, a hit, another hit, a MEGAviz and a political fundraiser in Winchester in the evening. No slam-dunks.

The first appearance of the day is the viz-hit at North Station. This is a combination visibility and hit — political parlance for an opportunity to two things: display the candidate's name or face on posters, bumper stickers, pamphlets, nail files or any printable sundry (i.e. "I'm a King Fan," printed on the back side of a paper fan) and give the candidate an opportunity to personally appraoch individual voters (i.e. Rotondi's warm solicitation, "I'd love your consideration on Nov. 14.").

When Rotondi and Fitzgerald arrive at North station, they are met by several volunteer campaign workers. While Rotondi gives some time to construction workers, Fitzgerald coordinates placement of very large, very red posters bearing the message, "ROTONDI, Lt. Gov."

Soon, Fitzgerald and a senate staffer flank Rotondi as train-fulls of suburban, white-collar commuters hit the tarmac, briefcases and morning newspapers swinging in rhythm.

Yet Rotondi seems undaunted by this wave, moving swiftly into the crowd himself, handing out pamphlets.

"Hi, I'm Sam Rotondi and I'm running for Lieutenant Governor. I'd love your consideration."

He isn't rude; he doesn't push an already delicate, unspoken agreement between himself and each communter.

"Some are shy, and to some it's a sales pitch," he says. "I try to respect that."

(Rotondi - Page 26)

EVER READY — The candidate awaits a rush of commuters at North Station.

He Stands In The Flexible, Practical Middle

By DAVID S. MILLSTONE, JR.

State Senator Samuel Rotondi believes that his strength as a candidate for lieutenant governor lies in being a "team player," someone who doesn't let political ideology hamstring state government.

He calls Lieutenant Governor Tom O'Neill's poor working relationship with Governor Edward King a "violation of the public trust." He accuses those he calls "ultra-liberals" and "ultra-conservatives" of being too unwilling to bend in the face of political reality.

"I ask that idealoques give up something of their intellectual purity for the over-all public good and compromise so that the pendulum can stop swinging back and forth," he told a Winchester audience recently.

Rotondi says he is flexible

Voke Practical Nursing Program Allied With Melrose-Wakefield Hospital

The Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School's Practical Nursing Program is accepting applicants for an early October starting date.

Interested students should pick up an application package at the school's main office, or call the school and request that the application package be mailed. To be eligible, students must reside within the 12-community Northeast Vocational School District (which includes Winchester) and possess a high school diploma or equivalent.

The application deadline has been set for Friday, Sept. 10. Applications received after this date will be placed on a waiting list.

The Allied Health Entrance Examination given by The Psychological Corporation will be administered. Personal interviews will be conducted as soon as completed applications are received.

The one-year Practical Nurse Program is being offered as a result of a funding contract with the Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, along with anticipated resources from federal and state agencies. The award of these grants will enable the program to continue on a tuition-free basis.

Students will be responsible for expenses such as books, uniforms, transportation and meals. This will bring the cost of the program for students to approximately $400-$500.

The Practical Nurse Program will use Melrose-Wakefield Hospital for its medical-surgical and maternity experience, and continue to use the North Shore Childrens' Hospital in Salem for a four-week pediatric rotation. Classes in theory will be held at Northeast Regional Vocational School in Wakefield.

Gerard P. Donahoe, Winchester's representative on the district school committee, chaired a subcommittee which worked over the past several months with the school administration, headed by Supt. Director Thomas F. Markham Jr., and William J. Hegarty, Associate Executive Director of Melrose Wakefield Hospital. The subcommittee's efforts resulted in this collaborative, where by a public school facility will offer a program with funding support from the private sector.

Pini Seeks Seat On Governor's Council

Cambridge resident Tony Pini announces his candidacy for the District Six seat on the Governor's Council which encompasses 18 cities and towns including Arlington and Winchester.

A graduate of Cambridge High and Latin Pini is employed by the Cambridge Health Department.

The other cities and towns in District Six are: Cambridge (Wards One through Seven); Somerville, Lexington, Stoneham, Wakefield, Woburn, Boston (East Boston, Charlestown, North End), Saugus, Chelsea, Everett, Melrose, Winthrop, Revere Reading, Malden, Medford, Melrose and Everett.

"I am running for the office of Governor's Council for I feel we desperately need a change. We have all had enough of increasing utility bills, the rise in crime, of state expenditures and the general runaround given to veterans, to name only a few. It is about time that we do something about it.

"Why should we pay for a mistake that the Boston Gas Co. commits? Don't we pay enough as it stands now? Boston Edison, with its Pilgrim I and II, and is becoming a thorn in the sides of the public. When Pilgrim I broke down, who were the first people the company sought to get money from — no one else but its customers. Isn't this always the convenient way out?

"It is definitely about time that we get tough and tell them (utility giants) that we have had enough.

"Crime has been rising at a remarkable rate and will continue to do so unless a strong crime prevention program is designed and implemented. A priority would be to get more up-to-date equipment to fight criminals so that the streets will once again be safe to walk.

"Why can't search warrants be given out over the phone — therefore police can search objects easily and quickly. Judges should give out stiffer sentences so that offenders won't be so apt to repeat their crimes within a matter of time. Haven't we had enough of living in fear and isolation?

"Construction projects have also cost the taxpayers money. We have paid for major firms' flaws. Examples of waste and abuse are omnipresent. When is it ever going to come to an end? Much of the correction work is costing us almost three or four times the original cost of the contract. Haven't we had enough of this lack of workmanship?

"As Governor's Council, I will try my utmost to see that what I have just outlined is addressed. I am also hoping that Governor's Council meetings can become more open to the public in each city and-or town so that more feedback is given to the group. The public should be kept informed. I, like countless others, have simply had enough," said Pini.

Among some of the responsibilities of the Governor's Council members are: approval of judges, approval of the parole board, approval of Dept. of Public Utility officials, and approval of public administrators.

The council members also award state contracts and give pardons for past criminal offenses.

The position is a part-time job. Councilors meet weekly.

Lyons Thanks Voters For Courtesy

James J. Lyons Jr., Democratic candidate for the office of state senator, has released the following statement:

"I would like to take this opportunity to thank you, the voters of Winchester, for the courtesy and hospitality you have shown me during this campaign. As I have visited your neighborhoods and homes, we have discussed the issues of concern to your town, together.

"We have talked about the need for honest, open, and responsible representation on Beacon Hill. And we have looked at some of the specific concerns of the voters of our state senatorial district.

"Perhaps the greatest challenge facing our state today is the need to restore people's faith in the effectiveness and responsiveness of government. Nowhere is this challenge more obvious or important than over the question of how to deal with Proposition 2.5.

"The voters of our state and our district overwhelmingly supported the implementation of Proposition 2.5. The people were saying that our tax burden must be lightened, and government fat must be trimmed.

"Unfortunately, Beacon Hill politicians did not adequately respond to this demand. Instead, they actually increased state spending without streamlining the bloated bureaucracies.

"As your state senator, one of my most important goals will be to reduce the excess and fat in state government. The revenue derived from these reductions can then be used to assist local communities to carry out the will of the electorate by cutting property taxes. This is the only manner in which real and responsible tax relief can be achieved.

"Of course, there are certain areas where state government must respond in a positive fashion. Our goal here must be to see to it that our tax dollars are used effectively and compassionately.

"Certainly, our elderly who have worked and sacrificed all their lives deserve respect, companionship, and a decent standard of living. We cannot and will not turn our backs on this important responsibility.

"Other state programs which must be generously, but efficiently, maintained are those which deal with the physically and mentally handicapped. One of the standards by which we should judge our state government is by its level of concern for those least able to care for themselves."

Lyons is a former Arlington School Committee and Town Meeting member. He also served as chairman of the Arlington Vandalism Committee.

He is the former executive director of Fidelity House Community Center. He is on the Executive Board of the Friends of Fidelity House and an incorporator of the Arlington Boys' and Girls' Club.

Lyons is a businessman who owns and operates a wholesale and retail flower company which employs over 20 individuals.

Lyons was awarded an academic scholarship to Brandeis University, where he earned a bachelor of arts degree in political science. He is married to Bernadette Tortelli Lyons. They own a home on Pleasant st.

Concluding his statement, Lyons said, "Once again, I would like to thank all of those who have given their friendship and support to myself and my wife, Bernadette, during this campaign."

Masterworks Chorale To Hold Auditions For Coming Season

The Masterworks Chorale is about to hold auditions for experienced singers in all sections. Those who are selected will take part in performances of Handel's "Messiah," the Brahms "Requiem," Honegger's "King David," and more.

The chorus draws its members from all of Metropolitan Boston and outlying areas. Winchester singers include Phyllis Knopf, Terry Seferian, Eric Chipman, Richard Pharo and John Zarker. Pharo has served as president of the organization.

Rehearsals take place in Lexington, and performances are held in Sanders Theatre, Cambridge.

The artistic director of the Masterworks Chorale is Allen Lannom, for many years an Associate Professor of Music at Boston University. Lannom is past president of the Eastern Division of the American Choral Directors Association and is currently choral director at the Boston Conservatory of Music and at the University of Lowell.

Prosepective members of the Masterworks Chorale should plan to attend its open rehearsals on Tuesday evenings, Sept. 7 and 14, at 7:45, at Temple Isiah, 55 Lincoln st., Lexington.

Audition materials will be distributed and appointment times arranged. Candidates will be asked to sing a solo of their choice and to demonstrate their skills in sight-reading and in learning music.

For more information, interested singers may phone Jean Croll Ewer, 133 Eliot ave., Newton.

Candidates Night Planned

A special Pre-Primary Candidates' Night is being presented by the League of Women Voters of Arlington on Sept. 7. Senate candidates from the 4th Middlesex Senatorial District (including Arlington, Winchester, Woburn, and Lexington) have been invited to speak on the issues.

Voters will have the opportunity to meet these candidates, hear them speak on the issues which concern us all, and to ask them questions on Sept. 7, at 8 p.m. in the Arlington Town Hall Auditorium, 730 Mass. ave., Arlington.

The League would also like to remind voters that the Democratic and Republican gubernatorial debates will be televised at 8 p.m. on Sept. 1 and Sept. 9, respectively. Both debates are sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts.

'Peter Rabbit' Told On Phone

Those who get tired of repeating "Peter Rabbit" to wide-awake children every night might try dialing 729-5340, the Winchester Junior Library's Story Line.

The story, preceded by timely announcements, is changed weekly and is available at those times when the Junior Library is closed.

A generous donation by the EnKa Society for the telephone answering machine has made this service possible.

Burlington Mall 272-4128 | Liberty Tree Mall 774-6446

Our Managers, Sarah & Wendy

The mynah bird is one of the most entertaining of feathered pets because it can often repeat the words of humans. Although a parrot can also perform this amusing mimicry, the mynah can reproduce human tones as well. This native of southeast Asia and India is usually black with a yellow bill and feet and white patches on its wings. The average size is 8-12 inches long. Although they are easy to train, mynahs are not an easy pet to keep. They are fruit eaters, rather than seed eaters, and their messy droppings require their cages to be cleaned daily. However, this is but a minor inconvenience for a devoted owner whose bird can be the life of the party!

Ask any pet owner about his pet and be prepared to listen to him rave. If a pet can provide the owner with so much enjoyment, it stands to reason that the owner should take the time to provide the pet with the care and attention it deserves. BREEDERS PRIDE PET CARE CENTER, 665 Mass. Ave., Arlington, is the pet place for lovable pets and lovable pet lovers. Our pet care counselors are carefully screened so that we may better serve the needs of pet owners as well as pet breeders. Take a moment today and come visit us. Tel. 643-0195. Open 9-6 Mon., Tues., Wed. & Fri.; till 8 Thurs.; 9-5 Sat. VISA and MasterCard accepted.

P.S.: A bird cage should be large enough to allow the bird to exercise.

VOTE TOUGH ON CRIME

Paul Cavanaugh is running for District Attorney of Middlesex County. He wants to lead a strong, vigorous attack on crime.

He will fight for:

- Mandatory sentencing for repeat felons
- Maximum penalties for those who commit crime while free on bail.
- Cooperation with police and municipal governments to reduce crime on our streets.

And he will see to it that

- Plea bargaining is reduced to a minimum. He won't deal away victims' rights.
- Domestic violence and crimes against women receive the high priority consideration due them.
- Environmental laws are strictly enforced.
- Corrupt public officials are exposed and prosecuted, swiftly and surely.

Paul Cavanaugh knows you want a District Attorney who's tough on crime.

EXTENDING YOUR INVESTMENT

Most modern families now agree that home ownership is the first sound investment in land. And now that more than half of the families own their own homes, many see the wisdom of extending their holdings and realizing a good return from property they own and rent to others.

The value of property keeps pace with the economy, and for many years the trend has been up . . . up . . . up. In fact, real estate values have consistently doubled increases in the Dow Jones average for the past ten years. Judicious investment in income property offers safety and stability, protection against inflation, and opportunity for income, profit and savings in taxes.

But buying income property on your own is risky. When you ask your Realtor about real estate as an investment, you incur no obligation . . . but you will gain information of practical value to you and your family.

CIVIL WAR Unit looking for members: The 5th Massachusetts Battery is made up of people in the Greater Boston area interested in the Civil War. There are two divisions: (1) competition shooting divisions which is a North-South Skirmish Association unit that competes in team matches with a full-sized muzzleloading cannon as well as with muskets, carbines and revolvers of the pre-1865 era. And (2) the "chowder and marching division" which takes part in parades, battle re-enactments, and authentic living history demonstrations. You can join either or both depending on your interests. The musket and carbine shooting events involve team shooting at breakable targets with the shortest elapsed time determining the winning team. It's fun if you're interested in black powder shooting. For further information contact 5th Mass. Battery, John Humphrey, 195 West st., Reading, or Al Goscinak, 27 Washington st., Charlestown, by phone or mail. 3.19TF

Fisher Junior College Scholarships Available

The Board of Trustees of Fisher Junior College has appropriated $3,000 in trustee scholarships to be distributed to the students of the Winchester extension.

Dr. Richard A. Boudreau, president of Fisher Junior College, stated, "This $3,000 in scholarship money will be a tremendous help in meeting the financial needs of qualified students due to the hardships caused by the government cutbacks in students loans and scholarships."

All citizens of the Winchester area who are interested in furthering their education are urged to apply for this trustee scholarship by contacting Cynthia Bosnian, admissions counselor, at the Fisher Junior College offices at Wichester High School. Office hours are Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Next term begins Sept. 13.

Volunteers To Help In Cancer Survey

During the first two weeks of Sepetember, volunteers from the Winchester area will be assisting the American Cancer Society in its present research program, Cancer Prevention Study II.

Each volunteer will call upon 10 families to gather information that will help identify the relationship between environmental and life style factors and the development of cancer. These families will be interviewed every two years for the next six years following the initial interview.

The questionnaire used by the volunteer will touch upon saccharine, hair dyes, exposure to low-level readiation, water and air pollution, occupational exposures, "passive smoking" including exposure to cigarette smoke in places other than at home with a smoker, the possible role of many foodstuffs, and the role of social relationships.

More than one million people will participate, 32,000 of them in this state.

But it is also important that he appear confident and straightforward to The Public. For, Rotondi finds, the majority will give the pol an even shake.

Today's North Station hit is successful in Rotondi's view because few commuters miss seeing his name or face, and many either take his hand amiably or even spend a few moments talking with him. Many off the Winchester trains stop to remind him of old family ties or friendships with kin.

"That guy used to work for my father, tarring roofs," he says of one man.

Rotondi estimates having reached, one way or other, almost 1000, maybe 1500, commuters. More, he believes, than would remember him strictly from TV spots. For the candidate, it is worth the two hours of breathing in fumes chugged out by each rush-hour train.

On the way to the next appointment, Rotondi highlights the creative tension of meeting the public so directly.

For The Public to remember the candidate, he or she must make the connection, Rotondi will tell you. It is necessary to listen closely to those solicited, to be all concentration, always aware.

"He'll b.s. with you in the car about anything you want, but you'll never see him let down out there," says Fitzgerald.

Rotondi says that intensity is as much out of respect for the listener as for his own ends.

"I like to give something back to my listener. I also like people, when many in this business don't. There's a lot of body language in it all, too; people know if you like them or not.

"It must be painful (for those pols) who don't like people. Very painful."

"It's difficult to put yourself out in the public, I'm still not used to it."

But at the next appearance, a hit at a picnic for elderly citizens at Harvard Yard in Cambridge, that difficulty seems to give way to genuine affection. This is politics, but Rotondi seems genuine.

Beneath the wide ceiling of dark green leaves, round card tables covered with white linen dot the yard. Groups of senior citizens sit at the tables, stand, or socialize around them.

The shade from the trees cools Rotondi, who dives in among a cluster of chatting women, shirt sleeves rolled up and smile on. At 10 a.m. the sun is already working toward the afternoon eighties, but Rotondi is still fresh.

"Hi, how are you today? I'm Sam Rotondi."

Some he approaches are shy and show it, yet a thin-lipped frown often turns up into a polite, sometimes relieved smile. These are people who want to be talked to.

"It's weird, you have to be careful sometimes. If you don't talk to someone, you really can offend them," says Rotondi.

So Rotondi connects, with a handshake, unblinking eye and smile of his own. The smile stands well in the boyish look of his face, with the classically Irish eyes (the name Rotondi comes from his Italian father, his maternal grandmother's name was Mulrenan.)

Sometimes Rotondi opens with a line that proclaims one of the major themes of the day and the campaign: "I'm Sam Rotondi and I'm one of 13 kids."

He likes to stress this statistic. He believes that growing up in such a large family taught him to work for his achievements, respect the work of his parents in raising so many children and, most importantly, feel strongly about family.

"And," he says, "to people who have spent their lives raising families, family is important."

"Family is important to Sam," adds Fitzgerald. "All b.s.ing aside, it's probably the most important thing in Sam's life."

By the time Rotondi says goodbye to those volunteers who have handed out literature in Harvard Yard, he is beginning to wear down just a bit.

"That was a hard hit," he says. "Trying to capture people's attention is really exhausting. It really is."

He never let on.

One of the surprises of the Harvard Yard hit for Rotondi was that no other candidate for Lieutenant Governor was there. Some workers for Evelyn Murphy handed out literature, but the lack of representation on the whole was, in Rotondi's shoe-leather view, "inexcusable."

He also credits his own political organization for being on top of things.

"I had Peggy Spangler, my elderly coordinator, there. That's very effective.

"She talks to the leaders, and that says to them, 'he's sensitive to our needs.' It helps, believe me."

The next appearance is more than an hour's drive from Cambridge — Salisbury Beach amusement park on the North Shore, Senior Citizens day. The political representation here is more substantial. There are Murphy people, Lois Pines people, and local pols doing the hit. Dukakis makes a brief appearance — as does his son — and "I'M A KING FAN" fans are a big splash with elderly women shading themselves from the sun which is now in its full grin at one o'clock.

Despite the heat, the Rotondi people are prepared for this hit. For two hours prior to his arrival, his three sisters and a friend of the family have been handing out pamphlets, putting people at ease, and getting them to look forward to their candidate's arrival.

Rotondi again begins to shake hands. He doesn't hurry. If someone wants to know, "do you know so-and-so from Revere (where much of the Rotondi clan resides)?" he stays to find out. It can take a while, but he believes in making that kind of "connection."

Not long into this hit, he begins to realize that there's political gold in this crowd; he knows many friends of these people, their children or their political representatives from their home towns.

"Kevin Burke? He was in my wedding ..."

It goes well. Despite the heat, noise, litter and almost ruin-like nature of Salisbury Park, "The Public" is receptive to Rotondi, laughing with him and, at times, flirting.

"I'm putting you right here, Sam," howled one hefty woman, placing a ROTONDI sticker within the fold of her blouse. Rotondi smiled.

Back in the car, Fitzgerald is looking a little woozy from the sun and not having eaten anything today but a piece of fried dough. Rotondi is starting to wilt as well, but right now, pulling out of the parking lot past assorted ROTONDI, DUKAKIS and MURPHY signs, he's elated.

"It was a great hit, and GREAT advance job by my sisters. We met everyone in the place, drew a connection with almost everyone there...

"When you're with the elderly, you have to speak to them. They're here to relax, so you have to do something other than solicit; we talked about family.

"I relaxed, my body relaxed."

One conversation with an elderly woman, who did not look very healthy or up to the commotion and socializing of the day, particularly impressed Rotondi.

"She began speaking articulately about living on $400 a month social security, after 27 years of work.

"I yielded to her; candidates come on talking about conditions in society, and this was a condition of society being shown to me.

"Great hit."

On Route 1 South, there is a notable silence from the candidate and his driver. The air conditioner cools the interior of the car just enough to soften the atmosphere. Politics have receded, Rotondi's contentment with the Salisbury appearance provides all that is necessary for the moment. The most complicated issue at this point is to decide where to eat.

The choice, out of convenience and beastial disregard for the fine points, is Burger King. A bacon cheeseburger and Coke do just fine.

Rotondi lays into the burger firmly, not outdone, however, by the younger Fitzgerald. The two are well matched, about the same height, with the same clean look of the pol. Both are dressed in blue cotton suits, blue shirts and red ties. Even their midriffs are similarly expansive, though Rotondi has a little edge over Fitzgerald there.

Fitzgerald has been Rotondi's driver and aide since midwinter, after he met the candidate at a political party. Having worked in the past for Congressmen Robert Drinan and Barney Frank, he found Rotondi's politics to be responsible, well-thought-out, and moderate. Although the 26-year-old Fitzgerald does not get paid for his time, he believes the knowledge and experience of serving as a campaign aide will pay off in the future: he starts his first year at Suffolk Law School this month.

Rotondi also went to Suffolk, and is a mere ten years older than Fitzgerald. At 36, a young man, Rotondi is already philosophical about political fate.

"I don't know what it would do to me to lose (in the primary), but when I'm old and gray and sitting in a rocking chair, I'll know I tried. I did it."

"You won't believe the visibility we're going to now," says Rotondi, back in the car on the way to Boston again. This, in Rotondi campaign parlance, is today's MEGAviz, the visibility of visibilities.

A MEGAviz is only a small step short of what the Rotondi campaign staff also like to call a slam-dunk. The slam-dunk consists of an all-out saturation of a high visibility opportunity.

Campaign workers carry the largest posters in the Rotondi arsenal, they hand out thousands as opposed to hundreds of pamphlets, and Rotondi and Fitzgerald work the crowd — politely, but they work the crowd.

But Leverett Circle, the rotary at the end of Storrow Drive in Boston (near the Science Museum), is the site of today's MEGAviz.

One huge paper sign hangs over the rotary island from a pedestrian overpass, and catches the wind like a sail. Five campaign workers hold up the red ROTONDI posters and wave to motorists. And Rotondi, along with Fitzgerald, begins running up and down the center of Storrow Drive.

As the rush hour lines of traffic stop on a policeman's command, Rotondi runs up to the unsuspecting commuter's window, offers a pamphlet and has just enough time to say:

"Hi, I'm Sam Rotondi ..."

He has 30 to 45 seconds to run as far up Storrow as he can before the traffic starts moving again.

"You really have to be careful," Rotondi says. "You're asking someone to roll down the window and let the air conditioning out. They're listening to tunes."

Is this worth it?

"Today's traffic is moving a little fast for us, but I'd still say we reached nearly two thousand people in an hour and a half." Two thousand more who, Rotondi hopes, will see the TV ad, then see him running at them on Storrow Drive in a campaign for state wide office. Name recognition.

At eight p.m. in Winchester, the people greeting Rotondi know him. Rotondi has spent a couple of hours at home after the MEGAviz and he's ready to meet his local supporters at the Knights of Columbus hall.

About two hundred people show up at $10 a head for the cocktail party.

"This party," says Rotondi, "is for my Winchester supporters."

He also takes the opportunity to give the gathering his own pep talk, professing faith in his campaign style, thanking his family, who "have ben vital in this face."

He gives capsule treatment to the thrust of his platform — that he is "a team player, capable of working with any governor" — and highlights some of his achievements in the Senate.

Rotondi says nothing new here, especially to those already familiar with him and his politics. But in this game of name recognition — when less than one-third of the state's voters know the name of any candidate for lieutenant governor — one cannot be too hesitant to repeat, 'This is me.'

enough to work with either Dukakis or King as governor, and that his six years of experience in the state senate would enable him to provide a "vital link" between the executive and the legislative branches.

"A lack of a relationship between governor and lieutenant governor definitely hurt this state," Rotondi says of the animosity between O'Neill and King over the last four years.

Rotondi describes himself as a moderate, and his Democratic opponents as "three ultra-liberals" and "one ultra-conservative."

Rotondi considers himself strong on women's issues, having supported the Massachusetts ERA as well as bills designed to protect women's "real" interest in joint ownership of property, to increase the number of successful rape convictions, to provide women with legal recourse in cases of family abuse and to provide greater equity for women seeking pension benefits.

Rotondi takes pride in the 1981 Civil Service Reform bill which, according to Rotondi, is designed in part to give women fair access to civil service positions along with war veterans as well as to clean up "duplication and waste" in the old system.

On crime, Rotondi supports a "comprehensive, uniform sentencing procedure which will create a level of expectancy of swift and certain punishment for those who consider violating our laws." He has filed the victim's rights bill and is seeking legislation to indemnify police officers from personal lawsuits stemming from incidents caused by the officers "lawful disposition of their duties."

Rotondi supports the Ward Commission's recommendations to reform the awarding of public building contracts, is one of the original sponsors of the Judicial Complaint Commission, and "worked to establish the first code of ethics in the history of the State Senate" as well as an independent ethics commission.

He coauthored the elderly abatement bill, designed to protect senior citizens from high property taxes and 100 percent evaluation, and worked to pass legislation to prevent abuse of elderly in nursing homes.

When asked to describe himself during Sunday night's television debate between the five Democratic candidates for lieutenant governor, Rotondi said, "Like a Ghandi, I'm a practical idealist."

Newcomers Club To Hold First Meeting Of Season

Winchester Newcomers Club will be holding its first meeting of the season at 7:45 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 9 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Botz, 15 Berkshire drive.

Men and women who have moved into Winchester within the past three years are invited to attend this first meeting and to consider membership. Officers of the club will welcome newcomers and preview forthcoming programs and social activities.

The club will be welcoming representatives from the League of Women Voters, Friends of the Winchester Hospital, Winchester Art Association, The Winchester Library and the Winchester Trails who will each give a description of their own organization's activities.

Newcomers Club is an organization for men and women which, in addition to monthly meetings and varied social functions, runs bridge, tennis, diner's club and arts and crafts groups. Daytime activities include monthly coffee mornings and luncheons.

Additional information about Newcomers may be obtained from Carolyn Mingo, 43 Jefferson rd., or Carol Andrus, 134 Arlington st.

William F. Dobbins

William F. Dobbins, 29, son of James J. and Dorothy E. Dobbins of 1 Swan rd., died in an automobile accident Aug. 27 in Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. Dobbins was returning from Dallas, Texas, where he had been visiting friends.

The accident occurred at 9:30 p.m. Mr. Dobbins never regained consciousness and died at 11:30 p.m.

A funeral mass was celebrated at St. Mary's Church yesterday. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetary.

Mr. Dobbins was a graduate of Winchester High School, class of 1971, and the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, in 1975.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by his sisters, Patricia Osborn of Manchester, N.H., Mary Hintlian of Reading, Rita McGoldrick of Lynnfield, Dorothy and Maura of Winchester; four brothers, James Jr. of Waltham, Mark of Boston, and Christopher and John of Winchester; and his maternal grandfather, former Milford police chief William F.X. Fitzpatrick of Milford.

Mary E. Manzie

Mary E. (Rogers) Manzie, 91, formerly of 10 Bridge st., died Aug. 24 in Winchester Hospital following a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Manzie was a life-long resident of Winchester and graduated from the Winchester school system.

She was a member of the St. Mary's Ladies Sodality, and of the Winchester Grange.

The widow of Waldo B. Manzie, she is survived by her son, Francis Manzie; her grandchildren, Evelyn N. Gabriel and Elizabeth Mello of Plymouth, Francis Manzie Jr. of Nelson st., Daniel Brennan of Methuen, Edward Brennan of Bridge st., Lee Laurin of Florida and David Belisle of Maryland, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held Aug. 27 from the Lane Funeral Home, and were followed by a funeral mass in St. Mary's Church.

Burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Woburn. Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Theodore Baxter

Fourteen-year resident Theodore W. Baxter of Bigelow ave. died Aug. 29 at Winchester Hospital at the age of 84.

Mr. Baxter was educated in Syracuse, N.Y. He was vice president of the Waterloo Bank in Waterloo, N.Y., from 1961 to 1968, and served with other banks in Syracuse.

Mr. Baxter was a member of the Winchester Rotary Club which named him Man of the Year in 1979. The following year he received the Paul Harris Fellow Award from Rotary. For many years he was in charge of the Rotary Barn fundraising project. He was also a 32nd Degree Mason.

Mr. Baxter is survived by his wife, Harriet M. (Melvin) Baxter; daughter, Mary B. Barger of Winchester; and two grandchildren, Jeffrey and Melissa Barger of Winchester.

Private funeral services were held. Lane Funeral Home was in a charge of arrangements.

Memorial donations may be sent to the Winchester Rotary Club, 573 Main st.

Obituaries

Vivian O. Allen

Funeral services will be held today for Vivian O. Allen, 70, who died unexpectedly on Aug. 30.

Mrs. Allen, a resident of Westley st., died at Winchester Hospital after suffering a heart attack.

She was a native of Arlington and attended Arlington schools. She had lived in Winchester for 50 years.

Mrs. Allen was a member of Immaculate Conception Church and the Senior Citizens of Winchester.

She is survived by her husband, Charles P. Allen of Winchester; children, Capt. Norman J. Delorey of the Winchester Fire Dept., Roger Allen of North Carolina, and Patricia Allen of Brookline; and four grandchildren.

Mrs. Allen was the sister of Elmer Widell of Lynn, Albert Widell of Nashua, N.H., John Widell of Lynn, Connie Miley of New Hampshire and the late Viola Hannon.

The funeral will be held from the Lane Funeral Home at 9:15 with funeral mass at 10 at Immaculate Conception Church. Burial will be at Wildwood Cemetery.

Family Service Accredited

Family Service Assn. of Greater Boston has just received a Certificate of Accreditation from the Council on Accreditation of Services for Families and Children in New York. The Lexington office of Family Service Assn., located at 175 Bedford st., serves Winchester.

Accreditation, which is for a four year period, means that the agency has met certain requirements which ensure quality service. According to Ellen Widen, unit director of the Lexington office, "'Accreditation provides assurance that the agency is performing services which the community needs, is conducting its operations effectively, and is managing its funds wisely.''

The accreditation procedure involved a detailed self-study of agency programs, staffing and management.

Founded in 1835, Family Service Assn. of Greater Boston is a human service agency providing a range of supportive services to individuals and families in 38 metropolitan communities. The Lexington office, serving Lexington, Bedford, Winchester, Burlington and Woburn, operates a Center for Counseling which offers individual, group, couple and family counseling to people who live and work in these towns. The unit also provides educational workshops on topics such as stress management and couples communication.

Lexington's Family Service office is open Monday from 9 a.m. - 6 p.m., Tuesday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. - 9 p.m., and Thursday and Friday from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Fees for service are set on a sliding scale, with health insurance accepted.

Puffer Insurance President James Haley

James E. Haley, owner and president of the Luther W. Puffer Jr. Insurance Co. of Winchester, died Aug. 29 at the age of 71.

Mr. Haley died at Winchester Hospital after a short illness. He lived on Hillcrest pkwy.

He was a lifelong resident of Winchester, attending local schools. He graduated from Winchester High School in 1930 and from New Hampton Preparatory School in New Hampshire in 1931.

He was owner of the insurance company for many years and was a member of the President's Club of Kemper Insurance Co. He was a U.S. Army veteran with service in World War Two.

In addition, Mr. Haley was a member of the Winchester Rotary Club, Winchester Lodge of Elks 1445 and Veterans of Foreign Wars Aberjona Post 3719.

Mr. Haley is survived by his wife, Dorothy M. (Drewson) Haley, and son, Keith D. Puffer of Winchester. He was the brother of Frank Haley of Scituate and Mary Carey of Brewster. He had three grandchildren.

The funeral was held yesterday from the Lane Funeral Home, with funeral mass celebrated at St. Mary's Church. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to the Jimmy Fund or to the charity of one's choice.

Hewis Memoriam

Arthur J. Hewis Jr.

1977 1982

It seems like only yesterday
When God took you away
Five years went by so very fast
We miss you so today.
All we have are memories Dear
Of times when you were near
We often sit and reminisce
And wish that you were here.

Sometimes I think I hear your knock
Or hear you call my name
Life is so very different now
It just can't be the same.
We know you're very happy now
Since you are in God's care
We all must leave this world someday
And we shall meet you there.

Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by Your Wife, Children, and Grandchildren

★Bridge

for the bridge repairs.

"It was in the best interest of the town, the residents and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for the construction to cease," said Saltmarsh. "There was no point in having a bridge built over an abandoned railroad — the town would have had maintenance problems for years to come."

When the abandonment of the railroad line was first dicussed, B&M officials and town officials speculated the process would take two years.

Saltmarsh went through the major steps in that process in two months.

Saltmarsh began with the B&M management, pressuring it to get its abandonment application to the ICC in Washington. By the end of June, only two weeks after the bridge construction was halted, the application was on its way to D.C., according to Saltmarsh.

Saltmarsh waited a month for the ICC to act, and then got moving himself.

"In early August, it didn't seem there was any action in Washington," said Saltmarsh. "On Aug. 5, I bought a plane ticket to Washington out of my own pocket and went to the ICC."

By Aug. 13, the ICC had approved the abandonment request, Sailtmarsh said.

With the approval of the ICC, said Saltmarsh, only three steps remained before the railroad line could be abandoned.

First, a federal district court judge will decide on the abandonment during a Boston hearing Sept. 8.

During the hearing, the judge will hear any objections to the abandonment, Saltmarsh said. The 30-day period for filing objections ended Sunday, noted Saltmarsh, and only one protest was lodged.

The railroad union, he said, filed the sole objection "which they do whenever one of these abandonments happens nationally." Neither of the two Woburn firms which use the freight line, have objected, Saltmarsh said.

Once the hearing is over, the MBTA, which owns the rail line and the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration must approve the abandonment of the line, he said.

"Getting them to sign off (on the abandonment) shouldn't be any problem," Saltmarsh assured the selectmen.

But Saltmarsh added he is not waiting for those signatures before getting ready to build the embankment.

The Winchester representative said that at his urging, the state Department of Public Works has assigned an engineer to draw up plans for the new roadway and write up specifications so the project can go out for bids.

"They were going to turn it over to a consultant, and you know that takes a lot of time," said Saltmarsh. "But I spoke to Public Works and they agreed to do the engineering in-house."

Saltmarsh said he didn't expct the bids to go out until September, and added "I doubt that the project will be done before winter.

"But I frankly doubted whether the other construction (the repair of the bridge) could have been done before winter either," Saltmarsh said.

★Taxes

Andersen said he would prefer to finish the abatement reviews, then move on to the fall tax bils.

"My gut feeling as an assessor is to get through '82 before going on to '83," said Andersen.

But the selectmen and Carlson, insisted that getting out the next tax bills should be the assessors' priority.

In any case, Carlson said, the assessors could probably get through all but 75 abatements before Oct. 1.

★Hearing

commission will decide the case within six months. The decision may be appealed to the Middlesex Superior Court.

Mary Pronski of Washington st., a Town Meeting member and former School Committee chairman, also testified in Hewis's behalf Thursday. WHA members J. Henry Van Dyke and Edward F. Stepper, and John F. Murphy of Richardson st., the husband of WHA chairman Mary Murphy, testified against Hewis last Thursday.

In his closing arguments, Hewis's attorney claimed she was fired not because she did not perform her job adequately, but because she did not get along with Murphy — an unacceptable reason for dismissal of a public employee.

The WHA has the responsibility of proving that members acted properly when they voted to dismiss Hewis.

"What's before this court is to determine if the firing was for just reasons," Witkin said. "Were this the private sector and the employee and employer did not get along, fine, then fire the employee and make up the reasons afterwards.

"But I suggest that this is exactly what has happened in this case except that the law protects the public sector," he continued. "She is entitled to her job unless she is guilty of gross misconduct. But there was not one single instance of that."

Witkin tried to establish that the WHA was ruled by the "iron hand" of Murphy who he said created policies as she saw fit whenever she saw fit.

WHA attorney David Barry, however, called Hewis the woman with the iron hand and said she only followed WHA policies and directions when she wanted to and displayed obvious contempt toward board members.

"I would not suggest that it (Hewis's dismissal) was due to a personality conflict," Barry said. "I suggest that anyone who disregards procedures and instructions and takes the view that certain things she does not agree with should not occur is guilty of insubordination and disregard for procedure.

"I think her repeated lack of performance and her insubordination in many instances is more than sufficient to justify her dismissal," he added.

Murphy testified Aug. 18 that Hewis gave priority to her mother's public housing application. The other 10 reasons cited for Hewis's termination are that she violated WHA policies by:

Improper upkeep of the minutes of WHA meetings; failure to notify WHA members before she left the office: failure to distribute copies of mail correspondence to WHA members; circulation of notices to tenants without WHA approval; failure to post notice of WHA public meetings; improper maintenance of WHA financial records; incorrect calculation of rents; failure to properly supervise building maintenance; and removal of office equipment without permission.

Hewis denied all the charges against her.

Testifying for Hewis, Doucette said Thursday that Hewis performed her job "admirably" while he served on the WHA. Doucette also said he decided not to run for office on the WHA again in 1981 because he did not "philosophically" agree with its methods of operation.

"Miss Hewis carried on her actions in a very reputable manner," Doucette testified. "It's the type of job that requires a lot of patience. . . .

She handled the tenant relations in good fashion," he continued. "She had good administrative ability and I had no reason to believe she was doing anything but a commendable job."

Doucette added that when he attended the WHA May 10 hearing on Hewis's dismissal, it appeared that WHA members had reached their decision before the hearing. He also said that WHA claims that Hewis showed "repeated disregard" for following policies were exaggerated and therefore offended him.

"I listened to the allegations and the plurality of each charge and to what I consider to be the exaggerations," Doucette said. "The use of the words 'repeated and many' in the allegations offends me.

"I heard repeated exaggeration of the words 'many times,' of the word 'never' in reference to her performing functions. Those words have no place in objective testimony of a charge. I think they're - speeches."

Doucette said he found Hewis's dismissal was in line with other actions which had come to characterize the authority in the latter term of his office.

"I see political ramifications to this that I've not been subjected to in all my years of political life in Winchester," Doucette testified. "I see a persuasion by the chairman to other authority members as to her point of view. That's perfectly OK, but I object to the way in which it was done. Phone calls before meetings to explain her point of view to us. In fact, I made a motion at one meeting that nothing of importance was to be discussed over the phone before meetings.

"I felt I was a voice calling in the wilderness during the latter part of my time on the authority," he continued. "There's a saying that if you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen. And I did.

"Winchester's town government is very non-partisan and the things that went on in the WHA offended me philosophically," he added. "I didn't want to be a part of that."

Chairman Murphy testified Aug. 18 that Hewis placed her mother's applications before others on a waiting list for public housing. After Hewis was dismissed, Murphy claimed, WHA members found applications which had never been processed.

Murphy also testified that Hewis usurped Murphy's power by sending in her mother's application to the state Executive Office of Communities and Development, (EOCD) rather than asking Murphy to send it in. Under EOCD guidelines, applications for relatives must be sent to that office for a waiver when the applicant's name nears the top of the waiting list.

There has been conflicting testimony about who is responsible for applying to the EOCD for a waiver.

Doucette testified that he did not think Hewis tried to give her mother's application an advantage over others.

"Knowing the background of the relationship between Mrs. Murphy and Miss Hewis it might have been more politic for Miss Hewis to have had Mrs. Murphy send in the application," Doucette began. "But knowing that tenuous relations existed, she'd be foolish to do anything nefarious or underhanded, knowing it would be subject to scrutiny.

"It just seems incongruous that that girl would do something to advance the cause of her mother," he added.

Hewis is accused of borrowing office equipment without asking Murphy for permission. During testimony Aug. 18, Hewis stated that she borrowed tables and chairs for a wake at her home, but returned them in good condition. She further stated that it was "common practice" for members to borrow tables, chairs and tools.

Last Thursday WHA members Murphy and Van Dyke testified that they never borrowed tools. Hewis had said that Van Dyke borrowed a hedge clipper and Murphy borrowed a ladder.

Van Dyke testified that the decision to fire Hewis resulted after many instances of misconduct.

"I would say this dismissal was not made up overnight," he said. "She (Hewis) left a lot to be desired. There were times when the office should have been occupied and it was not.

When asked by Barry whether or not he was "out to get" Hewis, Van Dyke became enraged.

"Absolutely not," he cried. "I have four daughters, and in the twilight of my life, I don't want to go down as a head-chopper."

Hewis is accused of failing to follow orders from WHA members to insert items in the minutes of meetings. Hewis testified Aug. 18 that members often asked her to insert information in the minutes about actions which did not take place at meetings.

Under cross examination from Witkin, Van Dyke said he had asked Hewis to insert information from a telephone conversation in the minutes. Witkin produced a note from Van Dyke to Hewis informing her about a vote which had taken place and requesting Hewis to insert the outcome of the vote in the minutes.

"What minutes of what meetings reflect a vote of that action?" Witkin asked.

"That was a vote on the phone," Van Dyke answered.

"A majority vote on the phone," Witkin probed.

"It was on the phone and confirmed at a subsequent meeting," Van Dyke said. He added, however, that he could not recall the meeting during which the vote was confirmed.

Pronski testified that she looked through the minutes after Hewis was fired to try to determine why that action had occurred. She said the minutes were all in order as late as Aug. 10, and that they did not reflect a dissatisfaction with Hewis's conduct.

WHA member Stepper testified that he was informed by a housing applicant's relative that an application had not been processed. Under questioning from Witkin, Stepper said he did not know whether or not the applicant was eligible for WHA housing, but maintained that the name should have been placed on a list.

Town Granted $331,000 From State For New Sidewalks

By DAVE LEECO

The state gave Winchester's downtown revitalization effort a $331,000 boost this week.

In a ceremony at Town Hall Thursday, state Transportation Sec. James Carlin presented the town with the $331,000 grant to be used to install new sidewalks throughout downtown Winchester.

With the money, the town will not only be able to install new sidewalks, but repave sidewalk crosswalks, plant trees, and build small pedestrian malls at six downtown corners, according to Economic Development Coordinator John Connery.

And those improvements, Connery hopes, will spark a new interest in doing business downtown.

"This fits in so well with the timing of the whole revitalization program," said Connery of the grant. "By spring, we'll have the physical improvements to the downtwown along with the parking plan. Last year, we did a lot of work on the zoning and the incentives for bringing in business.

"When you put all those things together, you have a revitalization program," he said. "And that's when the private market and the town boards can take over and run."

The town applied for the state grant in June, asking for part of the $40 million in the state's new Public Works Economic Development Program.

But that request would have stayed buried in the files of the Executive Office of Transportation and Construction if not for the tenacity of Winchester's state representative, Sherman W. "Whip" Saltmarsh.

Secretary Carlin explained at Town Hall that 84 requests for funds under the program were sorted into three piles, in order of most importance. Winchester's request was in the bottom pile.

Fill Leaves Amberwood As Kids Head For School

Developer Begins To Remove Tainted Fill

By DAVE LEECO

Once again this week, trucks began hauling gray clay fill over the streets of Amberwood Estates. This time, however, the trucks were carrying the fill away from the neighborhood.

Crews began removing the chemically contaminated fill from Amberwood dr. Tuesday, nearly four months after the gray clay was first brought in from an excavation at the MBTA Alewife transit station in Cambridge.

Selectman Alan Macdonald said that developer Felix J. Pittorino expects to finish removing the fill in 10 days — well beyond the Sept. 7 deadline set by the Board of Health for removing the fill.

The Board of Health ordered the fill removed on July 7, after it discovered the fill contained traces of 16 potentially hazardous chemicals.

Officials suspect the chemicals came from the W.R. Grace waste disposal site, located over the MBTA tunnel excavation. The Grace site has been classified as "a confirmed hazardous waste site" by the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering.

However, the fill remained on Amberwood while the board tried to locate Pittorino, who was out of the state when the order to remove the fill in 10 days was given.

The board extended that deadline, once it reached Pittorino, to give the developer a chance to present his case on why the fill should not be removed.

On Aug. 16, the board decided that the case was not good enough, and ordered the fill removed by July 27. That deadline was extended to Sept. 7, after Pittorino wrote the board he was having difficulty finding a site to bring the fill to.

Last week, Pittorino finally found that site and his crews began using heavy machinery to get the fill out of Winchester.

While the removal is going on, Health Director Steve Weinstein will check the work to make sure dust from the fill is not flying off the trucks taking the material from Amberwood.

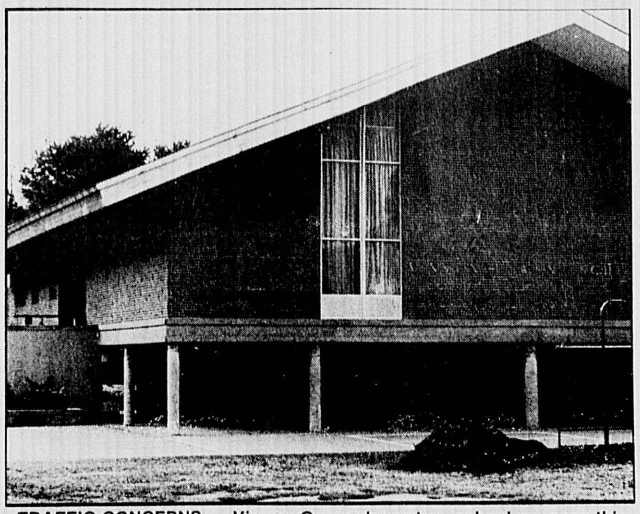
At the July 7 hearing when the Board of Health banned the fill, an environmental engineer from the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) told the board members that dust from the fill posed the greatest health risk.

The EPA's Pat Hynes said that the chemicals in the fill were likely to be contained in the dust, and that breathing that dust could be hazardous.

In its order to remove the fill, the Board of Health noted that "all efforts should be taken to minimize dust production throughout the entire operation."

To make sure those efforts were made, Weinstein was sitting in his car on Amberwood dr. Tuesday morning, watching the first truckloads of fill leave the development.

"I'm going to follow the trucks around, to see what routes they're taking, and if they're leaving dust on the roads," said Weinstein. "If there is a lot of dust, we'll ask them to wet down the roads and the truckloads."



TRAFFIC CONCERNS — Vinson Owen elementary school reopens this week, but chemically-contaminated landfill still sits on nearby Amberwood dr. lots. The fill was supposed to be gone by the start of school, but the process was delayed. That delay inspired parents, teachers, and town officials to increase the protection to the children walking to and from school and to restrict the areas available for play during recess. Parents Fear Dust From Fill Will Harm Pupils

Worried parents sent their children off to their first days at the Vinson-Owen School this week, knowing that their children would be walking along streets as trucks laden with the chemically contaminated fill from Amberwood dr. roared by.

For the next 10 days, a backhoe will be digging the fill out of two Amberwood building lots 1,200 feet from the school. Trucks carrying the fill will be headed down Johnson rd. as the kids are walking to their classes.

Many Vinson-Owen parents fear dust from the digging and the trucking will be breathed by their children.

Most of the parents feel the fill shouldn't still be on Amberwood.

"I'm outraged at how the process has been dragging on," said Kathrine Winterer of Thornberry rd. Winterer, who has one child attending Vinson-Owen, said she has been involved "on and off" in the battle to get the fill removed since last May.

"It dragged on through the entire summer — our initial objective was to get the fill out before school ended last year," said Winterer. "With them removing it now, it poses a potential health hazard of kids walking through airborne chemicals.

"The kids will be exposed to the dust while they're in school, and when they're walking home from school," she said. "I would love to see parents keep their kids out of school until they take the fill out of the area."

School and town officials are taking steps to cut down on problems from the fill removal, and ease the fears of parents such as Winterer.

Vinson-Owen Principal Clare Corcoran explained she was "trying to take precautions" to keep the kids away from any dust from the fill removal.

"We will not have recess this week, so kids will not be outside during the school hours," she explained. "All phys ed classes will be held inside as well, in the gym."

Corcoran said one end of the building will be closed off, so pupils must all enter by the same door. At the door, they will wipe their feet on mats so dust won't be tracked into the school.

Teachers will also discuss the Amberwood situation with their students, and warn them not to linger around the school after classes have ended.

"The teachers will talk with the kids and tell them to be careful to walk right home after school," said Corcoran. "We want them to be careful not to be playing around the school, or around Amberwood dr.

"But it's hard to tell kids not to go up

Loring Ave. Resident Drowns In Town's North Reservoir

By SUSAN SCHNECK

After almost two days of extensive searching for a missing 22-year-old Loring ave. man, MDC police scuba divers pulled the body of John Breen from the depths of the water in the North Reservoir Sunday afternoon.

Middlesex County Medical Examiner, Dr. Jacob Peretsman ruled that the cause of death was accidental drowning.

Breen was first reported missing Saturday morning at 2:30 following a disagreement with his girlfriend. According to police, the girl looked for Breen and when she was unable to find him, ran to a Highland ave. home and Winchester Hospital and told them what happened.

Police then received calls informing them that Breen had run into the Fells with a knife and threatened suicide. According to police, Breen, a Woburn mechanic and former United States Marine Corps corporal, had been very depressed recently.

Concerned residents, town employees and state police searched the Fells and surrounding areas for nearly 35 hours before the hunt was moved to the water. Twenty minutes later, MDC scuba divers found the body.

"We tried to eliminate all possibilities of his being on land first, but it became obvious that if we were going to find him, we'd have to look in the water," said Police Sgt. William Saraco. "Going in the water is such a longshot that we exhaust all other possibilities first."

The search began at sunrise Saturday after police received the phone calls from the Highland ave. resident, Winchester Hospital and Breen's father reporting that Breen was missing.

All surrounding police departments were notified and Winchester police, firefighters and auxiliary police immediately began scouring the Fells area. They were joined by Breen's family, friends, police and fire department officers, auxiliary police, public works department employees, MDC police and many concerned residents.

Dispatcher Pat Deureli sent out a missing person teletype to area police departments and police checked to determine whether Breen had been picked up by police in nearby towns. The search continued into the night Saturday until darkness made vision impossible and the hunt was temporarily called off.

Early Sunday morning, the hunt resumed. Officer Richard Fisher took up the search in the Fells area and Officers Kevin Mawn and Richard Anselmo periodically checked the perimeters of the wooded areas. Firefighters John Nash and Fire Lt. John Freitas searched the shore line with the Fire Dept. boat. Auxiliary Police Chief Donald Halpin and two of his officers searched the area and assisted police with crowd control.

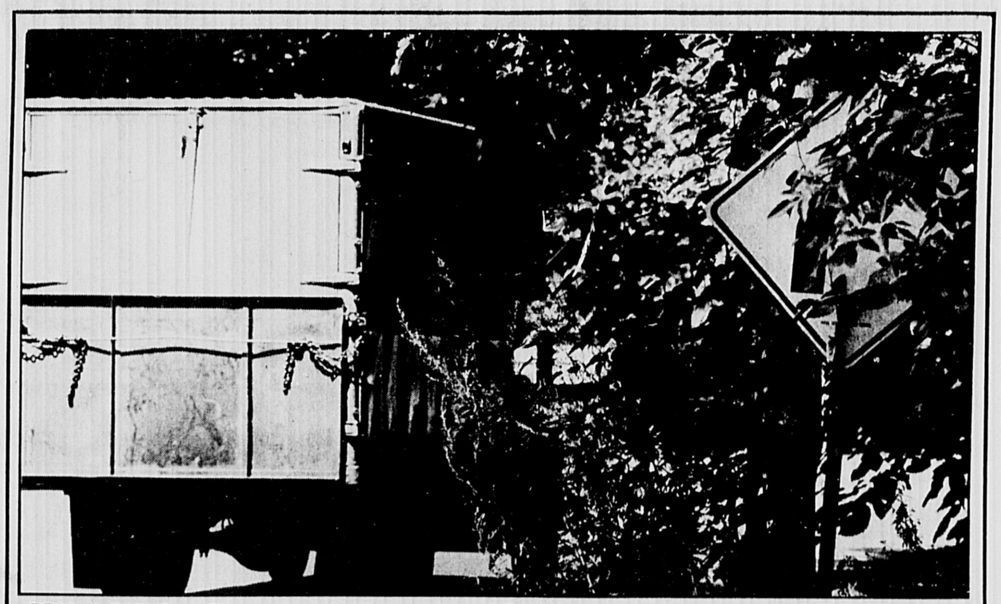
At 10 a.m., Freitas found an 11-inch knife in the reservoir shore, about 300 feet from the intersection of Alben and Reservoir sts. near the pumping station. Breen's father identified the knife as belonging to his son.

A short time later, MDC officers and mounted police arrived to help with the hunt and the civilians were asked to leave the area, according to police reports filed by Sgt. James Pierce.

By noon, town officers were patrolling the reservoir in the Woburn's outboard motor boat. Winchester does not own an outboard motor boat. The MDC three-man scuba team arrived at 12:35 and began their diving operation at 12:50 near the area where the knife was found. Twenty minutes later, they had pulled Breen's body from the water. According to Dr. Peretsman, there were no marks or bruises on the body.

Town Manager Tom Groux told the Board of Selectmen Monday night that Police Chief John P. McHugh will write letters to the MDC and auxiliary fire officers commending them for their help in the search operation.

"The MDC scuba team, the city of Woburn, and auxiliary police, the fire department and the many other public-spirited people who came forward to help the officers with the search should be thanked for their efforts." McHugh said.



DEADLY CURVE — The curve at the intersection of Cambridge and Arlington sts. has claimed six lives in auto accidents in the last 20 years, and 31 accidents have occurred there since 1974. But making the curve safer requires a cooperative effort between the town, the state and Arlington, each of which is responsible for part of the road. Arlington, for example, is responsible for cutting the brush which obscures the only sign warning drivers of the curve (above). Boston Edison, with the approval of Winchester, chooses the position of the pole (right) which 24-year-old Richard Erbetta struck two weeks ago. Erbetta was the most recent fatality at the intersection. (Staff Photos by Noreen Murphy)

Assessors Vote To Sue Patten For Breach Of Contract

By SUSAN SCHNECK

The Board of Assessors unanimously voted Tuesday night to request that Town Counsel take legal action against Patten Appraisal Associates Inc. for their failure to complete the revaluation program in the time specified within the contract.

That vote followed a 45-minute executive session with the Board of Selectmen on the subject. The assessors said that no votes were taken during the executive session.

After learning about the assessor's vote, the selectmen said they would act on the litigation recommendation and take a formal position on the litigation at their meeting Sept. 13.

Assessor George Andersen made the motion to file for litigation against Patten.

"I think the Board of Assessors should initiate the legal action against Patten for failing to complete the contract in a timely fashion," he said.

Assessors Sherman Josephson and Werner Carlson agreed with Andersen, and the three discussed the wording of the motion and took the vote.

Before meeting with the Board of Selectmen, Carlson was asked by Lorena rd. resident Donna Duval if he felt Patten should be sued.

"I certainly think we should sue for the time element," replied Carlson, referring to a stipulation in the Patten contract calling for a penalty of 1 percent of the contract price of $170,000 for each week the revaluation was delayed.

Duval then asked, "How much time?" In previous meetings, the assessors have puzzled over whether the revaluation was due on July 1, the original contract deadline; Oct. 1, the date set as a deadline when they granted Patten an extension; or Feb. 16, when the tax impact notices went out.

The revaluation was completed July 16, when tax bills were finally mailed out.

"That has to be determined," answered Carlson. "We have to weigh a number of factors — such as the cost of suing — and I think all those matters will be discussed by the Board of Selectmen tonight.

In preparing for the conference with the selectmen, the assessors provided Town Counsel Douglas Randall with a thick sheaf of documents, including all their communications with Patten.

Patten's delay in assessing the town of Winchester has created a great deal of financial problems for the town. Winchester had to borrow money to run the town until tax bills were ready.

Faggiano reported Aug. 16 that late tax bills cost the town $48,044 in interest costs and $270,000 in lost revenue from investments.

The reassessment of Winchester property was supposed to be completed by September 1981, as outlined in the contract between the town and Patten.

The assessors extended that date to October, but the assessments were not completed until February, 1982. Tax bills were finally mailed out July 16 — three-and-one-half months late.

Deadly Curve

Officials Seek To Make Cambridge St. Bend Safe

By DAVE LEECO

They call it "Dead Man's Curve".

The sharp bend on Cambridge st., just at the intersection with Arlington st., has been the scene of 31 accidents since 1974. Two of those accidents have resulted in death, and police have logged another four deaths at the intersection in the past 20 years.

The most recent tragedy occurred two weeks ago, when 24-year-old Richard Erbetta of Woburn wrapped his 1981 Ford Mustang around the telephone pole at the corner of Cambridge and Arlington sts. at the end of Mystic st., Arlington.

Witnesses told police Erbatta, driving at 90 miles per hour, was racing a second car down Cambridge st. before the accident occurred.

Public safety and town officials agree nothing can be done to stop an accident at the bend when a driver tries to take the curve at 90 mph.

"How do you design a curve to take a car going 90 miles per hour, unless you want a race track?" commented Town Engineer Jake Ciarica. "You know you're not going to correct the road for that type of accident."

However, after the latest accident officials began looking for ways to make the curve safer. Arlington, for example, plans to install new signs before the curve to warn drivers unfamiliar with the road.

But in trying to make the road safer, officials must thread their way through the tangle of who is responsible for the curve.

Cambridge st. in Winchester is a state

Winchester Music Program Starts Second Year With Four New Faculty Members

The Winchester Music Program, starting its second full year Sept. 23, announces the addition of four new faculty members. Patricia Feig will teach tuba; Nancy Hair, cello and Suzuki cello; Nancy Miller, french horn; and Laurie Peckins, fiddle, mandolin, and guitar.

These four newcomers will be joining teachers of clarinet, flute, percussion, recorder, saxophone, trombone, trumpet, viola, violin, and voice.

The Music Program ahs been developed in cooperation with the Belmont Music School which is responsible for the faculty of trained and experienced teachers.

Nancy Hair joins the W.M.P. faculty as a cello teacher with special training in the Suzuki method of teaching young children. She has been with the All-Newton Music School since coming to the Boston area from Princeton, N.J., in 1981.

She had previously been on the faculty of the Westminster Choir College and the Princeton Day School. Her background includes chamber music and orchestra playing.

Patricia Feig, who performed at McCall last year with the Boston Tuba Four, is the founder and manager o the Atlantic Brass Quintet and has had extensive experience teaching at all age levels.

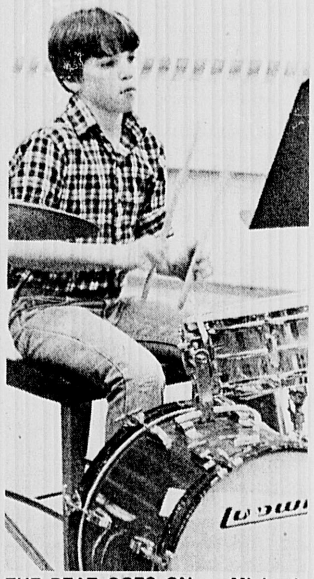
She has been in the Newton Public School system since 1981, and as a member of the Atlantic Brass Quintet has conducted master classes and clinics. She has also participated in a number of children's concerts.

Nancy Miller has been teaching the french horn in the Weston Public Schools, at the Brookline Music School, and at Brandeis University where she is working on a Ph.D. in musicology. She has performed with the Boston Philharmonic and other symphony orchestras, and has participated in a variety of chamber music concerts.

She was the recipient of several awards from Pomona College where she did her undergraduate work and has had experience in other areas of music as well, both as contributing editor of Record Review Magazine, and as administrative assistant for the Claremont Music Festival.

Laurie Peckins will not only be teaching guitar for the Music Program this year, but offers mandolin and fiddle as well. Her undergraduate study included extensive course work in music education. She has taught privately since 1976 and has been at the Music School in Cambridge since 1978. She has performed on various radio stations in Boston.

The Winchester Music Program offers lessons and ensembles after school at McCall Junior High School and is sponsored by the McCall Parent Association. For information call Corie Nichols or Sandy Thompson.



THE BEAT GOES ON — Michael Fielake keeps the beat going. Fielake is part of the Winchester Music Program.

Residents, Businesses Cope With Assessments

Chamber Of Commerce Fights For Repeal Of Classification

By DAVE LEECO

The Chamber of Commerce fought its first skirmish last week in its battle against a higher business property tax on the coming tax bill.

The Chamber is pushing the selectmen to repeal last year's classification of real estate taxes. For last year's taxes selectmen set up two tax rates — one for residences, and another for business commercial, industrial and personal property.

Last March, the selectmen — after hearing the recommendation of the Board of Assessors — began classification for the first time.

Under classification, business property was taxed at 115 percent of a tax rate determined by the tax levy and the overall town assessment. The extra cash from the businesses was used to reduce the residential tax rate.

The Chamber launched its battle for repeal of classification at last week's Board of Selectmen's meeting, when selectmen and assessors began to discuss classification for the coming year.

It was not by any means the final battle, as Assessor Chairman Werner Carlson admitted the assessors were not ready to make a recommendation that night.

First, he said, the assessors would have to determine how much money could be raised from the businesses, and saved by residents, under different rates of classification.

"This board is not ready to make a recommendation," Carlson said. "We view tonight as an opportunity to hear from the business community and the residents concerning classification."

The business people Carlson heard from were ready to make their recommendation — against classification — without any figures from the assessors.

Bill McMillan, the head of the Chamber of Commerce group studying the business assessments in town, said that the selectmen shouldn't base their decision on how much money the town could make from classification.

"This issue can be dispensed with without facts or figures," he said. "It should be decided on what is fair, what is equitable, and what is right for the town of Winchester."

McMillan pointed out that because of the low number of businesses compared to residences — he put the number at 6,100 residential properties compared to 250 non-residential — the residents didn't save that much because of classification.

The residential tax rate, according to Comptroller Al Faggiano, would increase by 38 cents per $1,000 value if there were no classification.

And the comparatively few businesses in town, argued McMillan, were being discriminated against to give the residents that small savings.

"I do not know of any service the business community uses in disproportionate amount compared to residents," said McMillan. "There isn't the same reason for classification that you have in a city."

McMillan also predicted classification would increase prices in the stores and drive some of those stores from Winchester.

"The businesses in town really service the residents," said McMillan. "As a result, the cost of classification means it will cost more for Winchester residents to go in and shop.

"And if classification gets out of hand," said McMillan. "You'll see fewer businesses for people to shop in."

Selectman Chairman Alan Macdonald noted that before reassessment, businesses had been valued at a higher percentage of their true values than residences had. As a result, he explained, businesses were paying a form of classification for many years.

"The reason we arrived at the 115 percent figure was because that was pretty much the historical payment that had gone on," said Macdonald. "We were continuing payments on the ratio there had been in the past."

Whether or not the Chamber of Commerce can buck history will be decided in two weeks, when the selectmen and assessors will meet again to vote on classification.

Assessment Committee And Town Officials Clash Over Group's Role

By SUSAN SCHNECK

The most pressing task before the newly-formed assessment advisement committee is to determine their purpose.

When the group of 10 residents met with the selectmen and assessors Monday night, no one could agree on exactly what the group should be doing.

Town officials said the group should focus its efforts on evaluating the financial and manpower setup of the assessors office, while committee members said they should be analyzing the assessments of town property.

Townwide dissatisfaction with the revaluation recently completed by Patten Appraisal Associates of Maine inspired spring Town Meeting members to organize the committee. The charter states that the committee is to "review the assessments and assessment practices in the town of Winchester" and report back to Town meeting in the fall.

Assessor Chairman Werner Carlson pointed out that while committee members would be working with the assessors, they would not have the same powers granted to the assessors by the state.

"I would like to point out that while we are elected by the town, the state gives us our powers," he said. "We make all the decisions and the committee will not make any decisions. We are state certified and we had to go through two years of school to get certified.

"To get involved and to review values is a touchy situation being they have been certified by the state," he added.

Carlson noted that some of the information the assessors look at is confidential and said he felt the Committee could be beneficial in analyzing the manpower and financial situation of the assessors office, rather than rechecking assessments already approved by the state.

"It might be a good idea to look at the possibilities of full-time assessors for the town because I feel our office is understaffed," he said.

But committee members said they believed they could benefit the town more by reviewing the assessments.

"I don't look at our role as one to look over the shoulders of the assessors to see if they are doing a good job," said committee member John Kupjian of Leslie rd.

"I think the charge specified at spring Town Meeting is too broad for my taste." If our function is to review the assessors, we should have access to all the records. My understanding is that we are to look at the revaluation and tell Town Meeting what we feel has happened. If someone wants to scream 'revaluation,'' let them, but I don't think our role is to create chaos.

"I think we have to look at the individual assessments and if we are denied them, I think we should disband the committee," he added.

Town officials said that virtually all information used to calculate the assessments was public record except for information on abatements.

At the assessors meeting later Monday night, Carlson stressed that he planned to help the committee by providing them with all the information he legally could as long as they did not interfere with the work that takes place in the assessors' town hall office.

"We will provide them with all the information necessary, but I don't want them to disrupt the girls in the office," Carlson said. "Just because they are committee members does not mean they can swing the doors here open at any time and start rolling in. But we do want to work with the committee."

The committee met later that evening and elected John France of Woodside dr. as its chairman and Barbara Petrilli of Irving st. as the secretary.

"I think our first priority is to make an independent evaluation of a cross section of property in town to determine if the assessments were fair," France said. "If we get through that task well, it may be all we can do before Town Meeting."

EDWARD "TED" Flaherty SENATOR
Democrat – 4th Middlesex District

"The focus of this election can't be one issue. All the issues are related."

I ASK MYSELF THESE QUESTIONS:

• CRIME • Isn't the high crime rate related in a straight line to our faltering economy and high unemployment rate? We need a shift in legislative thinking away from the rights of the offender and toward the rights of the victim.

• ELDERLY • Why are there tax loopholes for the wealthy, while people on fixed incomes, like the elderly, are feeling the effects of our burdensome tax structure? We have a responsibility to provide a dignified life for our senior citizens. I will work for more equitable tax relief for the elderly taxpayer.

• ENVIRONMENT • Shall we continue to neglect our environment? We do have the TAX BASE. We do have the technology. We do have the expertise to solve many of these problems. The very least we owe future generations is the legacy of a clean environment.

• TAX RELIEF • Why is the money we normally set aside for educating our children, buying clothes, and a summer vacation pulled into that tax spiral never to be seen again? Isn't it time for those who can most afford it to finally pick up their share? Isn't it time the guy in the middle got a tax break? The least we can do is stand firmly for no new taxes.

Police Log

Wednesday, Sept. 1

— A Clearwater rd. home was almost burglarized, but police believe an alarm scared off the intruders before anything was taken.

According to police reports, a Clearwater rd. man and his son drove up to their home and found the alarm ringing. After discovering that a rear window had been forced open, the homeowner notified the police.

Police determined that the home was entered when an intruder(s) opened a gate at the side of the home near the driveway. A step ladder was placed under a living room window at the rear of the home, a screen removed, and the window forced open, according to police. Police believe the alarm was then activated, scaring off the intruders.

— Following a motor vehicle accident at the intersection of Arlington and Cambridge sts., a 20-year-old Hyde Park man was arrested for operating a motor vehicle after his license had been suspended.

According to police reports, a Malden man was driving his Dodge Aspen south on Cambridge st. when his car was struck by a canister of oxygen which fell off a green truck travelling in the opposite direction on Cambridge st.

Police subsequently discovered that the truck driver's license had been revoked and the man was arrested.

Thursday, Sept. 2

— A Ridge st. home was broken into sometime between Aug. 28 and Sept. 2, according to police reports. Police believe entry was gained when an intruder stacked up firewood outside a bedroom window and climbed inside.

Missing items include jewelry, cash, sterling silver items, and Hummels. The incident is under investigation.

— A Tufts rd. woman rushed home from work and apparently prevented a burglary from taking place at her home. The woman had left work to go home after her neighbor called to report that a group of suspicious youths were in the Tufts rd. backyard.

A subsequent search revealed that the home had been entered by forcing open a window. A vase was removed from a hutch.

Friday, Sept. 3

— A Wakefield man was arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol, according to police reports. Officer David Poole reported that he discovered the man in his car, which had crashed into the wall at Winchester Hospital.

The man told police that the accident happened after his accelerator stuck on his car. When Poole detected signs of intoxication, he arrested the man. The hospital wall was not damaged, but the car suffered severe front end damage.

— A Brookside ave. home was broken into sometime between Wednesday evening and Friday night. Police believe the intruder broke the lock in the cellar - door to get inside. Missing items include a color television and a coin collection. A plastic glove was found in the home. The incident is under investigation.

Saturday, Sept. 4

— A Highland ave. home was broken into sometime between Friday night and Saturday afternoon, according to police reports.

Police said the intruder(s) entered by breaking a pane of glass in the back door. Missing items include a television set, an undetermined amount of jewelry and money, and some valuable statues. Police are investigating the incident.

— A 20-year-old Holland st. man was arrested for possession of a controlled substance police believe to be hashish.

According to police reports filed by Officer Barry Donaghey, he and Officer Lawrence Hill observed the man standing on the corner of Laraway rd. and Church st. shortly after midnight. Donaghey reported that the man appeared to be in a confused condition.

The two officers advised the man to go home, but he walked into the alleyway behind the stores on Main st. near the rotary. According to officers, the man appeared to be very unsteady on his feet. After further conversation with the man, police said they detected alcohol on his breath and took him to the station for protective custody. An inventory search later disclosed the substance and the man was arrested.

— Police have issued a complaint in court against a 21-year-old Mystic Valley pkwy. man on charges of malicious destruction of personal property in connection with an incident where a car window of a Cutting st. man was smashed.

Police were informed that the rear window of the Cutting st. man's station wagon had been smashed when a neighbor called to report that she heard a crash at about 2 a.m. and observed several youths run from the car.

Sunday, Sept. 5

— About $110 and several checks were stolen from the snack bar area of the Winchester Swim Club, according to police reports.

Police rushed to the club after the burglar alarm went off and searched the area. The snack bar door was open and one of the cabinets had been opened.

Police believe the area was entered with a set of keys to the club which had been lost or stolen in the last week. The incident is under investigation.

Monday, Sept. 6

— A Fairlane terr. home was broken into sometime between 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. according to police reports.

Missing items include sterling silver. Police said the home was entered when an intruder removed a wooden screen from the window. Police are investigating.

Harvard's Welte Is Featured At Minuteman Meeting

Dr. Terrie Wetle of the Harvard Medical School, executive officer of the Division of Health Policy Research on Aging, will be the featured speaker at the sixth annual meeting of Minuteman Home Care Corp. to be held on Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the John F. Kennedy School of Religion auditorium, 1997 Mass. ave. Lexington.

The program for the annual meeting will focus on the development of a partnership between the public and private sector in meeting the needs of the frail, isolated elderly. Ms. Wetle's talk will address value issues and conflicts related to long-term care of the elderly.

"During the past year, we have made a special effort to reach out to local businesses and foundations for support," said Barbara Smith of Acton, president of the board of members.

At the annual meeting, the MHCC board of members will recognize the special contributions of local corporations and individuals to services for the elderly.

MHCC provides home care, transportation and nutrition services for persons over 60 years old residing in 16 area towns including Arlington and Winchester. The public is invited to the annual meeting.

Study Finds Source Of Pollution In Mystic Lake

Two-Year State Study Finds Water Quality Ruined By Sewage And Other Unhealthy Materials Flowing Into Upper Lake

Sewage and other unhealthy materials flowing into Upper Mystic Lake are slowly ruining water quality. And excessive vegetation growth is hindering the aesthetic value and recreational potential of the lake, according to a major study just released in draft form. The study documents the many sources of pollution and notes how the pollution affects recreation and fishing. The amount of sewage entering the lake is a major concern. The bacteria levels caused by sewage overflows were found to be above the safe guidelines set by the state.

Because of the threat to public health from high bacteria counts, Upper Mystic Lake's Sandy Beach located in Medford was closed several times this summer.

The study pinpoints sewage overflows into Sweetwater Brook from Stoneham as the major polluting source of sewage. The study also found approximately 10 areas in Winchester's sewer line that also overflow and eventually end up in the lake.

The sewer pipes do not lead into the water itself. However, stormwater drain pipes do. Inadequate capacity of sewer lines cause sewage to occasionally overflow into the stormwater pipes, especially after a heavy rainstorm.

The stormwater drains contribute additional pollution, or urban runoff. The drains pick up anything from street litter, dirt, animal droppings, oil from the road, to rubber from tire marks.

Approximately 200 stormwater drain pipes empty into the Upper Mystic Lake watershed, the system of lakes and streams in Medford, Woburn, Stoneham, Reading, Winchester and Burlington. Eleven stormwater drains empty into the Upper Mystic itself.

According to Nancy Fratoni, project manager of the study, Upper Mystic is classified as eutrophic, or polluted. Three levels of water quality are ligatrophic (very clean), mesotrophic (inbetween) and eutrophic.

"It is more polluted than other lakes we compared it to," said Fratoni. "I'd would say the pollution level is typical of urban lakes."

According to Dr. Herbert Meyer, a project consultant and Arlington resident, the lake is in poor condition, but not irreversible.

"Both lakes (Spy Pond in Arlington and Upper Mystic) are aging faster than they normally should," he explained. "Eventually, they will be completely filled with algae and other vegetation and become swamps or wetland."

"Their life will be shortened by this eutrophic condition," said Meyer.

The report data found excessive aquatic vegetation another major problem. Rooted plants are abundant throughout the forebays (the two bodies of water connected to Upper Mystic) and along the shoreline of the main body of water.

An increase in plant growth means an eventual increase in dead plants. And in the process of decomposition of dead plants at the bottom of the pond, much of the water's oxygen is used up.

Algae and other weeds also create transparency problems for the lake, and hence recreation. According to sanitary codes, any swimming area must maintain at least four feet or greater of clear water.

At the same time, the study data shows no macroinvertebrates or little animals in the lake. "The total absence of sediment dwelling invertebrates is an obvious sign of a very distrubed community," the reported noted.

Said Fratoni, "Usually in a healthy lake you'd find a real variety of those little animals. When you don't have any it means you really don't have a healthy aquatic community." The report noted that fish are dependent on the maintenance of a healthy aquatic community.

The amount of phosphorus in the lake is the leading factor controlling excessive vegetation growth in the lake, according to the report. The concentrations of phosphorus in the lake exceed the EPA guidelines. Some lake tests showed the phosphorus content exceeded the EPA guidelines by 20 times.

The phosphorus contamination sources include the Aberjona River, Sweetwater Brook and urban runoff.

The lack of oxygen in the lake, in part due to excessive vegetation, is only a part of the problem for fish in the lake, the according to the findings.

Both ammonia-nitrogen and nitrite-nitrogen, along with other metals such as aluminium, copper, iron, mangenese, cadium, lead and zinc were found, are another major source of pollution. The amounts of these metals at levels potentially toxic to aquatic life.

The nitrogen levels themselves are potentially toxic to aquatic life. The major source of this nitrogen, according to the data, is industrial waste disposal at the Olin chemical site in Wilmington. The discharge from the site has stopped, but the contamination in the groundwater will continue to reach the Aberjona River and lake for an unknown a period of time. Some of the metals, such as iron, could be coming from the Industriplex chemical dump in Woburn which is located near the headwaters of the Aberjona, Fratoni said. Others metals, especially manganese, lead, iron, and copper, are coming from urban runoff.

In short, with the information about metals in the lake, the report concluded that "there is concern regarding the suitability of lake fish for human consumption."

There is only one standard for measuring metals in fish, the standard for mercury. This left the consultants no means to measure the amount of levels of metals in the fish dangerous for humans.

The metals are not dangerous to swimmers. Fratoni said they might be dangerous if someone drank a lot of the water.

The Mystic River Watershed Urban Runoff Project is the full name of the study conducted by the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering.

The study, which began two years ago, was funded under a Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) program. According to Dr. Meyer, three years ago the EPA decided to study the urban runoff nationwide. Only two New England lakes were chosen and Upper Mystic Lake was one of them. The other is in Worcester.

The study cost approximately $700,000 to complete.

Fratoni emphasized this report is only in draft form. It is now out for review

Report Reveals Pollution To Be Difficult To Control

While pinpointing the sources of pollution is not difficult, controlling the pollution will be, according to draft report of the Mystic River Watershed Urban Runnoff Project.

One of the four major sources of pollution to Upper Mystic Lake was identified as urban runoff, the dirt, debris and chemicals washed off urban areas during storms. "Controlling urban runoff pollutants in the watershed is difficult due to their widespread distribution," according to the report.

The project did not identify any critical areas where the contribution of urban runoff is pronounced. Therefore, pinpointing certain sites where pollution controls would be effective is not possible, the report notes.

Another problem, was the large number of stormwater drains going into the lake and water system, over 200. "Stormwater is generally discharged at a large number of locations within each community instead of only a few points. The expense of installing and maintaining a treatment device at each outfall would be prohibitive," according to the findings.

The report notes that educating the public on methods of pollution could be an effective means of control. Distribution of brochures outlining guidelines for proper automobile maintenance, fertilization and pesticide use, and solid waste disposal, was another suggestion.

"Enforcing existing fines for littering or instituting new fines would also reduce pollution to some extent," the report suggested. "Not only will this generate revenue, but it will also improve the appearance of the community."

The report pinpointed the Aberjona River as one possible area of improvement. A series of baffles could be placed in the river to encourage the plant uptake of suspended and dissolved materials. The vegetation would then by "harvested," preventing nutrients from being released in the lake. This control would require periodic maintenance, but the reports says its cost is minimal compared to most other controls.

On the sewer overflows the report says, "The sewer line studies being conducted in Stoneham, Winchester and Arlington should be completed so that work can begin on the problems found. The plans currently being developed for separating the manholes in Stoneham and for completing repairs needed in Winchester should be implemented as soon as possible."

In addition, the report said information that there is excessive infiltration into the sewer system in Woburn should be investigated.

"In-lake" controls can also be used to improve water quality, but most controls are expensive and would yield minimal results, the report said.

A more feasible control suggested by the report is aeration of lake water. Aeration means adding oxygen to the water which would inhibit phosphorus and metal released from the sediments, or bottom of the lake.

The cost of aeration, according to Fratoni, project manager, could be $100,000. A monthly operation would be needed which could cost anywhere between $200 and $500.

Urban Runoff Committee To Discuss Report Findings

What can be done about pollution in the Upper Mystic Lake and the pollution carrying effects of the Aberjona River and its other tributaries?

Community representatives and other residents of the area will gather for the final meeting of the Urban Runoff Advisory Committee on Thursday, Sept. 16, in the Board of Health room, Winchester Town Hall.

The meeting, called by the Office of Planning and Program Management of the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, will open at 7:30 p.m. The special public meeting is open to the general public.

Main topic of discussion will be the draft report of the Upper Mystic Lake Watershed Urban Runoff Project. During the study it has been necessary, officials say, to look at other sources of pollutants besides the runoff of rain and storm water into the river and lakes. These other sources have included hazardous waste and combined sewer problems, particularly in Winchester and Stoneham.

Dr. Herbert Meyer, president of the Mystic River Watershed Association, which is conducting the public participation phases of the study, urges area residents to attend the meeting and participate in the discussion.

While the study officially concludes the end of this month, implementation of its control recommendations remains in the future and subject to public action, Meyer stressed.

The study involves the entire Upper Mystic Lake Watershed, which includes Arlington, Medford, Woburn, Stoneham, Reading, Wilmington, Winchester and Burlington.

League Of Women Voters Remain Committed To Getting Residents Involved In Government

By CRAIG STEDMAN

Election years bring a lot of different people and groups to the attention of the public — politicians, media consultants and countless high school bands, to name a few. But people throughout the country and state and right here in Winchester identify one group in particular with election years: the League of Women Voters, a national organization dedicated to getting the public involved in both politics and political issues.

The league is active on the national, state and local levels at all times, but most people come into contact with it around election time. That's when the league really goes into action. On all three levels, the organization sponsors debates and candidates' nights, prepares voter guides and helps people to register to vote and to get to the polls. All this is done on a volunteer, non-partisan basis.

When it's not busied by the call of the voting booth, the league — again on all three levels — spends its time studying and taking positions on public issues. Once a position is decided upon, the league becomes politically active, lobbying legislators on behalf of certain bills or working with other groups to devise programs and services.

Winchester is fortunate to have a particular healthy league chapter. This has been a strong league town ever since the local chapter was formed several years after the 1920 founding of the national organizations by the victorious women's suffrage organizations. Today, more than 100 Winchester women belong to the local chapter of the league.

And they're women who, in the words of Voters Service Chairman (and past-president) Marica Wood, "run the gamut of ages from 18 to over 80." This spectrum of women of different ages is, according to Wood and current president Betty Small, part of what makes membership in the league interesting, especially when it comes time to study issues.

"It's so much fun to get an 80-year-old together with a 20-year-old to talk about abortion or other issues," Small said. "It can be really informative and surprising."

The women who make up the Winchester league don't always see eye-to-eye on the issues they study, either. "Our members do not think the same way at all," Wood said. "Our discussion meetings are very active." Wood and Small added that they wouldn't have it any other way. "The League of Women Voters membership is incredibly diversified, and that's part of the reason I got involved," Small said.

Most importantly, the Winchester chapter is busy, whether it's election time or not. Each spring the league sponsors a "Meet Your Candidates" night, with all local candidates invited to discuss their stands on issues with town residents. The chapter also sponsors an annual Candidates' Workshop for townspeople interested in learning how to run for public office. It helps people register to vote at such events as Town Day, and it helps them vote on election day. The league also helps people without transportation to get to the polls.

At other times, the league members study issues — local, state and national issues. On the national level, the Winchester chapter, like all local chapters, is now studying the effects of national security policy on domestic programs, while on the state level, the Massachusetts chapters are continuing a two-year study of health care services in the state. Locally, the Winchester chapter is looking into the application of drunk-driving laws in town, the feasibility of providing after-school programs for junior high school students and whether the Board of Selectmen carries out its function as defined by the town charter.

Once the local chapter arrives at a position on an issue by majority vote, it begins to take action. The league was one of the groups which worked for many years to get a town charter, and in the past two years it has been promoting changes in the town's housing laws.

The league's current leadership is also interested in getting together more with other Winchester groups. "We want to work closer with other organizations in town," Small said. "The league has been a little reluctant to do that in past years because of the fear of taking positions, but we realize that a lot of organizations want to work hand-in-hand with us."

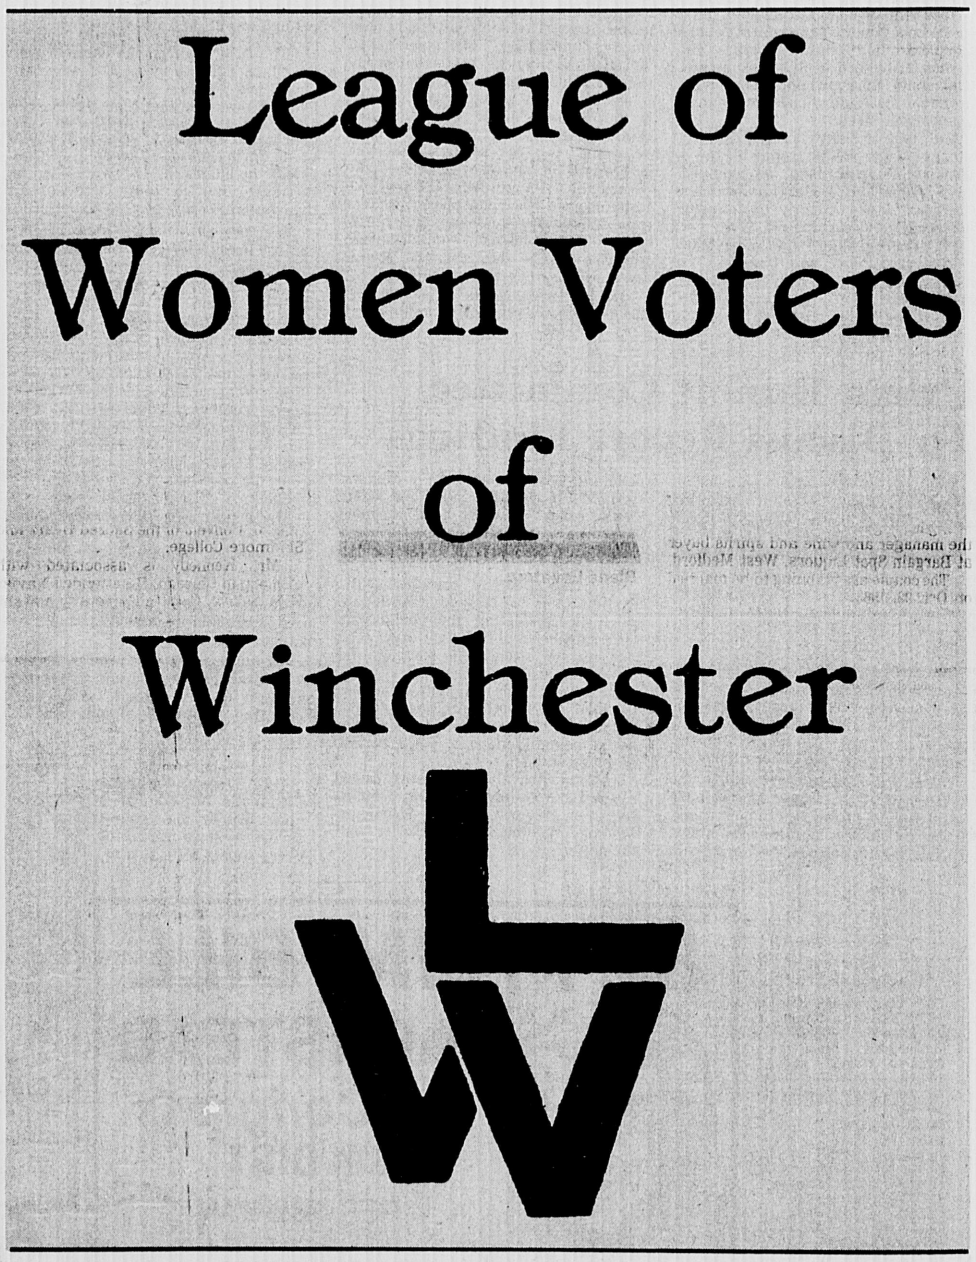
Already, a questionnaire used in the junior high study was prepared with the assistance of other concerned groups, and the league is now working with the Friends of the Winchester Library to reinstitute a Master Town Calendar at the library.

The local chapter is also looking to get some men involved in its activities. The league has been open to men for eight years. The Winchester chapter currently doesn't have any male members, "but we have had some in the past," Wood said, "and we'd like to have more. Men in other towns have found they like the educational services offered by the league."

The Winchester league, like all other local chapters, remains committed to getting residents actively involved in government, and the league's leaders are glad that Winchester residents are apparently committed to keeping the league operating.

Much of the league's budget comes from donations collected during an annual fundraising drive — which is an annual success. "The townspeople are really good to us through their contributions," Small said. "Some league chapters don't have supportive towns, but we get generous support from the community."

In turn, the league gives a lot back.



"Some league chapters don't have supportive towns, but we get generous support from the community."

Marianne Kenney Is The Bride Of William Lordi

Marianne and William Lordi

Marianne L. Kenney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Kenney Jr. of Salisbury st., was married to William R. Lordi, son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Lordi of New York City, on June 12.

Rev. Wilfred Scanlon officiated at the 11 a.m. ceremony in St. Mary's Church. The bride was given away by her father at the double–ring ceremony.

The bride wore her mother's gown of white Chantilly lace styled with a fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, long sleeves and a cathedral train. She wore a fingertip veil which fell from a band of stephanotis and miniature roses. She carried a cascade of stephanotis, miniature carnations and roses.

The matron of honor was Mrs. John Worobey of Oklahoma. Bridesmaids were Carolyn Mooney of Washingon, D.C., Pamela de Mars of Illinois, Lisa Moresco of California, Laura Adams of New York and Marsha Shaller of Connecticut.

The matron of honor wore a dusty rose chiffon gown with a boat neckline and carried a cascade of pink carnations, small white roses and stephanotis.

The bridesmaids wore lilac chiffon gowns with boat necklines and carried cascades of pink carnations, small white roses and stephanotis.

The best man was Eric Martens of New Jersey. Ushers were the bride's brothers, Raymond J. Kenney III, Stephen V. Kenney and John M. Kenney, and Adam Nagy and Jim Ryan, both of New York.

Mary Pat McLaughlin of Walpole, a cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book at the reception held at the Winchester Country Club.

After a honeymoon to Bermuda, the couple are living in Eastchester, N.Y.

The bride is a graduate of Fairfield University in Fairfield, Conn. She is employed at Sterngold in Stamford, Conn.

The bridegroom is also a graduate of Fairfield University, and is employed at MasterCard in New York City.

Weddings

Lois Nowell Is Married To Robert J. Bissen

Lois and Robert Bissen

Lois Ellen Nowell of Englewood rd. and Robert J. Bissen of Framingham were married June 27 in a 6 p.m. ceremony at St. Mary's Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Nowell of Englewood rd. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bissen of Framingham.

Rev. Mark S. Sheehan officiated at the double-ring nuptial ceremony. The bride was given away by her father.

She wore a chiffon over taffeta gown, fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in Venise lace with pearls. The gown featured long, fitted, sheer Venise lace sleeves and an A-line skirt of chiffon over taffeta, dotted with Venise lace inserts with pearls and edged in lace. The bride's veil, edged in Venise lace, fell from a seed pearl headcap.

She carried a cascade of silk white roses, lilac and stephanotis accented with greens.

Ann Kennedy of Pa., was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Martha Nowell of Jamaica Plain, a sister of the bride, and three of the bridegroom's sisters, Mary Bissen of Framingham, Peggy Chamrin of Brockton and Sue Bissen of Framingham.

The bridesmaids wore kerchief-point sheer white ribbon dresses with three-quarter-length sleeves and small lilac flowers. The maid of honor's dress was also kerchief-point with a ribbon effect and lilac ribbon sashes at the waist. The bodice of her dress had spaghetti straps and had a matching sleeveless jacket.

The bride's attendants carried white lace fans with a spray of silk lilacs, white roses and greens.

The best man was Alan Babineau of Framingham. Three of the bridegroom's brothers, Tom, Peter and Dick Bissen, all of Framingham, and his brother-in-law Jerry Chamrin of Brockton served as ushers.

At the reception, held at the Casa di Fior in Wilmington, Jennifer Chamrin, the bridegroom's niece, was in charge of the guest book.

After a honeymoon to the family home in Maine, the couple have settled in Methuen.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Winchester High School. She graduated from Framingham State College and is employed as the retail assistant manager of Cummings in the Liberty Tree Mall.

The bridegroom graduated from Framingham North High School in 1974. He is an electronic technician at Computervision in Bedford. He served in the U.S. Army from 1976 to 1979, and was stationed at Ft. Bliss, Texas, and with the 32nd AADCOM in West Germany.

Laura Cappello Is The Bride Of Hugh Fraser II

Laura and Hugh Fraser

Laura Jean Cappello, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Steven Cappello of Manchester rd., married "the boy next door," Hugh Bernard Fraser II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bernard Fraser of Mystic Valley pkwy., on May 2.

The wedding took place at the beautiful old St. Anthony's Church in Revere by the ocean, a traditional family location for weddings.

The bride wore a white, silk chiffon, floor-length gown. Her train flowed from her headpiece of silk and Alencon lace. The gown and headpiece were styled by Priscilla of Boston.

She carried a bouquet of white roses and daisies. Her maids wore maroon floor-length gowns of qiana with matching jackets and carried pink roses and daisy bouquets.

Godchild and cousin of the bride, Laura Lee Schurman, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Tricia Ann Cappello, Tricia Lehane and Ann Harrington, all of Winchester.

Michael Fraser, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were John Charles Cappello, Francis Schurman and Mark Fraser, all of Winchester.

Following the reception at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Winchester, the bride and bridegroom with all their guests were invited to the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cappello and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Fraser I for open house parties to end the celebration.

The bride is a 1980 graduate of Winchester High School. She received a diploma from Burdett School of Business and is now employed by National Medical Care of Boston.

The bridegroom is employed at Scully Signal Co.

The Star Endorses Primary Candidates

For Governor

Edward J. King

The Democratic gubernatorial race has centered around personalities and differences in style in the last few weeks. But the more one looks at issues and philosophy, the clearer it becomes that the voters made the proper choice in 1978 when they ousted Michael Dukakis and replaced him with Edward J. King.

Governor King is not as flashy as Dukakis. He is not as good a public speaker. But he has been a good governor and he deserves re-election.

Governor King came to office with promises to make Massachusetts a pro-business state to bring in new industry and to create jobs. He campaigned on lowering taxes and on law and order. And he has delivered on all those promises.

The response of the business community to the initiatives of Governor King has paid off in Massachusetts having the lowest unemployment rate of the industrial states over the past year, despite a nationwide recession.

The recent drop in Massachusetts unemployment to 7.3 percent was passed off by some as a statistical fluke, but actually, the fluke was that rate here was higher at all this summer. The March 1981 to March 1982 figure was at 7.3 percent for the 12 months, indicating a strong local economy while the nation ran at 9 percent or more for the same period.

At the same time that Massachusetts compares favorably with other states on unemployment, it also has the lowest inflation rate — about 3 percent — less than half the national average. Governor King's pro-business policies can take a lot of the credit for this state doing better than its neighbors and better than all the other industrialized states in weathering the recession.

On the law and order issue, Governor King has been consistent and strong in his support of the death penalty bill and last year he signed into law the self-defense bill which gives a person the right to use force to protect himself and his family should an intruder invade his home. That this bill was necessary at all is an indication of how far this state had gone in its philosophy of criminal rights overshadowing victim rights. And the tough new drunk driving law would not have become a reality without the leadership of Governor King.

The cities and towns have managed to adjust to Proposition 2.5 without the sky falling and state tax revenue —as a percentage of personal income — has fallen for three years in a row under Governor King. Yet this year, the state budget had an $80 million surplus, much of which would have been returned to the people if it hadn't been for politics on Beacon Hill.

According to a report in The Boston Herald American in July, state revenue as a percentage of personal income ran over 17 for the four years of the Dukakis administration. It has dropped steadily under Governor King — to 16.5 percent the first year, 15.9 percent the next year and to 14.5 percent this past year.

The reason is philosophy. Governor King is committed to holding down state spending and getting more tax dollars through a strong economy. Ex-Governor Dukakis' record was one of expanding the welfare state and paying for it by increasing taxes.

We are still paying the Dukakis "surtax" and the only way to avoid more Dukakis taxes — and the anti-business climate which drove many Massachusetts companies and jobs to New Hampshire — is to re-elect Gov. Edward J. King.

CPJ

For Lt. Governor

Samuel J. Rotondi

The Democratic slate for lieutenant governor offers voters a range of options from conservative to liberal, female to male, legislator to executive. Based on the experience this district has had with Sam Rotondi as its state senator, he deserves the vote for lieutenant governor.

Rotondi is a moderate who has been able to forge compromises in order to get things done. The civil service reform commission which he co-chaired produced a package that had the support of the varied and vying interest groups involved. Rotondi is associated with court reform, elderly abatements, women's rights and, of interest to those in the media, the police log bill which allows reporters to report on police activities.

He was the candidate to beat going into the state convention when Evelyn Murphy, to the surprise of many, won the nomination. The fact that a state senator from this area could put together such a grassroots effort statewide to be the person to beat that early in the contest is a tribute to Rotondi's abilities.

Under the constitution the lieutenant governor doesn't have any particular responsibilities which keep him busy all day. In this state the lieutenant governor is more of a stand-by, wait-in-reserve official than is the vice president. But a sharp, aggressive, articulate and intelligent lieutenant governor who knows his way around the legislature can be a real asset to the administration. He can help push the governor's legislative program and can make an important contribution through personal effort.

Sam Rotondi comes to the race with a good legislative record and an ability to work with others. He has the best background of all the candidates when it comes to legislative effectiveness. We believe his election would bring a new strength to this office and we know that he would do an excellent job.

CPJ

For State Senate

Richard Kraus

It might seem a little incongruous for a newspaper with a generally conservative viewpoint to endorse a candidate for State Senator who has been a liberal Democrat for the past 14 years. Philosophically, this is a very painful and difficult decision for us. But we think Dick Kraus of Arlington would make the best senator.

Kraus, who holds a Ph.D. from Harvard, served six years on the Arlington School Committee, where we had the opportunity to see him work with people and issues during some critical times of the early 1970s. He is fair, honest, straightforward and a very astute analytical thinker. And he takes all points of view into consideration before making a decision. We think these qualities would serve us well should Dick Kraus be elected.

Kraus understands that those who believe government should be primarily concerned with providing social services are going to have to compromise a lot in the future. The electorate is more conservative now — even in Massachusetts — than it was five years ago, and realistic politicians will need to make hard choices in balancing the interests competing for available dollars. His own criticism of liberal Democrats, like himself, is that "as long as they were getting what they wanted out of state government they didn't care how the rest of the state was run." And he believes that that has to change. We agree.

If elected, Kraus would resign from his position as Associate Dean for Administration at the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences at Harvard, to become a full-time State Senator. This would be a major financial sacrifice for him, but we think the people of this district would benefit greatly by having a man of his knowledge, ability and dedication as its next State Senator.

Letters To The Editor

Reader Slams Torres' Position On Using Deadly Force

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

This letter arises from that most compelling one of Mr. Peter Torres, entitled "Deadly Force in Self Defense," which appeared in your Sept. 2 issue. Mr. Torres is to be commended for so forcefully and openly stating what us bleeding hearts dare not say. Fanatics such as Mr. Torres are the most effective spokesmen for total gun control!

For example, Mr. Torres says, "A key to self defense is the possession of a better weapon than the adversary." And, "Is it excessive to rearrange an assailant with a shotgun when threatened with a knife, club, or other deadly weapon?" Now, those are excellent points — even if he did omit the deadly automobile.

I do have a little problem though in that I don't know exactly with what type weapon my assailant might assail me. Let's see, if he as a .22, then I should acquire a .38. But suppose she sports a .44; then I probably should shoulder a shotgun. Mr. Torres, should I saw it off so I can carry it hidden under my coat at high noon on Church st.? Just to be safe, please let it be known that I am shopping for one of those super light, fast, and accurate (!) Uzzis plus a Russian assault rifle. (Everyone knows those foreigners make far better quality stuff.)

Then, Mr. Torres goes on to say, "The bleeding hearts complain of occasional accidental deaths and injuries associated with firearms. A small price to pay for the elimination of anguish and suffering caused by intentional violence." How prescient of you, Mr. Torres! Why The Sept. 6 Boston Globe, just four days after your letter, related how one young man shot his friend at a wedding in Winthrop while a 16-year-old killed himself up in New Hampshire.

Naturally, one has to always carry his-her weapon, especially to weddings, as one never knows where or when one will be assailed. But, what the hell, there is no anguish or suffering attached to unintentional violence. Mr. Torres, just call those families over in Winthrop and Salem, N.H. and see for yourself.

Everyone knows the irrelevance of those numbers put out by pinko outfits, like the FBI etc., tabulating that the large, the very, very large percentage of those people shot are done in by husbands, wives, sons and daughters, brothers and sisters, lovers, and as in Winthrop, just plain friends. Afterall, guns are inanimate. So guns don't kill; family, friends, and lovers do which makes it just "a small price to pay without any anguish at all."

I am puzzled though by the logic of ultra-conservatives, such as I'd classify Mr. Torres, who vehemently oppose "murder" by abortion while strenuously advocating blowing away the little bastards later on. But, that is freedom of choice — and more fun!

As for me, I'm considering consulting a constitutional lawyer; preferably one of those Mr. Torres wishes to fire (on?). I thought it was prohibited in the Constitution to advocate anarchy.

Organically Grown Tomatoes Available At The Farm

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would appreciate it if you would call to the attention of your readers the fact that there is available here at this historical farm some of the finest tomatoes in this area.

The season is short, and for those who appreciate quality, now is the time to enjoy locally grown trellis tomatoes, produced here from seed, cultivated with loving care and nurtured with only those ingredients which nature alone bestows, which method is known as organic gardening.

Thank you,

Commuter Is Grateful For New Paint Job At Winchester Train Station

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In the years that I have been taking the commuter rail to Boston, I have never walked up the ramp to the station without thinking what an eyesore and disgrace to the town of Winchester the railroad station was.

Having been very vocal about the horrible conditions there, I feel I must be one of the first to speak up about the transformation that has taken place.

What a difference paint and a little care about litter makes!

I'm sure I speak for all the train riders in saying how much the improvement means to us. Thanks to whomever is responsible!

Pam Jervey

(Editor's note: The town Public Works Department is responsible for the clean-up. According to DPW director Dom Serratore, the department's summer help did most of the work in painting the rampway, cleaning up the litter, and repairing potholes in the lot. "The whole place was in bad shape, they really did a lot of work," commented Serratore. Serratore added that this year the town only repainted the walkway, but he hopes to get money in next year's budget to repaint and repair the entire station.)

Seniors Are Slighted In Winchester

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Can any oldtimers remember back, about three years, when Vin Carroll - inserted in the Town Warrant an article to exempt Senior residents from paying parking meter charges?

The Town Meeting, in its wisdom, turned down this proposal.

This seems to tell me that Seniors, some of whom are residents for over 45 years, are more welcome at Stoneham, Reading, Wakefield or West Medford.

Dance Academy Opens In Winchester

Business Spotlight

A dance academy will be opening up in Winchester. Donna Saldi of Revere said she decided to open the school in Winchester to fill a gap in the dance instruction available in town.

"There is just strictly ballet here," Saldi explained. "People had to go out of Winchester for jazz, tap, acrobatics, and gymnastics."

The Donna Saldi Academy of Dance will open its doors Saturday. Saldi said she believes the enjoyment and self-discipline of dance will contribute to a productive and well-rounded lifestyle and education in Winchester.

Former students of Saldi's were nationally recognized through the National Council of Dance Teachers Organization Inc. and the Dance Teachers Club of Boston, when they were tested in tap dancing, scoring superior honors with grades between 94 percent and 97 percent.

Saldi offers the National Medal Testing Program to students who would Saldi has received 12 medals in ballet, tap, and jazz dancing from the National Council of Dance Teachers Organization Inc. Three of her medals were gold. She is a graduate of the Dance Teachers Club of Boston — Teachers Training Course and holds the position of secretary-treasurer of the Greater East Boston Jr. Miss Scholarship Program.

Saldi is the originator of a dance therapy program for a drug rehabilitation center in Boston and teaches its members the art of dance and self-discipline, to help them develop their bodies as well as their minds while on the road to their recovery. Saldi is an active member of the Rubino Dance Troupe of Boston and has danced for many organizations including the Mass. Jr. Miss Program, Boston's 350th Anniversary Day at City Hall, and the Greater East Boston Jr. Miss Program. She has been selected as choreographer for the annual first communion classes at Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church in Boston.

The Academy of Dance (formerly of Suffolk County) is now accepting registration for its 1982-83 season. Classes range from pre-school through adult, beginner to advanced, and will include ballet, tap, jazz, acrobatic, gymnastics and toe.

Registration will be held today and tomorrow from 12 -3 p.m. at the V.F.W. Hall on River st.

Saldi will offer perfect attendance awards, the National Medal Testing Program, annual recital with full costume and full year dance scholarships.

"When you are interested in the enjoyment and self-discipline of dance, consider the professional and personal attention that is given at the Donna Saldi Academy of Dance," Saldi asid.

Hospice Offers Training Programs For Volunteers

Hospice Care Inc. is offering a training program for volunteers who want to give support to terminally ill patients and their families. This is an opportunity to gain some skills in and understanding of the loss and grief and tasks of losing a significant family member. Applicants are sought from the service area of Hospice Care: Arlington, Lexington, Winchester, Woburn and Burlington.

Volunteers participate in a 10-week training program, following which a commitment of one year of service to the program is required. Service requires from eight to 10 hours per week. Support and supervision for volunteers are included in that time as an integral part of the program.

Training begins in early October. Application may be made through calling the volunteer coordinator at the Hospice Office, 39 Hospital rd., Arlington.

An open letter to John Droney

Gargiulo
District Attorney

Hon. John J. Droney
District Attorney of Middlesex County
Cambridge, Massachusetts

DEAR JOHN:

Did you read the Globe study on crime in Middlesex County? People rated police performance favorably...but not the District Attorney's office. Too much plea bargaining...understaffing...reluctance to try a case...inexperience...incompetence.

It's all in the study...and your low conviction rate. You haven't kept up with the times, John. Victims of crime know it. I know it. Maybe you know it too.

We need a vigorous D.A. to replace you, John. I was an Assistant District Attorney in Middlesex County for many years. I worked with law enforcement agencies on every level...studied the violence of the '80's...prosecuted hundreds of criminals. I am the ONLY candidate who's prosecuted a criminal case in the past ten years.

The old way of running the D.A.'s office...your way for the past 23 years...doesn't work any more. Time for a change, John.

Respectfully,

Ed Gargiulo

Committee to Elect Edward Gargiulo District Attorney Middlesex County
546 Main Street Woburn, Massachusetts 01801 935-6911

VOTE TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14

Ed Gargiulo is the ONLY challenger who has EVER Prosecuted a criminal case.

He puts them away. And that's the Gargiulo Difference.

No Sink, No Toilet, No Electricity — This Is My Vacation?

By TERRY MAROTTA

Why do people voluntarily undergo hardship?

Why, for example, in this age of technological advancement, would a person choose to spend the weekend in a place with no toilet, no sink and no electricity? Why would one choose to freeze at night in the middle of the woods, and have no access to the simple balm of hot coffee without first gathering wood, chopping it, and building a fire?

Why would a person choose to do all this when he can stay home on a weekend, drinking whiskey sours, soaking in a warm bath, and watching the tube — possibly all at the same time?

I have no idea.

All I know is we chose to, with some freinds, a few weeks ago.

We went camping in Maine. We drove to this little cabin we'd built 10 years ago in the heart of the Northland.

We hadn't been up there for a good five years — not since the Short People came to live in our house — but we decided to go this one weekend: six crazed adults and seven children, the average age of whom works out to somewhere around three-and-three-quarters.

We left on Friday afternoon in a downpour that would have made Noah stand by for more information. We wobbled up Route 128 in caravan, three cars, stuffed to the ceilings: with sleeping bags, with air mattresses, with ponchos and with Pampers; with iron skillets, with flashlights, and with Star Wars Action Figures; with an old dented bugle and a provident supply of spirits.

We drove and drove and drove — through sheets of precipitation.

As we turned off the final highway, though, the skies cleared. A rainbow appeared in the west: no small arc such as we city-dwellers are accustomed to, but a full-sky, full-spectrum, full-technicolor beauty. We pulled over and got out to do it honor; it was beauty enough to feed a million people. And it seemed to us Eagle Scouts a good omen for the weekend. . . .

Twenty minutes later we found out otherwise.

We arrived at the campsite. We picked our way along the ledge above a ravine, inching like pack animals, some hundred yards into the woods.

Would the cabin still be there, we wondered? Would it still stand? Or would it have slowly toppled like so many rural barns and buildings, too tired in the end to outface all that weather?

It stood all right, though the door had been pulled off by curious hunters. There it was: our cabin, our shelter, our home away from home.

What we didn't realize till too late was that it had transformed itself, in the way of so much real estate these days, into a condominium — a condominium for bees.

Hundreds of them were living in there. And hundreds accused us, as if with one voice, of trespassing. . . .

The next 20 minutes defy description. The bees swooped up our pantlegs, involved themselves in our scalps, inspected the insides of our ears. . . . One among us created a spontaneous ballet of panic, running backwards and spraying individual attackers with Raid, while 40 cousin-attackers dive-bombed him from every direction.

The rest of the weekend proceeded in the same vein.

It was no warmer than 35 degrees at night. Each child needed to go to the non-bathroom at least three times between bedtime and sun-up. The lake where we pictured ourselves swimming was an arctic outpost, whipped by winds like those that must have blown over the silent glacial fields once covering North America. . . .

One of our cars blew up on the long trip home, sending a rust-colored geyser heavenward. We limped off the highway while the wretched vehicle discharged its life's blood in brown trickles. We all got out to contemplate this latest predicament. We looked, I don't doubt, like Okies of the poorest sort: a scruffy bunch in flannel and denim, distinctly unshowered and unshaven, and smelling pungently of wood-smoke; a bunch whose untidy children all wore pancake syrup on their cheeks and molten marshmallow in their hair. No wonder the cops stopped to question us. . . .

To top it all off, this writer contracted her first case of poison ivy, up and down the length of her adventurous outdoorsy limbs, poison ivy which she continues to scratch away at, even as she writes this memoir.

The weekend was, to say the least, an ordeal of the first order.

It was also wonderful.

We had that rainbow, after all. We had lots of laughs over those bees, once the danger had passed. We had a mist in the valley just after dawn. We had Taps, sweet and clear, from that old dented bugle. We had light the color of honey playing on the tops of the maples just before sunset.

And more than anything else, we had one another: a few people who sacrificed ease and comfort and hot baths and the Evening News to be together for two days on a hilltop under the late-summer stars.

We had that, and knew ourselves rich in the having.

Bruce Lasting Photography

For That Special Picture, Call Bruce Lasting Photographer

If it's that special picture of your child that you want to capture or the wedding you have dreamed about and want to remember forever, then Bruce Lasting Photography, 400 W. Cummings Park, Suite 2600, Woburn can perform the service.

"Basically, what I try to do is capture the essence of a person," said Lasting, who moved to Woburn from Lexington in March. "This involves being very highly sensitive and developing a rapport and a strong intuition," he explained.

Although specializing in protraiture photography, Lasting handles a wide array of photography chores including weddings and social occasions.

"Portrait photography is an extremely difficult specialty," Lasting said. "Very few master it. Those who do, can photograph the people that claim they have never been satisfied with their photograph. What makes it different is combining the knowledge of a psychologist, the sensitivity of an artist, and the ability to make complex choices of lighting, and angles that combine to make a successful photographer. That's the key to the whole thing."

Lasting has been a photography devotee since he was 12 and did wedding work at the age of 18. By 21, he had his first studio.

Recently, Lasting held a one-person show at the Piper Gallery in Cary Library in Lexington, and last year, the 1783 House in Monhegan Island, Maine, exhibited Lasting's work.

Bruce Lasting Photography is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Lasting advises calling 935-9015 for an appointment.

Bidding Opens For Data Processing

Firms wishing to furnish Winchester with a data processing system can place their bids with Town Manager Tom Groux on Tuesday, Sept. 14, beginning at 4 p.m.

All bids will then be reviewed by the data processing study committee and town officials. By fall Town Meeting, the committee will have selected the best proposal so it can report to Town Meeting members.

"I'm sure the committee will have their answer by the end of October and they'll be able to notify the bidders by mid-December," said Town Comptroller Alphonse Faggiano.

Many area firms have displayed a sharp interest in the town's computer search, according to town officials.

Judging from the turnout at an informational conference on Winchester's computer needs held by town officials Aug. 23, the town will be receiving a large number of proposals.

"We held that pre-bid conference to answer any questions that might be in the minds of the prospective bidders and about 40 people showed up representing about 23 different vendors," Faggiano said.

"There was a great deal of interest," agreed Assistant Town Manager Rick White. "We mailed out over 70 requests for proposals and we received at least 10 requests for the specifications."

The requests were mailed out to firms on a municipal listing from the state Dept. of Community Affairs. Faggiano noted, however, that the town had also been contacted by people in the field who were not in the state listing.

According to town officials, Winchester needs a new data processing system because the present one is outdated. At Spring Town Meeting, $100,000 was appropriated to update or replace the current system. That money was set aside contingent upon a report from the data processing study committee on the status of the search at Fall Town Meeting.

"There has been a lot of interest from area firms, but the work of the committee has just begun," White noted.

$1 Million In Tax Dollars Set Aside For Sewer Studies

One million dollars in tax money will be going into the town's sewers in the next 10 years, and residents can find out what that money will do at a public hearing Sept. 15.

Coffin and Richardson, the firm which has been studying the town's sewer system for five years, will make its final report at the Hearing Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Jenks Senior Center.

As a result of Coffin and Richardson's preliminary report to the selectmen in March, the town appropriated $108,000 at the spring Town Meeting to begin rehabilitating the town's sewer system.

Coffin and Richardson's suggestions range from increasing the size of sewer pipes on Wedgemere ave., replacing three pumping stations, and building a relief sewer line on Everett ave.

The suggestions are all designed to cut down overflow of sewer lines during storms, such as those which occur near the Winchester Boat Club on Cambridge st.

Commission Declines To Investigate Josephson

The threat of an investigation by the state Ethics Commission no longer hangs over Assessor Sherman Josephson.

Josephson's opponent in the last town election, Joseph Bentley of Stratford rd., charged during and after the election that because Josephson was a realtor in town, there was a possibility of a conflict.

Immediately after losing to Josephson by 39 votes, Bentley brought his charges to the state Ethics Commission. Last week, Bentley said the charges had been dropped.

Bentley said the Ethics Commission wrote him that he would have to detail specific instances of a conflict before it investigated the charges.

Bentley noted that a letter from the Ethics Commission's director of investigations, James Sullivan, stated the commission was "unable to determine if any of the provisions (of the conflict-of-interest statute) have been violated".

"If you have any information relating to any specific activities or transactions involving Mr. Josephson in either his assessor or real estate broker role which you feel constitutes a conflict of interest, please bring it to our attention," Sullivan wrote Bentley.

Bentley said he didn't plan to do the legwork for the commission.

"As far as I'm concerned, this is over," said Bentley. "It should be buried."

Josephson said the decision not to investigate "didn't surprise me."

"I think this just vindicates my long-standing position, which I stated before the election," he said.

In a pre-election candidates' night, Josephson dismissed Bentley charges, noting that if any property he was involved with as a realtor came before the Board of Assessors, he would not vote on any action toward it.

Since Josephson was elected, the Board of Assessors has reviewed the values on several properties owned by Josephson. Josephson has left the room during such discussions.

ENKA PAINTERS — The EnKa Exchange at 736 Main st. reopens its doors Sept. 15 for the start of its 24th season. EnKa Exchange Reopens And Accepts Donations

The Enka Exchange will open on Sept. 15 for the start of its 24th season. The shop located at 736 Main street will be open for business on Wednesdays, 10-4 and 7-9; Thursdays, 10-4; Fridays, 10-1; and for the first time this year on Saturdays, 9-12.

"Take In" of clothing is on Wednesdays only each week. However, during the first week, clothing will be taken in on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 15, 16 and 17.

Clothing must be clean, in style and in season and is accepted on consignment with 50 percent of the sale being returned to the donors. The other half goes to Enka so not only do the patrons appreciate a monetary return but also enjoy the thought that all of Enka's share goes back to the community through the society's continuous donations to many worthwiile civic projects.

Men's, women's, children's and infant's clothes fill the racks at the shop. Items not sold in the first four-week period are then reduced in price for the next three weeks after which they are given to a worthy charitable organization.

The ever-increasing number of buyers and sellers coming from many miles in every direction outside of Winchester seems to be proof that Enka customers are happy customers.

A New Version Of An Old Line: He Who Laughs, Lasts

Guest Column

By ROBERT McINNIS

A well known doctor once wrote: "From there to here, from here to there, funny things are everywhere." Thus spoke Doctor Seuss, and rightly so.

We live in a day and age where "Billy Beer" cans are being auctioned off for thousands of dollars and Robert Young is giving us medical advice. Still, with this and a lot more to laugh about, it appears that we have a serious problem at hand. As Jesse Bier, in his book "The Rise and Fall of American Humor," solemnly declared, "We are in great part humorless as never before."

I'm sure some of you may be questioning the importance of such a problem. You're not alone.

Plato argued that humor degrades art, religion, and politics, and therefore should be avoided by civilized man. The Bible too frowns on laughter. In Ecclesiastes it is written: "A fool lifteth up his voice in laughter, but a wise man doth scarce smile a little."

Even as recently as a few centuries ago, laughter was considered inappropriate in polite society. Voltaire, when asked if he ever laughed, replied, "No, I have never made ha-ha."

But that was then, and we both know how times have changed.

In fact, the meaning of the word "humor" itself has gone through a strange metamorphasis.

In old medieval physiology, humor referred to the four principal fluids of the body: blood, phlegm, cholor (or yellow bile), and melancholy (or black bile). The predominance of any of these fluids determined a man's health or temperament, or mood. A just balance made a good compound called "good humor," while a preponderance of any one made a bad compound called "ill humor."

And so it followed that you are in good humor if your blood, phlegm, and bile are in good order. Perhaps this explains why the Good Humor man is always smiling.

Now the more recent definition of humor is quite different.

Webster defines humor as "that quality which appeals to a sense of the ludicrous or absurdly incongruous." People who can sense this quality are said to have a sense of humor.

So why is it so important to have a sense of humor? For a partial answer we can look to the business sector. Robert Orben operates the world's only humor service for business. He calls himself a "comedy consultant." He has found that corporate executives need a sense of humor to loosen up stockholders' meetings, to clinch deals, and to overcome their nervousness in public meetings, to name just a few.

And if profits are any indication of demand, Orben is a very much sought after man. Each year he makes $250,000 from his services, which doesn't include the times when he writes entire "specialized" speeches for an executive for up to $2,000 each.

It seems to Orben's customers that humor pays. But what about for the rest of us? Why is humor important to us? The answer is this: Doctors have found that a sense of humor has a beneficial effect, both physically and mentally, on all of us.

On the physical side, scientists studying the effects of laughter on people have reported a measurable effect on many important organs, including the lungs.

In fact, a few years back, a doctor in London escorted a 13-year-old polio patient to a musical comedy to develop his chest muscles and to improve his overall breathing. That night marked the first time the boy had breathed on his own in over a year.

Laughter, reported one study, "reduces health-sapping tensions and relaxes the issues as well as exercising the most vital organs. . . ."

Abraham Lincoln once said, "When I lose my power to laugh, my heart will break." But does it follow that when you gain the power to laugh, your heart, if broken, will come together?

Well, in 1977, Norman Cousins had the unique opportunity to answer this question and see just how valuable a sense of humor is. You see, Norman was literally breaking apart, coming unstuck so to speak. He was suffering from a disease of the connective tissue and doctors said he had a 1 in 500 chance of recovering from this fatal disease.

But he kept his sense of humor.

He moved into a hotel room, which he seemed to think a lot funnier than a hospital. Then he called up none other than Allen Funt, producer of "Candid Camera," and had him send over some of his "Candid Camera Classics." And he laid there in bed and laughed.

After his first day of treatment, the doctors noticed a marked improvement in his "sticking ability." In only a few years, Norman was fully recovered and back at his job as editor of the Saturday Review.

And finally, it seems that a sense of humor is a favorable value to society. A well rounded sense of humor is one of the surest signs of intelligence. Children who laugh easily and often are more likely to be referred to by their elders as "beautiful" or "handsome" or "attractive." And these judgments tend to carry over into later life.

But more importantly, a sense of humor is a sign of man's triumph over his weaknesses, because it shows he can permit ambiguities. It is also a measurement of man's adjustment to his environment.

A sense of humor puts our lives in perspective. For in this age of nuclear threat, inflation, unemployment, and deoderant failure, we must all keep our sense of humor. It is good for our bodies. It is good for our minds. And it helps us adjust to the world around us.

Perhaps one could say that he who laughs, lasts.

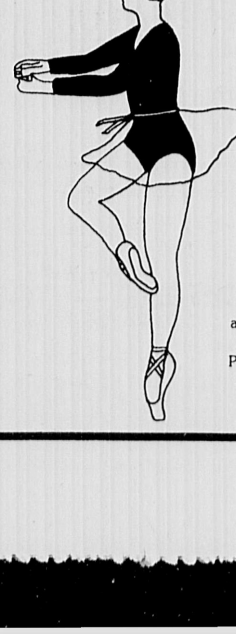
The Harriet Hoctor Ballet School


Mary B. Vasel, Director - 32nd Year in Winchester Announcing Registration Dates for the 1982-1983 Season:
Thursday, Sept. 9 — 1:00 pm - 5:00 pm
Saturday, Sept. 11 — 10:30 am - 2:00 pm
Registration will take place at our studio: 19 Thompson Street, Winchester Center
For further information, call: 729-6080 (studio on above dates and times) or 438-1586 (mornings, evenings and weekends.
The Harriet Hoctor Ballet School is not a "dance recital" school which spends students' class time and money on preparation and expensive costumes. Total class time is spent learning and improving technique and skill. We are a "training" school with efforts directed toward the goal of giving our students a secure foundation in classical ballet technique while developing coordination, rhythm, poise and self-discipline, which is so important to the beginning and intermediate student. We also give the individual guidance and attention to those students who wish to go on and pursue a career as a professional ballet dancer.
Pre-Ballet Program (Weekday & Saturday classes available) Children's Graded Classes •Teenage Classes •Special Morning Mother's & Adult Class •Adult Classes (Beginner, Int.-Adv., Evenings and Saturdays) •Pointe Classes

ELECTION TIME — Winchester voters will go to the polls on Tuesday for the Republican and Democratic primaries. This year's races include the battle between Edward King and Michael Dukakis for the Democratic candidacy for governor. Resident Samuel Rotondi is running in an eight-person field for Lt. Governor. For Winchester, the key election is the Democratic primary battle for state senator, with eight candidates running for the Democratic spot on the ticket. With no Republican candidate for the office, the primary could well decide who Winchester's state senator will be. Polls in Winchester will open at 7 a.m. and continue to collect votes until 8 p.m. Voting places have not been changed since the March election — Precincts 1 and 2 will vote in Town Hall, Precincts 3 and 4 in the Lincoln School, Precincts 5 and 6 in the Vinson-Owen School and Precincts 7 and 8 in the Lynch School. Above are the sample ballots for both the Democratic and Republican primaries.

As long as it is a pleasant experience, a young puppy is usually eager to come to you when you call its name or whistle. You can encourage obedience to your call by being playful or patting him. Do not call a puppy to you for the purpose of punishment. A stubborn dog can learn to respond to your call if he is put on a long rope. Call his name and give the rope a gentle tug. If he responds to the call reward him with a loving gesture. Do not drag the dog to make him respond. It is unhealthy and will lead to fear and cowering. If your call elicits no response exercise patience and do not press the issue for a time.

Do you have a new puppy? Get off to a good start with a visit to BREEDERS PRIDE PET CARE CENTER, 665 Mass. Ave., Arlington. We offer everything you would expect to find in a fine store such as ours and then we feature a lot more. One item is our starter kit to get both of you started on the right foot ... paw ... whatever. It includes a training crate, collar, leash, run or tether, professional diet, flea collar, feeding station and yummies for good behavior for your pet. Come see us soon. You'll be glad you did. Open 9-6 Mon., Tues., Wed. & Fri.; til 8 Thurs.; 9-5 Sat. VISA and Master Card accepted.

P.S. Positive reinforcement is a valuable learning method for teaching your dog.

On The Street

This week, The Star asked residents if they planned to vote in the state primary Sept. 14, and if so, whether or not they had decided who to vote for.

However, all of those who said they did not intend to vote also did not intend to have their photograph featured in "On The Street." As one man in this group put it, "No, I'm not going to vote. They're all bums anyway."

Bill Schwab

Church St., Local Businessman

Yes, I'm going to vote, only because I registered recently when I moved to town. I do think it's my civic duty to vote. I don't know who I'm going to vote for yet – I'd planned to look into the candidates in the next few days before I really decide.

Maria Snyder

Alden Ln., Housewife

Of course I'm going to vote, but I haven't made up my mind who I'm going to vote for. It usually takes me until the day I'm voting until I know who I'll vote for. I don't think there's much difference in the candidates anyway.

Katharine Schmitt

Winthrop St., Teacher

"Yes, it's my responsibility to vote. And I'm interested in the elections – the gubernatorial race. No, I haven't decided (who to vote for in the local races). I intend to read what I can before I vote. I always cram the week before the elections.

Steve O'Brien

So. Border Rd.,

Social Studies Teacher

"Yes, I am going to vote. I have decided who I'll vote for. (In the governor's race), I'm not so much voting on position as performance in the past. And I lean toward the incumbent candidate. In the state senate race, I was an aide in the state senate, so I have more interest in that race than most. Whoever wins the primary (for state senate) wins the whole bag. This is the only race for the Democrats. And only 10 to 15 percent of the people vote. That percent decides the senate seat."

Renowned Chomsky Opens Forums On Nuclear Arms

The Winchester-Woburn Citizens for a Mutual Nuclear Weapons Freeze, in conjunction with the Arlington, Bedford, Burlington, Lexington and Waltham freeze groups, are sponsoring a series of evening forums, beginning on Sept. 15 and continuing on susequent Wednesday evenings until Oct. 14.

Scientists and policymakers will be addressing the public with their hopes of developing a survivable nuclear arms policy.

Noam Chomsky, the distinguished MIT author and lecturer on many subjects (including linguistics, foreign affairs, American foreign policy and human rights) will open the series on Wednesday, Sept. 15 at 8 p.m., at the Clarke Junior High School, Brookside ave, Lexington. The title of this forum will be the "New Cold War."

Future speakers include John Mack M.D., Jonathan King, John Pastore M.D., and Congresssman Edward Markey.

There is a minimal fee for each lecture and subscripton rates are available for the whole series. For further information, plese contact Steve Wirtz, 107 Mt. Vernon st.

Art Exhibit

"Three Faces West," a new exhibit at the Depot Square Artists Gallery, 1837 Mass. ave., Lexington Center (lower level), will be on view from Sept. 7 through Oct. 2, Tuesday through Saturday, 10-5 p.m.

The three artists, Evelyn Carlson, watercolorist: Patricia Hilpert, clay sculptor; and Anne Sullivan, painter and printmaker, influenced by their travels throught the West and Southwest areas of America, explore light, color and texture within their choice of media.

Their individual expressions of form and mood echo the many contrasts of the Western landscape, ranging form the subtle and the subdued, to the colorful and dramatic. The symbolism, religious and artistic contributions of the early and present inhabitants of the region have been incorporated within their works of art and interpreted in a contemporary manner.

An opening reception will be held on Sunday, Sept. 12 form 4 to 7 p.m. The public is invited to meet the artists and discuss their works.

Evelyn Carlson has been a resident of Arlington for many years. A member of the Arlington Art Association and exhibitor at the town library, Carlson has garnered many prizes and honors. She is a juried member of the New England Water Color Society, Hudson Valley Art Association and Lexington Arts and Crafts Society.

Patricia Mueller Hilpert resides in Arlington where she maintains her clay sculpting studio. She is a graduate of Syarcuse University and obtained her master's of fine arts degree from the Museum of Fine Arts School and Tufts University. She has exhibited her work both on a regional and national level.

Anne Sullivan is a former resident of Arlington. Her prints batiks and paintings have been prize winners in many local and regional exhibits.

Soccer Club To Begin Fall Season

The Winchester Soccer Club fall season will start this Saturday, Sept. 11. Each player will be contacted by his-her coach regarding team placement and field schedule.

All registered girls are requested to pick up their soccer shirts today at the Manchester Field (5 p.m. 1st-4th grade, 5:30 5th grade and up).

All registered boys will receive their soccer shirts directly from their coaches.

Amberwood Neighbors Demand Quick Removal

'I don't feel like I'd like to put my nose in business that's not within my jurisdiction from the seat I hold. I don't choose to usurp the authority of elected (health) officials.' —Selectman Chairman Alan Macdonald

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Barring an outright refusal by developer Felix Pitterino to comply with the town's orders to remove the chemically-contaminated fill from his lots on Amberwood dr., the selectmen are not going to interfere with the removal process.

The board refused, despite the pleas of frustrated residents who came before the board to enlist additional town help to speed up the delayed fill removal.

"I don't feel I'd like to put my nose in business that's not within my jurisdiction from the seat I hold," said Selectman Chairman Alan Macdonald at the board's Tuesday night meeting. "I don't choose to usurp the authority of elected (health) officials. This has not been a limelight issue for the Board of Selectmen and I prefer to keep it that way.

"Yes, the fill is still there, but I do believe this board is involved as much as it can be," Macdonald continued. "If the developer outright refused to remove it, then this board should be involved.

Those comments were inspired by six residents who came to the selectmen to ask the board to use its power to ensure that all the hazardous landfill material is removed quickly.

The Board of Health ruled that the fill had to be removed by the start of school. After Pitterino could not find a site to dump the fill, he was given an extension until Sept. 7 to have the fill out of town.

However, Pitterino had only first begun to cart loads of fill out of town on Sept.7.

While residents stressed that they felt the Board of Health was very cooperative in the removal process, they were frustrated with the lack of results.

"We know the selectmen don't control the health board, but we feel this problem has mushroomed," said Ann Esposito of Johnson rd. "Is there a posture the selectmen could take to supersede the health board?"

Macdonald said that after closely following the situation he was confident the fill would be removed.

"We've been assured that an honest effort has been made by the developer to remove the fill and as I understand it, there was fill removed today," Macdonald said. "The ultimate result of legal action would not have been as satisfactory, since the fill would have had to sit there for weeks while the matter was taken up in court."

"I've determined that there is good faith," he continued. "Progress is being made — not as quickly as we'd like, but it is being made."

The residents complained that Pitterino has been dumping good fill on top of the contaminated fill. That action, residents said, would make it extremegy difficult for the town to ensure that all the contaminated fill is removed.

"With all that new fill that he's placed on it (contaminated fill) how are we to be assured that at least half of that fill will be removed," asked Patsy Schlaikjer of Amberwood dr. (Health Director) Steve Weinstein said that "he'd know when all the fill has been removed by the amount of truckloads that go out, but if it gets mixed with the good fill, how can we be sure?"

Macdonald and Town Manager Tom Groux said the Board of Health had measures to determine that the fill was removed which were more scientific than counting truckloads.

"The Board of Health will make inspections periodically and examine the loads going out and the fill on the site," Groux told the residents. "They're not simply depending on a pure count.

The residents were also concerned that traffic from the dump trucks would cause problems for children commuting to the nearby Vinson-Owen Elementary School. They suggested that the trucking be curtailed during the commuting hours.

But Groux was concerned that any additional restrictions the town placed on Pitterino would delay the fill removal process further.

"At this point, I'm rather concerned that we not give the developer any reason to delay the removal he began today," Groux told the residents Tuesday. "We'll have an extra patrol car at Johnson rd. and we have an extra school crossing guard there, but the town must be concerned not to give the developer an excuse not to comply with the order to remove the fill."

Groux said he feared the removal would definitely be delayed if Pitterino were told, as residents had suggested, to curtail the trucking during the two hours when elementary school children were commuting.

"I'd be nervous to give the developer an excuse that the site he is going to dump his fill on is now closed to him because he didn't get there on time," Groux said. "I did ask the developer to restrict work during those hours and he said that would cause him problems."

Groux also noted that after consulting with state environmental officials, he was convinced that there would not be a health hazard caused by the dust which might be in the air during the removal process.

there (to Amberwood)," Corcoran admitted. "Kids will hear that and head right for it."

The town is also taking steps to protect the Vinson-Owen pupils on their way to school. Because of the heavy trucking expected while the fill is being taken out of Amberwood, an extra crossing guard has been assigned to Johnson rd., and a police squad car will cruise the area during school hours, according to Town Manager Thomas Groux.

Some parents had hoped the precautions would go further — to requiring that trucking of the fill be halted while children were on their way to Vinson-Owen.

"Truck traffic should be curtailed before and after school, so there is no chance the children will be exposed to dust from the trucks," said Anne Esposito of Johnson rd. "The parents would like a definite commitment on that."

But Amberwood developer Felix Pittorino, the man responsible for removing the fill, will not give that commitment, according to Town Manager Groux.

Groux told the Board of Selectmen Tuesday night that Pittorino felt stopping work twice each day would increase the problems of removing the fill.

For now, many of the Vinson-Owen parents are satisfied that the fill will be removed, feeling that final solution to the Amberwood problem is worth a few days of trucking and digging.

"It's unfortunate that they're beginning to remove the fill the day before the kids go back to school, but I'm glad to see that they are finally getting underway in removing it," commented Susan Rowe, last year's president of the Vinson-Owen Parents' Association.

Rowe, a High st. resident, said she was not too worried about her children being exposed to the fill, but added, "Fortunately, I live a healthy distance away from Amberwood dr.

"I would not want my children playing in the vicinity of the removal, though," she added. "Thank God my kids don't live near there. If I were a parent up there, I'd be up in arms."

Kathy Wilson, this year's V-O Parents' Assn. president, agreed that she would rather see it was better to have the fill trucked out, even with chances of children being exposed to the dust, than leaving it on Amberwood.

"I don't like the fact that it (the fill) is there, and that my children will be going to school while it's there," said Wilson. "But I don't think being exposed to it for the short term is anything compared to having it there for the long term."

Parents may become more vocal in their feelings on the Amberwood fill as the removal goes on.

Esposito noted that she planned to send a newsletter to parents, informing them of what's gone on in Amberwood over the summer.

Winterer said she thought many parents would need that information, since families left town during summer months.

"I don't think a lot of people know what's going on," she said. "When they sandbagged this through the summer, it diffused a lot of momentum we had going to get the fill out."

But with summer over and the fill still near Vinson-Owen, the parents' movement might start rolling again.

Teams Gird For Fall

Cahill, Porell To Lead Sachem Grid Team Manned By New Crop Of Players

By DAVE LEECO

For the past two years, when Sachem football coach Manny Marshall has been asked how his team looks for the upcoming season, he has given the same guardedly pessimistic answer.

"Looks pretty thin," he says. "If somebody gets hurt, I don't know what we're going to do."

Last year, of course, the Sachem's thinness was illusionary — at least it didn't stop them from taking a share of the Middlesex League title.

And when Marshall was faced with a key injury — a broken collarbone to QB Richie Fennell four games from the end of the season — he figured out something to do. In went Chris Cahill, who beat the league's two top teams, Woburn and Reading, to give Winchester a peice of the crown.

But this season, Marshall may have a bit more to worry about. Only five of the senior starters are back from last year's Sachem grid squad. Twenty-seven seniors — including last year's captains Mark Micciche, Paul Manganaro and Steve Costello, quarterback Rich Fennell and the tackling twins Jeff Lavey and Jim Barger, have graduated.

Those graduations stripped Marshall of his defensive line, and his offensive and defensive backfield. Right now, he's just trying to fill the holes.

Not that things are hopeless for this year's Sachems — far from it.

The offense will be in the game-tested hands of Cahill, a smart quarterback with an impressive arm. Cahill will be working out of the standard Winchester wishbone, giving him the freedom to pass or run the ball.

The wishbone, however, depends on having a speedy backfield. Last year, the speed came from Steve Costello who rolled to over 1,000 yards on the season.

This year, Marshall has two candidates each for the fullback and halfback positions.

Most of Cahill's handoffs will probably go to Chuck Allard, who will be sharing the halfback duties with Chris Rogers.

Allard showed some good moves last season coming from the fullback spot, and Marshall hopes he can spark the Sachem ground game.

"There isn't really a Stevie Costello this year, unless it might be Allard," said Marshall. "Chucky Allard could be really good, he has that kind of speed."

To fill out the running game, Marshall will platoon Will Hurley and David Fiorillo at halfback. For the air game, he has the McDonald brothers, Steve and Rob, coming back to haul in passes.

Because of the thinness of the team, Marshall will use many of the same personnel for both offense and defense. "Every one of our starters will be playing both ways," the coach noted.

Field Hockey Team To Battle Odds To Produce A Winning Season This Year

The odds seemed stacked against the Sachemettes field hockey team, but that doesn't mean coach Pat Ryser isn't working furiously to turn her team into winners.

Field hockey has never been the popular girls' sport at Winchester High — many of the best female athletes chose soccer over field hockey.

Those that do go out for Ryser's squad find themselves facing tough competition throughout the season.

"To me, the Middlesex League is pretty strong as far as field hockey," commented Ryser. "I'm sure we're going to have our tough games."

And this year, the Sachemettes must prepare for that competition in a hurry. Pre-season practices began just last week, and the girls will face their first season game next Tuesday.

"Usually in the pre-season I have my assistant coach work with the girls who are new to the game, teaching them the fundamentals, while I work with the girls who are a little more experienced," noted Ryser. "With those girls, I do some drills, and I use the drills in a game situation.

"But now, because the season is coming on so quick, I can't do a lot of that — I don't have time," continued Ryser. "We've got to take everybody into a game situation."

But despite those difficulties, Ryser believes she has the players this year to improve on last year's losing record.

The Sachemettes have three experienced tri-captains this year in Sheila Connolly, Beth Miara and Karen Buckley. That combined field know-how should help the rest of the team through the early games, when the moves are still being learned.

Ryser also sees three new players on this year's squad whom she said will punch up the Sachemette offense.

Liz Doherty, who played half a season for the varsity last year, and Jean Romeo and Sharon Fitzgerald, who played junior varsity, will all be contributing at forward this season. Ryser noted all three girls have shown promise during the first days of practice.

Ryser noted that it was still too early to predict who would be playing where for her team, as practices just began and school isn't in session yet.

"It's really up in the air as to who's where," she said. "I'll have a better idea after the scrimmages."

Winchester scrimmaged Danvers on Wednesday, and will take on Malden in a scrimmage at Winchester High tomorrow.

Ryser did notice one other good sign

Allard Readies To QB Crimson Eleven

If anyone has ever accused Winchester's Don Allard of being two-faced, it was probably not meant as an insult. The fact of the matter is that Allard is a versatile, two-sport athlete for Harvard College, a man who trades the summer baseball batting helmet for a football helmet in the fall. In Division I athletics, it is very rare to see an individual compete in two varsity sports and have such success in both, let alone either. But take a look at Allard's numbers.

In his junior year of football, he passed for 344 yards as the backup quarterback to Ron Cuccia. His .517 completion percentage was the best on the team. He rushed for one touchdown, passed for another and gained 447 yards in total offense.

In baseball, the right fielder hit .322 with 29 hits, 20 runs scored and 25 RBIs. He had five doubles, eight home runs and 16 walks, as the Crimson diamondmen went 17-16. Assistant football coach Larry Glueck understates the matter by saying, "Don is an excellent athlete."

Allard is not bothered by the transition from one sport to another on such short notice. "I'm used to the transition," he said. "This year my team didn't make the playoffs, so I was back a little sooner than I'm used to, but I really wanted to get back."

This past summer, Allard played for the Falmouth Commodores of the Cape Cod League, one of the most competitive amateur summer leagues in the country. He was his usual self, hitting nine homers, tied for second in the league in that category. But baseball was not the only activity on the Cape for Allard, as he ran in the Falmouth Road Race, which has become one of the biggest in the country.

"It's a nice course to run, but nicer to drive," he conceded.

This year's winner of the 7.2 mile race was Alberto Salazar, who holds the record for the Boston Marathon.

"I never saw Salazar, either before, during or after. He was probably finished when I was at the four-mile mark," Allard added with a chuckle. "But there are plenty of people on the Cape during the summer and coming back to Winchester seems dull. There's always something happening down there."

But this year, Allard noted, he was quite ready to come back, finish school and get started on another football season. He was back a little early, like he said, throwing passes to Jim Garvey and other members of the team who were in the area. He would also occasionally go down to Winchester High School because, "There's always a million kids down there who want to go out for passes. That's okay with me, as long as they bring the balls back."

Allard pointed out that the Crimson football team has a great amount of versatility of its own. "We are very versatile, especially on the line. (Mike) Corbat was All-Ivy and (Greg) Brown was All-Ivy. They can play anywhere," Allard claims, "and they don't need that much of a chance to prepare because of the Multi-flex," and opinion that seems to be etched in everyone's mind.

"In coach Restic's offense, everyone knows all the positions," he continued. "That is the whole concept. It's the same thing in the backfield."

Which may help to explain the fact that Harvard lined up with two quarterbacks in the same backfield on more than one occasion last year, once with Cuccia in motion.

But with all the tricky plays and different alignments, Allard made a keen observation. "I think the coaching staff would like to bring up a sophomore and let him play at one position until he got to know the system. He stays there and learns the system while the others who know it move around," Allard said.

There is one interesting difference between Allard's situation on the football team and on the baseball team. In baseball, he is the team's right fielder and will start every game. But on the gridiron, he is in competition with the incumbent Ron Cuccia. But it has not changed his hard-working attitude and is confident that all can be worked out this year, and a winning season can be had.

"Every year, the senior group feels 'This is our year,'" he explained. "Well,

Last Year's Champion Soccer Team Decimated By Graduation Of Starters

Soccer coach Gene Bouley is not big on pre—season predictions —— he knows there are too many good teams in the Middlesex League to choose one winner.

But this year, Bouley can't even begin to fathom how his Sachems will fare. He doesn't even know who his starters will be.

He does know that this year's team will have a hard job repeating last year's record, which included winning half of the state championship after a final that went to an unbreakable tie.

The problem is , the team that won that championship left when Winchester High's senior class graduated in June.

"We have no starters back," said Bouley. "All of the boys who were regularly starting last year are gone."

Bouley's not exaggerating. The point men on offense and defense —— center Paul Williamson and goalie Mark Sterenka —— won't be playing this fall. The Sachem's top scorers —— Mike Gorrasi, Eric Lowenstein, Brian Guarnotta and David Suvak —— have gone on to other schools, other sports.

That leaves Bouley trying to build another winner.

"We're putting things together, moving people around right now," said Bouley. "We've tried to work out some things at practice —— we've moved linesmen to defense, defensemen to the lines, just trying to find a combination that works."

Bouley's seen a few positive signs in practice, but said that he needs to see his team perform in a game before he can really tell what needs to be done.

He'll get that chance this week, when the team scrimmages against Concord—Carlisle. The season starts Tuesday, with a game which would have tested last year's squad. Wakefield, last year's league champ, will be the Sachems' first opponent.

Bouley's been drilling his charges in double sessions during the last week to prepare for that season opener.

"We're handling the ball pretty well at the middle of the field," said Bouley hopefully. "But we haven't been moving it well at either end."

"We haven't been finishing it off at the goal line, and we've let balls in at our goal we're not used to have going in," Bouley continued.

To help out on those two ends, Bouley is looking to either John Shirley or Eric Svahn in the net, Chip Triglione at the line and Mark Herlihy at center.

Shirley saw some action in the net last year, when regular goalie Mark Sterenka broke a finger. And Triglione blossomed at the end of last season, playing well in the final tournament games.

"I still think we can be a respectable team this year," said Bouley. "It may be a slower start this year than last, but things are coming together."

THE MAN WHO MAKES HEADLINES IN MIDDLESEX COUNTY – DISTRICT ATTORNEY JOHN DRONEY

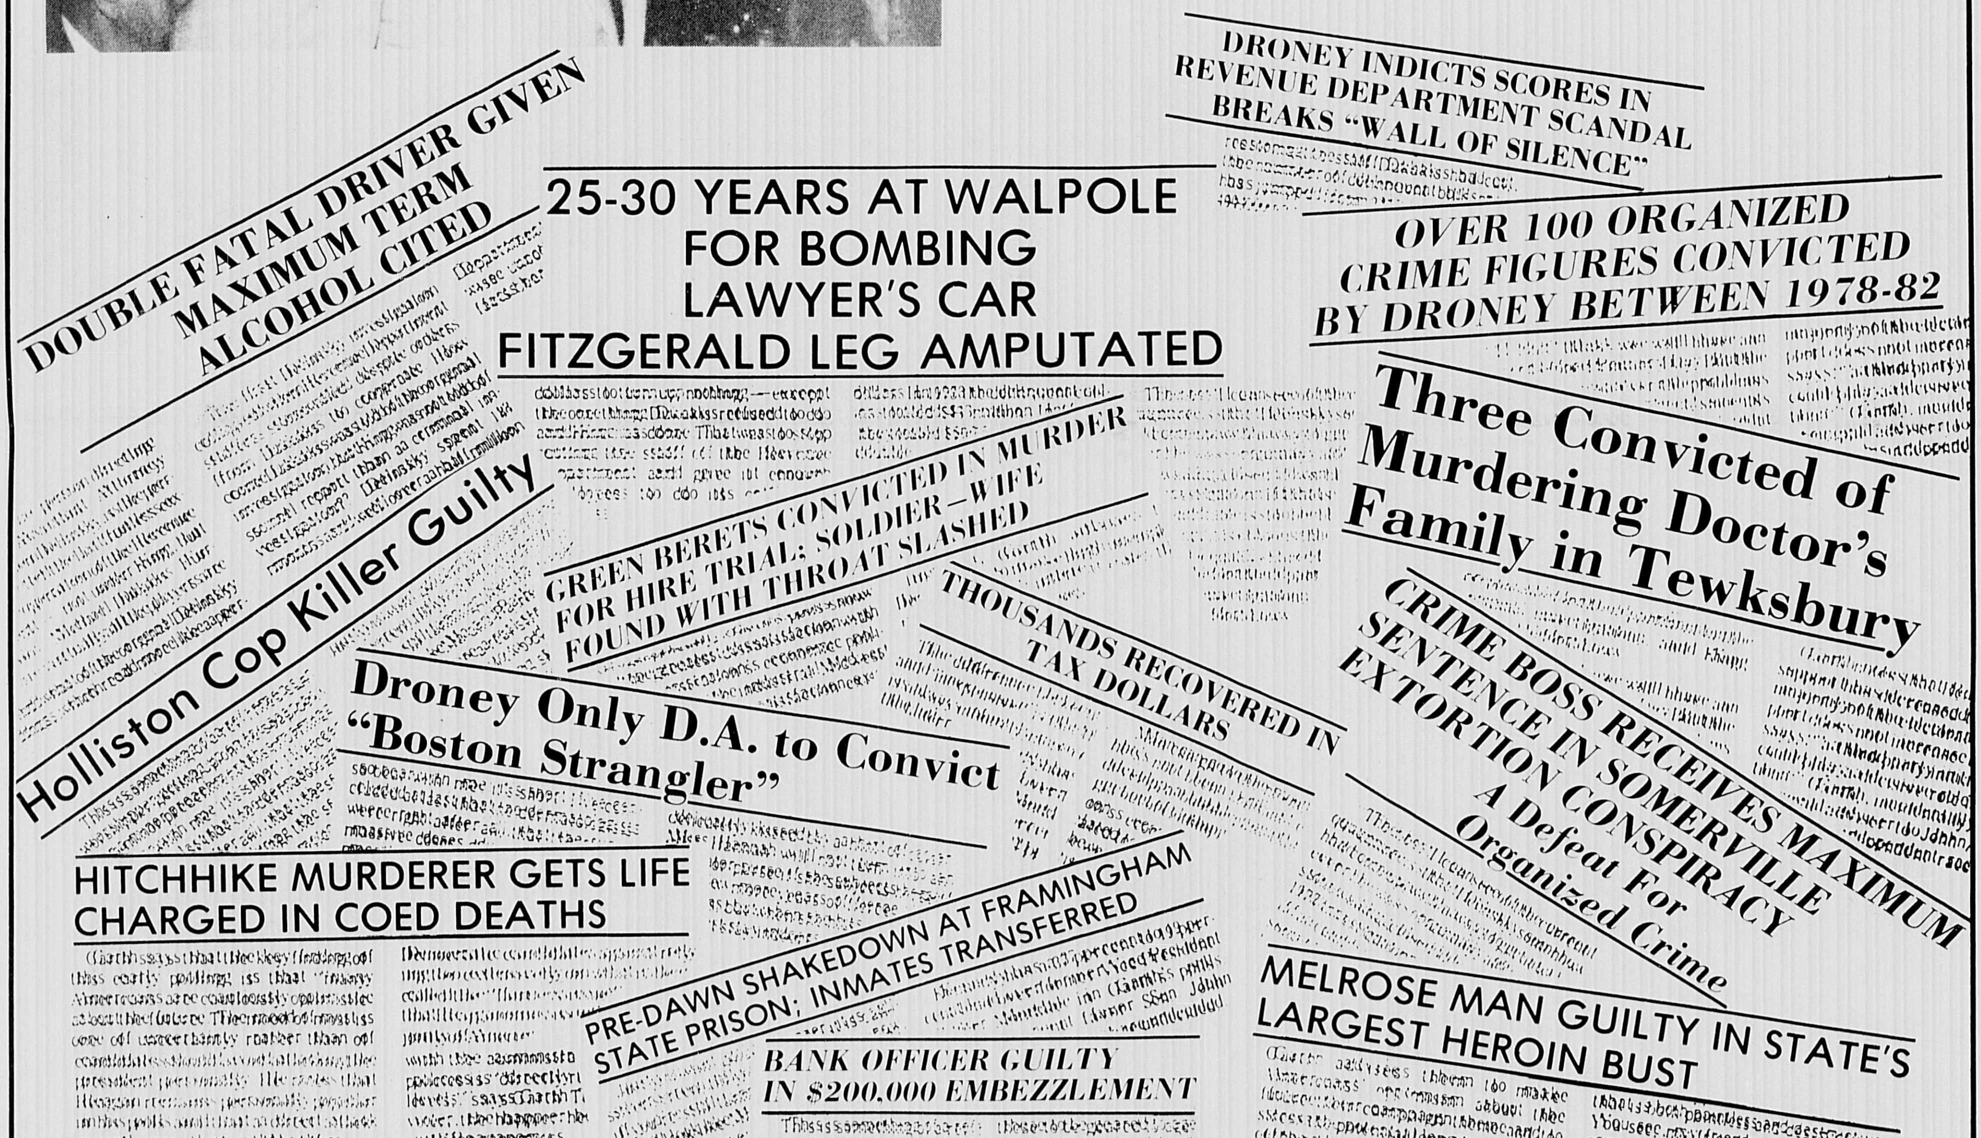
"I recommended John Droney as District Attorney because his ability and integrity have never been questioned, and I value him as one of my close friends."
JOHN F. KENNEDY



A PROSECUTOR WHO IS TOUGH ON CRIMINALS

John Droney has made headlines as Middlesex County District Attorney for the past 23 years. During that time, he has been uncompromising in his determination to protect the lives and property of the people. He has firmly adhered to these policies:

- NO PLEA BARGAINING
- MANDATORY JAIL TERMS FOR DRUG DEALERS
- MANDATORY JAIL TERMS FOR HOUSEBREAKERS
- MANDATORY JAIL TERMS FOR SEX OFFENDERS
- MANDATORY JAIL TERMS FOR DRUNK DRIVERS WHO KILL

A LEADER IN IMPROVING THE JUSTICE SYSTEM

John Droney has not limited his activities to the courtroom. As an innovator in the criminal justice field he has:

- INITIATED A HOST OF LEGISLATION TO ELIMINATE LOOPHOLES FOR CRIMINALS AND TO GIVE LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS THE TOOLS THEY NEED TO FIGHT SERIOUS CRIME.
- ESTABLISHED A VICTIM-WITNESS ASSISTANCE PROGRAM WHICH HAS COUNSELED THOSE MOST AFFECTED BY CRIME: CHILDREN, THE ELDERLY, THE DISADVANTAGED AND THE HANDICAPPED.
- INSTITUTED A 24-HOUR HOTLINE FOR POLICE, IN ORDER TO ANSWER THEIR LEGAL QUESTIONS AT ANY TIME OF THE DAY OR NIGHT.
- CREATED A MONTHLY NEWSLETTER WHICH UPDATES CRIMINAL JUSTICE AGENCIES CONCERNING THE LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN THE LAW.

A DISTRICT ATTORNEY WHO CAN'T BE BOUGHT

In this election year, perhaps more than in any other, integrity is of central concern to voters. It was John Droney's integrity which first won him the recommendation of John F. Kennedy for appointment as District Attorney 23 years ago. Since then, his record of integrity has been unchallenged. He's one District Attorney who believes that the term "Justice for All" means what it says.

John Droney's integrity has been no better illustrated than during an incident involving a convicted stock swindler a few years ago. The swindler stood to gain control of a financial empire if he could just stay out of jail. He faced one obstacle — a pending case being presented against him by John Droney.

The swindler came to Massachusetts with the backing of the underworld and "with pockets full of money". He used his influence to buy a corrupt bail bondsman and an out-of-state judge who had connections in Middlesex County. The swindler's goal: to gain a continuance of his case in Middlesex County. However, his efforts were thwarted. John Droney was unapproachable.

Later, in testimony before the Chief Justice of the Massachusetts Superior Court, the swindler turned to District Attorney Droney and stated: "It was made perfectly clear to me they couldn't do anything through your office, Mr. Droney."

John Droney sets the standard by which integrity in prosecutors is measured.

Bowers Brothers Defend Wood Trophy In Sailing Regatta

Jimmy Bowers, and his brother, Michael of 60 Franklin rd. successfully defended the Wood Trophy last week, repeating their 1981 victory.

The sailing regatta, open to qualified sailors aged 13 and under ("midgets"), is sailed on the Charles River in MIT Tech dinghies as part of the Mass. Bay Midget Sailing Championship.

Seven races were sailed on Tuesday, Aug. 24, after which they were in solid first place. They continued their strong showing during the final five races, neld the next day.

The Winchester Boat Club team was the only one which could consistently produce finishes in the top ten. While they only won two of the twelve races, they finished in the top four in all but two others, placing fifth and eighth in these.

This consistency was remarkable considering the depth of talent in the 20-boat fleet. Each boat or yacht club in the Mass. Bay Association sends one two-person team to represent it.

To choose its representatives, the Winchester Boat Club held a round-robin elimination series, running 13 races over two days for its 13 best midget skippers.

★Allard

now we feel it's our year, so the attitude should be very good.

"There will be competition," he said, "but it will be among team members who are friends. Friends often go up against each other for the same position. But we're all in this together."

Commenting further on the quarterback situation, Allard said, "We are both valuable to the team. Two quarterbacks is really a luxury; many teams have trouble coming up with one good one. But the staff will have to decide which direction they want the offense to go. If they want to throw the ball a lot, I think I'd fit in well there."

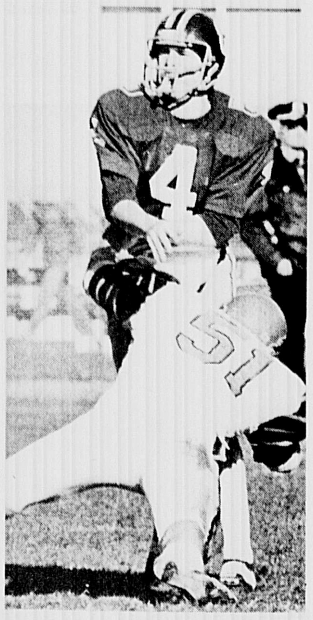
Coach Joe Restic apparently sees some truth to that. "I would say one of his biggest strengths is his ability to throw the ball on the run," adds the veteran coach. "Don's a very capable player. He does a lot of things well and has very good control of what he's doing. He's a fine option quarterback.

"He's a competitior, and he always gives you whatever he has," Restic noted. "He has the kind of ability that we have to make sure to take advantage of."

Allard had done some thinking of his own on the subject of the quarterback situation, but there is no reason to believe he won't be happy if he is not the main man.

"A lot depends on the wide receiver situation," he analyzed. "And a lot depends on the offensive line. If we have a power line that's just blowing huge holes all day long, we are going to run." That does not necessarily mean that the senior with the strong arm is out of the picture. "I look at my ability to run, throw for first downs and to control the ball as my strong suits. And I think I provide a spark."

If Allard does provide a spark, it would seem that it would be more of a case of leading by example, as the relatively quiet economics major does not seem to be a "rah-rah" guy. "I'm pretty low key off the field," he agreed, "but when it gets tight in a pressure situation, I'm pretty emotional. I think



'I would say one of his biggest strengths is his ability to throw the ball on the run. Don's a very capable player. He does a lot of things well and has very good control of what he's doing.

—Harvard Coach Joe Restic

the other players catch my attitude."

Upon further discussion, Allard revealed some insights about the player relationship on the field.

"I think it is important to have a quarterback who will take a shot," he said. "I think the coaches want to see you go down, so you don't get hurt. But if the offensive line is working hard to protect you, taking a beating in the trenches, they like to see that you can take some punishment as well. You want to get the respect of the guys that are protecting you."

Allard commented that he has taken his share of hits in his career. But the one that stood out the most in his mind occurred at Winchester High School.

"We were playing Melrose and we were getting killed," he recalled "I was getting the hell beat out of me all day, not getting passes off and getting hit after I released the ball.

"It was getting toward the end of the game and Ed Kodzes (who played at Harvard for a short time before suffering a severe knee injury) was giving me problems," he continued. "I said to myself 'I'm going to get this next pass off no matter what.' I took the snap, dropped back and didn't see him. As soon as I stepped up to release the ball, he blindsided me. The newspaper had sequence photos of it the next day. I think Kodzes still has it framed somewhere."

Maybe that would be a good reason to choose one sport over the other, particularly baseball over football. But when asked which sport he enjoys more, Allard stumbled.

"People have asked me that before and I always have trouble coming up with an answer," he answered. "I guess if its the springtime, I have the fever for baseball. When the fall comes, I like football."

That isn't too bad, especially when you have the ingredients to make you successful in both. As baseball Coach Alex Nahigian puts it, "The best way to start about Don is to say he's a winner. He's an excellent clutch hitter," which is convenient to have in any sport.

But right now, Allard has put the bats in the rack and is concentrating on football.

"We've got a tough non-league schedule early with UMass and West Point, but we've got to win in the middle of the schedule to really be in it. We've got to take Dartmouth and Princeton and make it come down to the last game. It always does anyway," he said.

Allard emphasized, "Naturally we want to beat Yale, but we haven't beaten Dartmouth or Princeton in a while, so that would be good. Winning the non-league games is important, too."

In this, his last year in the Crimson football jersey, Allard is looking for the big finish against Yale. Losing that one isn't much fun, as Allard said.

"The Harvard-Yale game is always colder if you are losing," he said. "And practice seems to last longer if you lost the Saturday preceeding The Game."

But what about all the excitement? That, said Allard is for the fans, to a certain extent. "You try and stay removed from the crowd. I took one look and was amazed at all the people there. But once you start in, the only people there are the ones on the field."

And whether it is the football field or the baseball field, Don Allard seems to have everything under control.

★ Football

Anchoring both the offensive and defensive lines will be tackle Tom Porell, who will share captain's duties with Cahill this fall.

Porell, although he's big enough and fast enough to be an entire defensive line by himself, will miss the defensive help he got from Lavey and Barger last year.

But Marshall has a few recruits this season — he mentioned Dan Capone and Jasper Asaro — who should make some holes in the opponents' lines.

Another good sign for the Sachems' chances this year was last week's scrimmage against Chelmsford. Winchester executed its 10 plays without the kind of mistakes that cost a team early season games.

"We didn't fumble the ball, we weren't offsides," commented Marshall. "I came away from the scrimmage really pleased.

"It really came out at the scrimmage that our boys were prepared," continued Marshall. "That was the difference between Winchester and Chelmsford."

Hopefully, that difference will be enough to separate Winchester from the rest of the Middlesex League.

★ Field Hockey

during the first week of practice — this year's squad includes a number of freshmen and sophomores, while teams in the past have been made up predominantly of juniors and seniors.

That may bode well for the next few years of Winchester field hockey, as Ryser will be able to build a cadre of experienced players.

But for this year, she's just concentrating on beating the odds.

Viking Swim Team Tryouts

Tryouts for the 1982-83 North Suburban YMCA Swim Team will be held the week of Sept. 20 as follows:

Monday, Sept. 20 — 9-, 10-, 11-year-olds; Tuesday, Sept. 21 — 12-, 13-, 14-year-olds; Wednesday, Sept. 22 — 8 and under, 15 and over; Thursday, Sept. 23 — divers, swimmers unable to attend earlier in the week. Warmup will begin at 6 p.m. Membership at the Y is not required to attend tryouts.

The North Suburban Y is located at 137 Lexington st., Woburn, about half a mile northeast of the Four Corners.

Tires should be checked often to see that they are inflated properly. There is a strong correlation between inflation and wear: underinflated tires wear out faster on the outside treads, and they tend to squeal when cornering. Overinflated tires also wear out faster, this time in the center of the tread area. To make matters worse, they'll give you a bumpier ride. Most tires hold between 23 and 30 pounds of air psi. Sometimes a car manufacturer will specify more air in the front tires than in the rear ones for easier handling and better traction. It is always best to check and keep the tires at the specified pressure.

Rytex Antique Vellum Stationery

regularly $20

The subtle laidmark pattern in this handsome paper dates back to the beginning of papermaking when handmade sheets were placed on latticed racks to dry in the sun. Today Antique Vellum still bears this handworked touch, refined for use with modern pen or typewriter. Select from luxury shades of white, pale blue or soft grey paper in princess (5¾") or monarch (7¼ x 10⅞") sizes. Choice of imprints shown (HL, AO, BC) in deep blue or dark grey ink. Gift boxed. 100 princess sheets and 100 envelopes or, 80 monarch sheets and 80 envelopes.

Suggestion: 50 extra, unprinted sheets for second pages . . . $3.00 with order.

*Please add 5% Mass. Tax

THE EXCLUSIVE LISTING

When you make your decision to sell your home, there are a variety of arrangements you can make. But if you are seriously intent on selling your home in the shortest amount of time and at the price you are asking, it would pay you to consider making an "exclusive" listing with your REALTOR.

Under these conditions, the REALTOR will have the added incentive and protection to go all-out in heavily advertising your home and putting all the extra effort possible into selling the property.

When would you want to deal on an exclusive contract basis with your REALTOR? If your home is somewhat special or especially high-priced, it would pay you to work with a REALTOR who has shown a good track record in selling these kinds of homes. He has the right list of prospects and the experience and technique which would be put to your full advantage. Also, if you want the sale of your property to be handled with confidentiality and discreetness, the "exclusive" listing may be the right one for you.

CIVIL WAR Unit looking for members: The 5th Massachusetts Battery is made up of people in the Greater Boston area interested in the Civil War. There are two divisions: (1) competition shooting divisions which is a North-South Skirmish Association unit that competes in team matches with a full-sized muzzleloading cannon as well as with muskets, carbines and revolvers of the pre-1865 era. And (2) the "chowder and marching division" which takes part in parades, battle re-enactments, and authentic living history demonstrations. You can join either or both depending on your interests. The musket and carbine shooting events involve team shooting at breakable targets with the shortest elapsed time determining the winning team. It's fun if you're interested in black powder shooting. For further information contact 5th Mass. Battery, John Humphrey, 195 West st., Reading, or Al Goscinak, 27 Washington st., Charlestown, by phone or mail. 3.19TF

Chorus Seeks Singers

The Medford Community Chorus, Gayna Akillian Pacl, conductor, is currently seeking singers for its third season beginning this September.

The Chorus, founded under the auspices of the Medford Community Education Program, is dedicated to performing fine choral music for a wide variety of audiences.

The Chorus is open to singers on the basis of an audition and currently attracts singers from nine surrounding communities, including Winchester.

In addition to its annual winter and spring concerts at Medford High School, the Chorus performs smaller concerts in various local settings. The Chrous repertoire ranges from the Renaissance to contemporary and provides opportunities for amateur and young professional musicians seeking to advance their careers.

Auditions for interested singers will be held on Monday, Sept. 13 and 20, 1982 at 7:15 p.m. at Medford High School, 489 Winthrop st., Medford. Sopranos and male voices are especially needed.

Elect
CHARLIE PORTER
State Senator

Dear Fellow Residents,

It's time to put the people back in the process of government.

I ask your vote for State Senate on primary election day to do this.

When you go to the polls Tuesday, Sept. 14th, remember that I am Not tied to any "Special Interest Group."

I will not pass self-serving legislation like some politicians, but tackle the problems which we of the 4th Middlesex District share.

PLEASE ELECT A MAN WHO IS NOT SATISFIED WITH "BUSINESS AS USUAL".

Sincerely,
Charlie Porter

Robert York

Robert E. York, 85, died Sept. 1, after a brief illness. Colonel York, a retired Army officer and civil engineer, served as Boston's Building Commissioner in the administration of Mayor John Collins.

Born in Kansas in 1896, Colonel York was graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1918 and was commissioned in the Corps of Engineers. His military career included assignments in France, Hawaii, Korea and Japan and covered 35 years.

He was an instructor of Mathematics at the Military Academy, Staff Engineer to General Douglas MacArthur, a district engineer in Montana and New England, commander of military supply depots in Illinois and Ohio, and The Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Texas when he retired.

His subsequent civilian career included work as project engineer on the Massachusetts and Maine Turnpikes and the Charles F. Hurley building in Government Center.

Colonel York's wife of 58 years, the former Marian Granger of New York City, died in 1978. They had made their home in Winchester since 1954.

He is survived by his two daughters, Mrs. Charles R. Gorder of Canterbury rd. and Mrs. Barbara Frye; six grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Funeral services are private. Burial will take place in Arlington National Cemetery. Those who desire may make contributions to the West Point Fund, USMA NY 10966, in his memory.

Wellesley Club Begins Fall Season

The Winchester Wellesley Club begins its fall season Wednesday, Sept. 15 with a preview of its annual benefit program.

Alumnae of the college and their friends are invited to stop at 14 Glen rd. between 5:30 and 7:30 p.m. to pick up their ticket information packets and hear about the program.

This year's benefit, "Opera to Go," features members of Young Audiences who will perform excerpts of two operas and discuss them. The curtain rises at 10:30 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 14, at the Parish of the Epiphany, Church st.

A salad luncheon, included in the admission price, will be served at noon. Proceeds from this informative morning will be divided between Wellesley College and the Winchester Scholarship Foundation. Tickets will be available from all Wellesley Club members.

The club, whose main purpose is to acquaint Winchester residents with Wellesley College, recently held a party for Winchester women who attend the college. Donna Farrell, Delaine Hudson, Cynthia Schell, Karine Hrechdakian, Melanie Melzar, Laura Nigro and Katie Ellis will be full-time students. Elizabeth Clower will spend a term at Dartmouth while Priscilla Lee is at the college from Mt. Holyoke. And Sally Weylman is at the college as part of the Continuing Education Program.

Acquaintanceship Chairman, Nancy Hudson, plans to take a group of interested high school students to the college for an afternoon in November. Details will be available through the Winchester High School Guidance office during October.

Winchester Players To Hold Tryouts For Fall Production

The Winchester Players will hold auditions for the Fall production, George Bernard Shaw's "Arms And The Man" on Thursday, Sept. 9 and Sunday, Sept. 12 at 7:30 p.m. in Metcalf Hall at the Unitarian Church, 478 Main st.

Roles for five men and three women are available in this classic comedy, directed by David Goldstein and produced by Dot Roemer.

In addition to the on-stage acting roles, people are needed for backstage crew work — building the sets, lighting the play, costumes, sound and make-up. No experience needed, just a willingness to work and enjoy theatrical poroductions. Call Dot Roemer, Wendell st.

Production dates of "Arms And The Man are Nov. 5, 6, 12 and 13. Rehearsal schedule, beginning the evening of Sept. 16, to be announced.

Winchester INTERACT Flea Market Features Food, Crafts

A salad in Syrian bread, prepared by Anne Esposito of 22 Johnson rd. and her committee, will be one of the 80 attractions at the 14th annual Winchester INTERACT'S (formerly the Winchester Jaycee Women) Flea Market to be held Saturday, Sept. 25 in the Winchester Town Hall parking lot.

In case of rain, the Flea Market will be held on Sept. 26.

In addition to the salad, visitors to the Flea Market will be able to purchase goodies to take home or to eat while browsing — coffee, doughnuts, hot dogs, chips, cold drinks, and desserts.

Dealers coming from all over the area will be selling anything imaginable, from household items to crafts to antiques.

Arthritic Group Features Speaker

Dr. Allan M. Smith, Ph.D., of Bedford, Director of the Burlington Psychological Association of Burlington, will be the featured speaker at the second meeting of the new Arthritic Support Group, holding monthly meetings at the New England Rehabilitation Hospital, Woburn.

The special program, scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 21 at 7:30 p.m. is open free to all residents suffering from or interested in arthritis, its causes, effects, or controls.

Heading the new group are Helen Holland and Lorriane Trainor, both of Burlington.

Dr. Smith will speak on the subject, "Pain and Arthritis."

Also participating will be Doris McDonnell, Doris Kelley, Eileen Gauthier, Norma O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. John Nason, Joan Bennett, and Rosella Bilotta.

★ Curve

highway, maintained by the state Department of Public Works office in Arlington.

Cambridge (Mystic) st. in Arlington, where any signs warning motorists must be placed, is owned by the town of Arlington and maintained by its DPW.

The lights illuminating the curve on Cambridge st. are owned by the town of Winchester.

And the pole struck by Erbetta and the rest is owned by Boston Edison.

As a result of the complicated ownership arrangement, each of the groups responsible for part of the road tends to feel that correcting the traffic hazard is the other guy's responsibility.

Since 1975, for example, Winchester has tried to convince the state to install a flashing neon warning light to alert motorists that the curve is coming.

But the state claims that the sign must be placed in Arlington to give drivers an early enough warning. And the state, officials say, cannot install a sign on a town way.

"My position is if the state creates a danger, it should warn people about it," said Winchester Safety Officer John McKinley. "But the state's position is that Arlington should warn the drivers."

McKinley had a host of suggestions for improving the road — all of which would be the state's job.

"Ideally, you should straighten out the road." said McKinley. "But they could at least redesign the surface. Right now, the curve is banked wrong, it's got a hump in the middle. It's just a badly set-up curve.

"I've also asked for guard rails along the curve, so at least they'll stop hitting the pole," added McKinley.

In a June 3, 1980 letter to the Mass. DPW's district engineer, C.F. Mistretta, Winchester Town Manager Thomas Groux complained about the design of the highway and the lack of signs.

The state replied that the best method for cutting down on accidents was for Winchester to increase the street lighting along the curve.

That's still the state's position, according to District Traffic Engineer Al Laing.

"It's up to them (Winchester) to do something," said Laing. "We've done studies up there, and highway lights and things like that are what's needed.

"It was a night accident, wasn't it?" said Laing, referring to the crash in which Erbetta was killed. "If you light the roadway better, that helps."

However, Winchester has rejected the state's suggestion to put in lights.

When the state brought up the idea in 1980, Groux replied "our Traffic Advisory Committee is sympathetic to your suggestion for improved lighting, however, budgetary constraints and town policy which is in opposition to additional streetlighting on the basis that it does not necessarily improve highway safety prevents action in that direction."

At least Arlington has been prompted to make the road safer. After the fatal accident last month, Arlington Safety Officer Joseph Steele began to work with his town's Public Works Dept. to get signs installed.

"We're adding two more signs — a 'Dangerous Curve Ahead' sign with an arrow, and a 'Slow' sign a little further up the road," said Steele. "And I just contacted the Tree Dept. to remove some of the branches blocking the curved arrow sign we have there now."

Steele said it would be too expensive for Arlington to install a flashing neon sign before the curve, as Winchester officials suggested. The cost for one sign ran up to $15,000, he said.

And Steele, like the other officials, had suggestions for the other guy.

"I would recommend removal of the pole everyone keeps hitting, and the replacement of the hydrant on the traffic island," said Steele. "They should be moved over across the street where they belong."

There is one other group all the public officials feel can help end the accidents at the curve — the drivers.

McKinley pointed out that the majority of the accidents on the curve are due to driver error.

And as Ciarcia said, "The curve is probably safe for cars going the speed limit. If people drove on that road like thy are supposed to, the problem would be solved right there."

★ Grant

"The Winchester project was not an access road to an industrial park, it would not increase manufacturing," said Carlin. "It was something we considered beautification."

Winchester's application would have stayed at the bottom of the pile, Carlin said, if it weren't for Saltmarsh.

"Sherman Saltmarsh is, without qualification, the premier pest in the state legislature," said Carlin. "If it wasn't for Saltmarsh and his tenacity — he called me at least 12 to 15 times, needling, pestering, asking what he had to do to get this for Winchester — this wouldn't have gone through."

Saltmarsh, for his part, shared credit for getting the grant with the state administration — which he noted has sent Winchester $2 million in parking grants this year to go along with the $331,000 — and town officials.

"A few years ago, we never knew what a state grant was in Winchester," said Saltmarsh. "But through the Board of Selectmen, Town Manager Thomas Groux and particularly John Connery, who as written the grant applications, we have started getting money.

"We deserve our share," added Saltmarsh. "We pay more than our share, particularly in income taxes, and now we're finally starting to get some of that money back."

With it s share, continued Saltmarsh, the town could take "another step in turning around our downtown."

And the many downtown business people present at the Town Hall signing were eager to take that step.

"What a tremendous boost to our confidence to get this grant," said Al Vanderbilt of the Chamber of Commerce. "Thank you, Secretary Carlin, thank you, Whip."

According to Connery, the town originally applied to the state for a $752,500 grant to be used for the entire downtown beautification plan, including new lights, trees and sidewalks.

Only the money for the sidewalks was granted, Connery said, but that doesn't mean all the town will get is new pavement on the pedestrian ways.

Connery noted that the final plans for spending the money will have to be written up by the town Engineering Dept. or a consultant and approved by the new town Center Beautification Committee.

But he did run through the preliminary plans submitted to the state when the town applied for the grant.

All the sidewalks in the downtown, running as far as Rangeley rd. on Church st. and to Skillings rd. on Main st., would be repaved.

The crosswalks might also be repaved, said Connery. '

"We wouldn't just repaint the crosswalks, we'd use a different material like cobblestones," said Connery. "We want to emphasize the pedestrian walkways and embellish them."

At six downtown corners, continued Connery, the town would install "neck-downs" to provide tiny parks for pedestrians.

The sidewalks at those corners would be built out into the street (the "neck-down"), and a few trees and benches installed on the new sidewalk space, explained Connery.

Connery said that although the state funds were not slated for trees, he felt the town could keep the cost of installing the new sidewalks down enough to spend some cash on trees and benches.

A "first-class" bench made of iron and oak, he said, costs approximately $750. A tree, three to four inches thick and 12 to 15 feet high, costs $110.

In his orignal plans, Connery figured on installing 10 benches and planting 100 trees downtown, he said.

"We want to make it safer and more appealing for pedestrians to walk and linger downtown," said Connery. "That gives merchants the opportunity to make sales and make the downtown a more interesting place for the residents to shop."

Local Candidates Fall In Primaries

Town Goes For Duke, Rotondi And Donahoe

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Fifty-six percent of the voters in Winchester — 6,928 residents — showed up at the polls Tuesday to vote in the gubernatorial primaries. It was the largest primary turnout in Winchester in years.

"This year was the largest turnout, by far, that Winchester has had in a long time," said Town Clerk Carolyn Ward.

"By 3 p.m. we could tell it was going to be a good turnout because more people had voted by that hour than had voted in the entire 1980 primary — although 1980 was not a gubernatorial primary."

In the last gubernatorial primary election in 1978, 43 percent of the voters in Winchester turned out at the polls. Thirty-six percent voted in 1974's gubernatorial primary and 29 percent voted in 1970.

Winchester's voting record Tuesday far exceeded the approximately 34 percent state turnout. Ward attributed Winchester's large turnout to hard work by Democratic candidate campaign workers.

"The Democratic candidates had an unusually large and organized group of workers," she said. "They were out checking voters at the polls and calling people who hadn't yet voted."

In the Senate and governor races, Winchester voters went along with the rest of the state. Edward M. Kennedy and Raymond Shamie, the two unopposed Senate candidates, received 3,938 and 948 Winchester votes respectively.

It was a close race for governor in Winchester as well as the state between Gov. Edward King and his opponent, Michael Dukakis, in the Democratic primary. King took 2,535 Winchester votes, but there were more Dukakis supporters in town as the former governor received 2,932 votes, taking a close lead.

The Republican state primary was not as exciting. John Sears, the state victor, had 799 Winchester votes putting him in the lead in town also. John Lakian had 298 Winchester votes and Andrew Card received 218.

The race for lieutenant governor may have been one of the closest races in the state, but there was no competition for Sam Rotondi in his hometown, Winchester. The state senator and longtime participant in town politics received 3,365 Winchester votes, although he came in a close third place statewide.

John Kerry won the state Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, but Kerry came in third in Winchester with 683 votes, trailing behind Evelyn Murphy's 808 votes. Lou Nickinello received 367 town votes and Lois Pines took 240.

The unopposed Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, Leon Lombardi, received 1,012 Winchester votes.

Winchester and the surrounding communities favored their hometown candidates in the race for state senator. District voters nominated Democrat Richard Kraus for Senator, but in Winchester, Kraus was no match for Glen rd. resident Gerard Donahoe who received twice as many town votes as Kraus did. Winchester gave Donahoe 2,020 votes and Kraus 1,083.

District's Support Isn't Enough For Sen. Sam

By SUSAN SCHNECK

At midnight, with the figures running against him, Democratic lieutenant governor candidate Sam Rotondi of Winchester still refused to concede.

"The race isn't over yet," he shouted to about 300 cheering supporters at the Copley Plaza Hotel Tuesday night. "It's far from over. For those of you who want to wait with me, we'll wait until the wee hours of the morning! We'll wait for 36 hours if we have to!"

The crowd of adoring supporters broke out into a "RO-TON-DI" chant and assured their hero they would stick out the wait with him.

"We'll wait! We'll wait!" cried the weary campaign workers, friends and family members as they waved Rotondi signs and banners before the television cameras.

"I no longer have 13 brothers and sisters, I have thousands of brothers and sisters," Rotondi answered his supporters.

Surveying the anxious crowd Tuesday night, Rotondi said he was banking on the efforts of his field workers to pull him through.

"I don't think I would have run my campaign differently," he said while the results flashed across the television

Street Pounding Doesn't Give Donahoe Win

By ALICE GREENE

Gerard P. Donahoe wore out two pairs of shoes and lost 20 pounds during his campaign for state senator.

"No other candidate did the work I did," stated Donahoe after conceding his loss Tuesday night. "I knocked on more than 15,000 doors, but I didn't have a lot of money. And I didn't have Dukakis."

Surrounded by friends, family and a number of his several hundred campaigners, Donahoe spent election night at his home on Glen rd.

Appearing relaxed though somewhat weary, Donahoe rambled from room to room making sure that all were well-fed and comfortable.

Occasionally, he would glance over the shoulder of a friend who was tabulating returns amidst cigarettes and deliberation. He then would turn, shake a hand, share a smile and move on.

At 8:30 p.m. friend and campaigner Maureen Cabral arrived with the first of the night's returns. Donahoe had secured Winchester's 7th and 8th districts over Edward Flaherty of Woburn, in second place, by 27 votes, according to her document.

By the time the results of the 3rd and 4th districts came in, placing Donahoe solidly ahead of both Flaherty and

Teachers Work Though Contract Talks Stall

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Although Winchester teachers are working without a contract, representatives from both the teachers' union and the School Committee do not anticipate any work stoppages during the negotiating period.

The Winchester Education Association's (WEA) previous two-year agreement expired Aug. 31. About 230 teachers have since been working under the terms of their old contract.

Sporadic negotiations between the two groups since last March failed to produce a contract for the 1982-83 school year. When a four-hour meeting last week still failed to render a workable agreement, negotiators agreed to halt talks and seek an outside mediator to settle their differences.

"We were very close to a settlement," WEA President Joanne Martignette said. "But we reached a point where we couldn't come to an agreement so we declared an impasse."

Two years ago, failure to negotiate a contract resulted in a work-to-rule order which caused a slowdown. But the teachers are not planning similar action again this year.

"We are in no way contemplating a job action at this time," stressed WEA negotiations chairman Francis Finigan. "We are committed to quality education and there is no way that we're going to hurt the school system."

"We are now working with the 1981-82 contracts, but we do not intend to take any job action at this point," agreed Martignette. "My directions to the teachers have been to continue with the education of the children and we'll see what happens. I'm hoping that we can come to an agreement over the next month."

Failure to come to an agreement last week prompted both sides to agree to seek outside mediation. Lawyers for both sides will decide whether or not they will hire a state or private mediator.

"We came very close to settling and I'm disappointed that we couldn't close the gap," said School Committee Chairman Roger Bauman. "The decision to hire a mediator was a mutual request. We want a third party to narrow and close the gap."

The mediator will not make binding decisions. Rather, he or she will be hired to analyze the situation and develop additional solutions. The expense of the mediator will be shared by both sides.

"A mediator would look at the issues from a fresh and different perspective to see if the solutions can be reshuffled so that both sides can reach an agreement," Bauman explained. "The mediator's job is to understand the issues and then develop alternative approaches to the problem.

The "problem" amounts to disagreement over the terms of three issues. Administrators and teachers are unable to agree on salaries, the use of 12 release-time days (afternoons when elementary school students are released at noon), and a contract provision which now guarantees six weeks of summer curriculum work for five curriculum directors.

Neither sidewanted to discuss the figures being negotiated for salaries. "The point is that we think our offer is a fair one," Bauman said. Teachers contend, however, that the salary offer is not keeping pace with inflation.

The release-time days, or "workshop" days as the teachers call them, are currently used by teachers to prepare for classes, hold conferences, or complete other work as they see fit.

Administrators would like the authority to determine how those days will be utilized.

"We are not proposing to alter the number of days, but rather that some be under central office control so they could be used for purposes such as grade level meetings, to explain new curriculum developments or new programs, to discuss more effective instructional techniques or other such things," Bauman said. "Now, these 12 half days are used at the discretion of the teacher.

"The administration cannot call a meeting during those times," he continued. "The present contract limits after-school meetings to given buildings, so in order for us to call a meeting for any of those purposes, teacher attendance would be voluntary.

Bauman did point out that when he has called voluntary meetings in the past, teachers attended them.

"The teachers have shown their interest in continuing professional development, but their participation is voluntary," he said. "The administration needs the prerogative to plan such sessions and to require the attendance of all appropriate teachers."

Finigan said the teachers need those days to consult with other teachers about team teaching situations, to have conferences with parents and for other classroom preparation. He said that use of that time for teachers enables students to be exposed to top quality education.

In order for students to receive top quality education, Finigan said the five

GOODBYE FILL — Construction workers from Pitt Construction worked all last week to remove chemically-contaminated fill from two Amberwood drive building lots. (Staff photo by Noreen Murphy)

Amberwood Fill May Soon Go

By DAVE LEECO

Health officials figure developer Felix Pittorino will have finished removing the chemically contaminated fill from Amberwood dr. by tomorrow.

Amberwood dr. resident Anita MacKay thinks the health officials should recheck their figures.

According to Board of Health Chairman Lawrence Quigley, about 90 percent of the gray clay fill has been removed from the two Amberwood building lots owned by Pittorino.

Health Director Steven Weinstein said that although "it's tough to put a number on it," Quigley's estimate was "pretty close."

The Board of Health has given Pittorino until Friday to remove the fill, according to Quigley, and Weinstein said Pittorino will probably meet that deadline.

"The fill will probably be out within two days or so," said Weinstein Tuesday. "Everything's progressing, and we have no reason to believe the work will be halted."

But MacKay, who can watch the work going on at Pittorino's lots from the rear window of her Amberwood dr. home, feels most of the clay fill is still in the ground.

"What they're saying and doing is entirely different from what I've seen," said MacKay. "I believe most of the clay remains buried."

MacKay noted that when Pittorino was bringing in the clay fill from the Alewife transit station construction in Cambridge, truckloads of the material were going by her house every few minutes.

Then, after the Board of Health stopped Pittorino from bringing in the fill because it discovered the material came from a tunnel under a W.R. Grace chemical dump, the trucks kept coming, MacKay said.

Pittorino, claiming he was preparing the area to remove the fill, brought in truckloads of "clean," uncontaminated fill and dumped it on top of the clay.

MacKay said she counted the number of trucks full of clean fill coming to Amberwood for two days. On the first day, she said, 73 truckloads arrived at Amberwood. On the second day, 84 loads of dirt were dumped.

On Tuesday, MacKay continued, only nine trucks left Amberwood carrying the contaminated fill mixed with the clean fill.

"They brought in so many truckloads — just of the good soil," said MacKay. "When they brought in the clay, they were bringing it in for 10 days, and the trucks were coming in fast.

"They certainly have not dug out that many truckloads," MacKay continued. "They couldn't possibly have gone down to the clay. I feel so hopeless."

MacKay was incredulous when she learned health officials predicted the clay would be gone by week's end.

"They'll have to work very hard for the next few days then," she commented. "Now they've been taking out a dozen truckloads a day, when they were bringing in 84."

Health officials, however, said they will check the Amberwood lots once Pittorino says he has completed the work.

First Man In Town Hit With New Drunk Driving Penalties

By SUSAN SCHNECK

A 25-year-old Thornberry rd. man may face a $1,000 fine, a two-year jail term and a five-year license suspension as the first Winchester resident to be tried in court for drunk driving since the new law went into effect Sept. 1.

Thomas V. Zazzara will appear in Woburn District Court Sept. 23 and tried on his third drunk driving offense along with other charges stemming from his Sept. 8 arrest.

Under the new drunk driving laws, third offenders such as Zazzara will be fined $500 to $1,000, serve a mandatory 60-day jail term which could be increased to two years, and have their licenses suspended for five years. Citizens convicted for drunk driving, now a felony for second and third offenders, are subject to mandatory punishments.

When Zazzara goes to court Sept. 23, he will face charges for other motor vehicle violations, possession of a controlled substance and assault and battery on a police officer.

While Zazzara was being booked for motor vehicle violations and possession of a controlled substance, a scuffle ensued between him and a police sergeant.

Sgt. Charles Culhane was treated and released at Winchester Hospital for facial injuries and a sprained thumb he received while booking Zazzara. Zazzara was not injured. He was released on $350 cash bail that night.

According to police reports filed by Officer Lon Elliot, he and Officer Frank Vozzella spotted Zazzara driving out of Laraway rd. and asked him for his license and registration. The officers reported that Zazzara displayed signs of intoxication.

When Zazzara could not produce the required identification he was taken to the station. Zazzara took a breathalyzer

"Armenian Treasures" features artifacts which survived the World War I genocide of 1915. The exhibit includes 19th century costumes of silks, cottons, velvets and Armenian costume dolls. The exhibit opens Sept. 19 and continues through Oct. 17 at the Wenham Museum. The rug shown above is an Armenian Karabagh from the collection of Koko Boodakian and Sons Inc. of Main st. The women are wearing 19th century costumes of Aintab.

About Town

Grande Joins

Donald J. Grande, M.D., of Winchester, has joined the dermatology staff of Boston's New England Medical Center, the primary teaching facility of Tufts University School of Medicine.

Dr. Grande, a member of the Medical School faculty, specializes in microcontrolled surgery to remove cancerous and pre-cancerous facial skin tumors that especially plague the elderly.

Recommended for recurring tumors, sclerosing basal cell carcinomas, or tumors around the eyes, nose and ears, the technique offers a better cure rate and potential for reconstruction than older methods.

"We use horizontal frozen section analysis to assure more complete removal," Dr. Grande explains, "and we can often do the sections, removal and reconstruction in one appointment, usually on an outpatient basis."

Dr. Grande was educated and trained at the University of Massachusetts, Boston, and at the Boston University Medical Center. After service as a flight surgeon in the U.S. Air Force, including duty at Pease Air Force Base, New Hampshire, he took a fellowship in microcontrolled surgery at the University of Iowa Medical Center.

Dr. Grande moved to Winchester this summer with his wife, the former Elena Buckley of Brighton, and their four children.

Smith Accepted

George S. Smith VII, son of Army Lt. Col. George S. and Sally A. Smith of Plato terr. has been officially accepted into the U.S. Military Academy's Corps of Cadets as a member of the class of 1986 during the annual acceptance parade.

The parade followed six weeks of rigorous basic cadet training at the West Point, N.Y., academy. Training in military customs and courtesies, drill and physical conditioning, tactical exercises and the firing of weapons introduced the basic cadets to military life with special emphasis on leadership, duty, honor and country.

The academy is a four-year educational institution graduating men and women to serve as career Army officers. In addition to military trianing, the academy offers athletics and an academic curriculum which includes basic and engineering sciences and the humanities.

Moraco Named

Theresa Monaco of Harvard st. recently was named the recipient of a faculty development grant from Emmanuel College, Boston. Monaco, who is a member of the art department at the college, will undertake a project on Allen Crite's Exhibit and Lectures this fall. The program is co-sponsored by the Harriet Tubman House.

Jennifer A. Halpin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Halpin of Vinson Circle has been named to the Dean's list at Regis College for the spring semester. Halpin is a sophomore majoring in economics.

Magic Finger Announces Auditions

The Magic Finger announces auditions for the premiere performance of "Dr. Dack's Magical Medicine Show," a turn-of-the-century musical melodrama. Book and lyrics are by Bill Meikle of Arlington, a principal in the Magic Finger, and the music is by Doug Davidson of Thornberry rd.

Try-outs for the seven-member musical are set for Sunday, Sept. 19, at 7 p.m. and Monday, Sept. 20, at 7:30 p.m. with any necessary callbacks set for later that week. Auditions will be held at Trinity Baptist Church 115 Mass. ave., Arlington. Persons interested may contact Meikle at 45 Alton st., Arlington, for information.

Sought are young people, grades 9-12, and college too, who would be able to do several performances during school time, as well as play weekends in the near western suburbs.

Roles to be filled are: Dr. D. I. Dack - the grand panjandrum of the works; Joe - a young man, a foundling, with the show all his life; Jenny - an ingenue who joins the show; Clown 1- Dack's loyal child and assistant; Clown 2 - Dack's other child; Clown 3 - a comic member of the medicine show troupe; and Bruto - the show boss, an oaf of a brut.;

All characters must sing and play in a broadly comic style; Jenny must dance well enough to do it badly with assurance. Several characters may be played by either a male or female actor.

"Dr. Dack's Magical Medicine Show" was written under the aegis of Dr. William Birmingham, Arlington Asst. Superintendent of Schools, and workshopped with students in Arlington and Medford High Schools. Its target audience is the fourth through eighth grades.

Broadly plotted and energetically played in the manner of commedia dell'arte, it is, beneath its simple surface, about identity, rebellion against family and institutions, and finally, about knowledge. It is designed to serve as a stimulus for classroom discussion.

The author, Bill Meikle, is an award-winning writer and poet, with an extensive history in children's theater. The composer, Doug Davidson, Director of Music at Old North Church, has written in many forms, classical and popular, including musical theater.

Preschoolers Participate In Voke School Childhood Lab

Forty-eight preschool children, ranging from 3 to 5 years of age, will be accepted to participate in the Early Childhood Laboratory School at Northeast Regional Vocational School in Wakefield this fall.

Three openings will be available to Winchester children. The children will be given a two-hour program two days each week, on Wednesdays and Thursdays, under the supervision of an instructor who will be training high school juniors and seniors in a Nursery Kindergarten Aide Program. There will be a $5 weekly charge to cover cost of materials and a light snack.

Selection will be made on a random basis. Allocation of spaces for the preschoolers will be made on the same quota system which governs admissions of high school students from the 12 communities. Preference will be given to those children who were not enrolled in this program in previous years, however, all applications are invited.

Parents wishing to enroll a pre-school child in the 3- to 5- year-old age group must send to the Health Care Technician Department, Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School, Hemlock rd., Wakefield, 01880, the following information on a sheet of plain paper: date of application; the child's full name; age; sex; exact date of birth; parents' name; address; and telephone number; and whether the morning or afternoon session is preferred. The applying child must be no younger than 2 nor older than 5 years on Sept. 15. This information must be in writing and will not be accepted by telephone. Deadline for application is Sept. 24.

Following the random selection of pre-schoolers, the parents of those children whose names are accepted will have an orientation at school, and will be given specific details regarding the program. Parents of participating youngsters will be required to provide transportation for the youngsters to and from Northeast for the duration of the program.

CSA Steering Committee Meets To Plan 1982-83 Year

The Steering Committee of the Community School Association of Winchester (CSA) met recently at the home of the president, Alice McCarter, to plan the calendar of activities for the school year 1982-83.

The first general meeting will be held on Sept. 23, at 9:15 a.m. at the Sanborn House and will feature Dennett Page, who serves as Program Director for School Volunteers for Boston Inc. Page will speak about the training of volunteers, and the personal and education benefits of parent volunteering

School Committee member Sandra Rodgers, a former president of the Community School Association, serving now as liaison between the School Committee and CSA, explained how the calendar for School Committee business is planned. Rodgers pointed out that budget issues for the school year 1983-84 will be discussed in October.

The Task Force on Declining Enrollments is scheduled to present its report to the School Committee at the beginning of November. Many individuals have expressed the hope that the Task Force is aware of various items of specific or general interest.

While representatives of parent associations have already met with the Task Force, CSA feels that an open meeting before the Task Force finalizes its report would be beneficial for all. Therefore all interested citizens are invited to meet together at McCall Junior High School Library at 7:45 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 30.

Rec. Dept. Youth Coordinator Offers Three Fall Adventures

Winchester's new Youth Coordinator, Steve D'Onofrio, will be offering three outdoor adventure programs for the fall.

The trips include a New Hampshire-bound Saco River Canoe Trip on the weekend of Oct. 1-3 for students in the ninth through twelfth grades; a bike-foliage trip on Oct. 22-24 for students in the seventh through tenth grades; and an Appalachian Trail Excursion, grades seven through twelve for the weekend of November 5-7.

Registration for these programs and all recreation programs starts Saturday, Sept. 18. Programs are offered on a first come basis. A fee is required.

For more information on these weekend trips, call D'Onofrio at the Recreation Dept.

Coop Nursery Has Openings

The Neighborhood Co-operative Nursery School, located in the First Congregational Church, announces several openings in its afternoon Kindergarten Class. This class provides a structured learning experience for 5-year-olds, an alternative to the larger public school kindergarten.

In the secure environment of a small, friendly school, they develop more confidence and maturity. Their academic progress varies with their potential, but the favorable child-teacher ratio ensures that each individual child's progress is carefully encouraged.

Included in the curriculum are creative activites, science, music, and field trips to enrich each unit of study. There is great emphasis on behaving considerately and with kindness towards others.

This class meets daily, from noon to 2:30 p.m., with each child bringing a box lunch. Applications are now being accepted for the fall.

Theatrical Makeup

The Belmont Dramatic Club is offering an eight-week workshop in theatrical makeup, conducted by Athena Halkiotis, professional makeup artist, beginning Sept. 22 from 8 to 10 p.m. at the Kendall Center for the Arts in Belmont. For more information contact Mrs. James Halkiotis, Lorimar rd., Belmont.

Arcade Bigwigs Push Video

By DAVE LEECO

There's obviously money to be made in video games, and those in the industry are taking every opportunity to promote the gobbling of ghosts by Pac-Man or the pursuit of the kidnapped maiden in Donkey Kong.

When the Board of Selectmen took up their video game regulations Monday night, representatives of the arcade industry descended on Winchester, bringing a lawyer, the head of the Coin Machines Assn. of New England, and a slew of game room owners.

The video magnates nearly outnumbered the residents at the selectmen's public hearing. And they were far more vocal than the townspeople.

The video game lobby pointed out the advantages of the games — noting the amount of tax revenue coming from the industry and the love of many for the challenging machines — and subtly threatened litigation if the selectmen adopted too strict a set of regulations.

The townspeople, for their part, were less unified in their stand on video games.

Some, such as downtown merchant Kenneth Blank, were dead set against video arcades in the downtown. Others, such as Blackhorse terr. resident Carl Schwartzman, seemed ready to accept the machines if they were properly controlled.

The selectmen simply listened to all the comments on the regulations for an hour-and-a-half and held off taking a stand one way or the other.

The set of regulations presented to the selectmen was drafted by a committee consisting of Police Chief John McHugh, Town Counsel Doug Randall, Town Manager Tom Groux, Council on Youth member Veronica Fiorillo, School Supt. William MacDonald. Winchester High School Vice Principal Evander French, Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice President Rita Spence, and Recreation Driector Ken Cereghino. It was set up after the town began receiving applications for video licenses last spring.

The four-page draft the committee came up with was intended to give selectmen a set of guidelines to use when reviewing those applications, Selectman Alan Macdonald noted Monday.

"Because of all the public attention focusing on video games in some communities — even to the point of some communities saying they don't want the games and banning them — we felt this was a matter worthy of the board's attention," Macdonald explained.

Under the regulations, selectmen will look at the impact of an arcade or video game on nearby schools, churches, hospitals, elderly housing, residences or other businesses.

Planning Board member Marion Crandall urged selectmen to also examine the effect on traffic and noise in an area before granting video licenses.

If a license were granted, it would only be good for the hours between 4 and 11 p.m. during weekdays, 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturdays and noon to 10 p.m. on Sundays, according to the proposed regulations.

Selectmen would have the option of limiting the number of machines allowed in town under the regulations. Unless the building qualified as a place of public assembly under the state building code (able to hold more than 50 people), no more than three machines would be allowed. Otherwise, the selectmen would decide how many machines were proper.

Licenses will run for one year, expiring every Sept. 30. A $40 charge for each machine is proposed in the regulations.

Before granting any licenses, selectmen will receive reports from the Police Chief, the Fire Chief and the Building Inspector.

Video game businessmen at the meeting agreed with the need for regulations, but cautioned that the rules should not be too strict.

Barry Rosenthal, a Boston attorney representing the Clean Machine Corp., told the selectmen that while he and his colleagues "feel you are taking the right approach in looking at a set of regulations," they would "like some input as to what adequate regulations are."

Rosenthal slammed the proposed regulations on several points — claiming case law prohibited an arbitrary limit to the number of machines in town, that it was illegal to give the police chief the power to temporarily revoke a video game license, and that the limit on hours meant to keep kids out of arcades during school hours discriminated against adults.

"Why 4 — if you're dealing with youths, why not say school-age children cannot play during school hours?" said Rosenthal. "Why should I, at age 41, wait until 4 to play. I don't want to be governed by the standards set for an 8-year-old."

Rosenthal also warned that if the video game industry felt the Winchester regulations were excessively strict, it would take the town to court.

"The industry did $5 billion last year," said Rosenthal. "It's not afraid to go to litigation."

Townspeople had less to say than the video game operators, but they did make their point.

Kenneth Blank, the owner of Joken's Card Gallery and the Praying Mantis downtown, told selectmen he didn't want an arcade as a neighbor.

"I own a store on Thompson st. with a hell of an investment, and I don't want an arcade next to me," said Blank. "I say keep them out of the downtown district.

"You can't walk down the sidewalk by Winchester Appliance — which only sells records — now, because of all the bikes on the sidewalk," Blank noted.

Vincent Berger of Yale st. also didn't like the idea of arcades downtown.

"We're trying to make the downtown a viable business district with class," said Berger. "I can't see class in an arcade in the old Rexall Drug."

Other residents took a less harsh view of video game centers.

"There is nothing for the youth of this town to do on a weekday, never mind a weekend in this town," said Carl Schwartzman of Blackhorse terr. "There ought to be a place open so there is someplace they can congregate besides the train station."

Schwartzman said some of the regulations, particularly that restricting the weekday opening hours to 4 p.m., seemed to go too far.

"I get the distinct impression the Board of Selectmen do not want machines in any place in town, at any time, under any circumstances," said Schwartzman. "You can't have a viable business that runs from 4 to 11, and you're depriving the public of enjoying, or wasting their money, on the machines just to protect the children.

"If you feel safe having those diabolical machines in town at all, let's let people use them," said Schwartzman, adding that a prohibition against use of the machines during school hours by school children seemed a better way to protect the children.

Winchester's Youth Coordinator, Steve D'Onofrio, also put in a plug, although a cautious one, for the video games.

"The youth in this town have a lot of programs, and a lot of interests," said D'Onofrio. "Video games are one of them, but not the only one.

"In the back of everyone's mind, there's the worry that kids will hang out at the video arcades — and some probably will," said D'Onofrio. "But it will also bring in interested people, kids who may have an interest in the games.."

D'Onofrio then put his finger on the reason why selectmen began to consider video games in the first place.

"This is something you can put off, but it won't go away," said D'Onofrio.

Selectmen Delay Patten Suit Decision

It will be another four days before the Board of Selectmen decides whether or not to sue Patten Associates for delays in the town's reassessment.

Selectmen had planned to vote on the suit Monday, after an executive session with Town Counsel Douglas Randall. But with one selectman, Edward O'Connell, absent from the meeting, selectmen decided to delay their vote until the coming Monday.

Last week, the Board of Assessors formally voted to recommend the town sue Patten, the Portland, Maine, firm responsible for the reassessment.

From comments made at Monday night's meeting, the selectmen will probably follow the assessors' lead.

Selectman Michael Saraco told the selectmen that he didn't need to discuss the matter with O'Connell or Randall. He already knew how he was going to vote, he said.

"No one in this room is going to change my mind on how I'm going to vote," said Saraco. "I'm going to sue."

Selectmen John J. Williams and Mark Lombardi also indicated they were in favor of taking Patten to court.

The selectmen will hold their executive session next Monday at 7 p.m., and vote on whether to sue Patten when they come back into public session at 7:30 p.m.

Saraco was all for taking the vote Monday, without O'Connell or the executive session.

But Randall told selectmen that they should hear all the argumets for and against the suit before deciding.

"Your formal vote will have an impact on the business being sued," said Randall. "The impact of pending litigation on the other party is substantial.

"I also have reasons I'd like to advance to persuade the board not to vote next week," said Randall.

Any suit will probably be based on a stipulation in the town's contract with Patten calling for a penalty charge for delay in completing the assessment. Under the contract, for every week the assessment was delayed Patten could be charged 1 percent of the contract price. The town paid Patten $171,000 for the reassessment.

The contract called for the assessment to be completed by July 1, 1981. The assessors later extended that deadline to Oct. 1. The assessment was finally completed July 16, when the town's tax bills went out.

The Board of Selectmen for the Town of Winchester will close Warrant for Fall Town Meeting November 1, 1982. During the next few days, residents wishing to place Article on the Warrant are encouraged to submit Articles by Friday, September 17th.

Sincerely,
Thomas J. Groux

Surprise Enrollment Increase Spurs School Staff Rehiring

An unexpected increase in the enrollment in Winchester's elementary schools allowed the School Committee to hire two more teachers and a half an aide.

On Tuesday night, the School Committee voted to staff the positions after Personnel Director Diane Hall and School Supt. William MacDonald explained the ramifications of a 38 elementary pupil increase over the administration's predictions.

One teacher each will go to Ambrose and Lincoln schools, with the aide being assigned to Vinson-Owen.

Staffing is based on a teacher-per-pupil formula, according to Hall. When enrollments were higher than expected, the formula led school officials to the conclusion more teachers were needed.

An extra teacher was added in the Ambrose School, 1.5 aides in the Lynch School, and one less aide in the Vinson-Owen School.

The formula also showed the Muraco School needed 10 teachers and two aides, Hall noted, but the administration decided to give the school another teacher rather than the two aides.

The Lynch School principal, Andrew Allen, also requested his two aides to be replaced with a teacher, but that request was turned down, Hall said.

School Committeeman John Duffy questioned why the policy should be different for two schools, asking "Why are aides better than a teacher in one instance, and not in another."

Supt. MacDonald, under repeated questioning from Duffy, said the primary reason was money, but added, "The fact that a teacher was already in place in one school, and patterns were already established" contributed to the decision.

No specific teachers were hired under the School Committee motion. School administrators and principals will choose from candidates on the school's recall list of laid-off teachers this week, according to Hall.

Mushroom Lady To Talk At Garden Club Meeting

Maria Maravigna of Middlesex st. artist-sculptress and Winchester's famous "Mushroom Lady" will talk on "Hunting Wild Mushrooms" before the members of the Garden and Florist Club of Boston at their meeting at Wellesley College on Tuesday evening, September 21.

She will display a large selection of her scientifically accurate mushroom sculptures representing the beauty, unusual shapes and vibrant colors of wild mushrooms - and will identify edible and poisonous species and where they are apt to be found.

Police Log

Friday, Sept. 10

—A Ledgewood rd. home was broken into sometime during the evening, according to police reports.

Police believe the home was entered through the woodshed which connects to the master bedroom of the house.

Two girls, aged 16 and 17, were arrested for public drinking and for possession of alcohol before the age of 20, according to police reports.

Officer Lawrence Hill reported that he spotted the two drinking beer and walking down the sidewalk of Wildwood st. and subsequently arrested them. The two will have to appear in Woburn District Court on the charges.

A 35—year—old Arlington woman and a 69—year—old Medford woman suffered minor injuries when their cars collided at the intersection of Wedgemere ave. and Calumet rd., according to police reports filed by Officer Jonathan Dean.

The Arlington woman was driving her Ford north on Wedgemere ave. and the Medford woman had just stopped for the stop sign on Calumet after heading west on Calumet rd. when the two collided. Both cars were considerably damaged and towed from the scene.

Monday, Sept. 13

—Between $50 and $100 and several credit cards were stolen from a Worthen rd. home before the owner scared away the intruders, according to police reports filed by Officer John Alford.

Alford reported that the homeowner phoned police after he believed an intruder had just run from his home. The owner stated that he went downstairs after hearing a noise and then heard someone run from the house.

Police said the home was entered when someone apparently forced open a screen door. Police believe the intruder also tried to remove a television set, since it was moved from its usual location.

The incident is under investigation.

Local Families Host Japanese Students

What's the best way to learn about Japan without actually going there? Local families found out by hosting Japanese students in their homes from July 27 - Aug. 16.

Host families included: Mr. and Mrs. Levon Boodakian, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Covino, Angela Dyson, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Kilker, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Murdock and Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Pari.

The Japanese students were staying in Winchester as participants in Interstudy's three week Homestay Program. InterStudy, an educational program based in San Francisco, affords foreign students the opportunity to experience American life and culture by living with host families and to improve their knowledge of English by attending conversational English classes.

During the three-week program, students attended classes at St. Margaret's School in Burlington. In the afternoon students participated in excursions to Boston, Plymouth, Harvard University, Lexington, and Concord. In the evenings and on unscheduled afternoons students experienced the American life with their host families.

The three-week program came to an end with a Sayonara party planned by the Japanese students. The students dressed in traditional kimonos and entertained the families with Japanese dances, songs and games.

Group representative Janet Covino said, "the program was a great success because of the warmth and generosity of the host families."

For more information about Interstudy's Homestay program contact: Covino, on Sanborn st. or write to InterStudy, 703 Market st., San Francisco, Calif., 94103.

Aero-O-Cise, Exercise Classes Open In Arlington For All

The Arlington Boys and Girls Club will hold classes for adults ages 18 and older in Aer-o-cise and Exercise beginning the first week of October.

Aer-o-cise is a combination of aerobic dance and exercise done to music. Two separate classes are being formed, one on Monday evenings at 8:00 and the other on Wednesday mornings at 10:00. Geared toward cardiovascular fitness, Aer-o-cise benefits the heart and lungs as well as achieving better muscle tone throughout the entire body.

The Adult Exercise Class, although not as strenuous as Aer-o-cise, features an hour of exercise using the entire body. Emphasis is placed on correct breathing and posture as well as better muscle tone.

There will be a free open house for the Aer-o-cise and exercise classes. Participants are advised to bring gym gear.

Aer-o-cise open houses will be on Monday, Sept. 20 from 8 - 9 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept.22, form 10 to 11 a.m. The open house for the exercise class will be on Monday, Sept 20, from 6:45 to 7:45 p.m.

Minicourses Etc. Begins Third Year Of Elementary Enrichment Programs

Minicourses Etc., an after school enrichment program for elementary age children, is beginning its third successful year in Winchester.

Currently, applications for teachers are being accepted and reviewed. If there are any interested people who enjoy developing and teaching subjects apart from the organized elementary curriculum, please contact Helen Philliou as soon as possible.

The fall semester starts Sept. 30 and runs through Dec. 16. While the program is particularly interested in hearing from "hands on" people, any appropriate subject will be discussed for possible inclusion in the offerings.

Phone Helen Philliou, 1 Sachem rd. after 7 p.m. for further information.

Stone Zoo Features Talks With Animals Sept. 17-19

Stone Zoo invites all children and adults to talk with the animals at the "Living Annual Report," at Stone Zoo, Stoneham, Friday through Sunday, Sept. 17-19. Free Baby Gorilla book covers will be given to the first 500 children accompanied by adult on each of the three days.

In addition to the jugglers and the mimes, the zoo will have signs at chosen exhibits explaining how the zoo is run and managed, how much the animals eat a year, progress at Boston's other Zoo, Franklin Park, and much more.

Stone Zoo is the only zoo in the country where visitors can see three infant Western Lowland Gorillas being raised together. They can be seen in their outdoor exhibit, weather permitting, otherwise in the Mammal House, from 9 a.m. to noon, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. and naptime is from noon tm 2 p.m.

Hospital Offers Nutrition Course

Cardiac patients who have questions on what foods they can eat, and how to prepare them may attend a course in cardiac nutrition taught by a registered dietitian on the staff of Winchester Hospital.

The course will be held Wednesdays, Sept. 29, Oct. 6 and 13, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the home economics lab at Winchester High School.

Those attending will participate in hands-on cooking and taste testing of food. They will also learn to adapt favorite recipes to their new dietary needs. Written materials and resources will be provided.

There s a fee for the course. Enrollment is limited. Those who wish to register may call the education department at Winchester Hospital.

Free Home Health Aides Training Course Offered

A free training course for persons interested in becoming home health aides will be given Sept. 20 through Oct. 1 at Visiting Nurse and Community Health, 87 Pleasant st., Arlington.

The home health aide training course will prepare persons to become part of a professional team in delivery of home health care services to the sick, disabled and elderly in Arlington, Burlington, Lexington and Winchester.

Home health aides provide personal care, meal preparation, assist with exercises and simple procedures.

Interested candidates for this course should contact Mrs. Mary Desmond, Home Health Aide Coordinator, at UNCH in Arlington.

Advantages of this position include flexible hours, competitive benefits and wages, mileage reimbursement, and paid training.

Mystic Valley Council For Children Represent Local Youth On Many Social Service Programs

By JEFFREY REMZ

Day care centers, adoption services, foster care and day treatment programs are among the many social service programs impacting upon the lives of youth in the Mystic Valley community.

However, although the young do not have a voice of their own to speak out on the effectiveness of these programs, the Mystic Valley Council for Children does represent the youth of Arlington, Burlington, Lexington, Wilmington, Winchester, and Woburn.

"Because children don't vote and lobby and make campaign contributions, they don't really have any say in the decisions made by government," says Matty Bloom, community representative for the council. "This is a way for the citizens who are concerned to have a say."

The council engages in three areas of activities mandated by State Law: Investigating and documenting the need for such child services as counseling, day care, foster care, and adoption sources (also known as needs assessment); evaluating the quality of specific local programs (community review); and reviewing and recommending program proposals for state funds (proposal review).

Membership in the council is comprised of citizen volunteers interested in improving children and youth services, according to Bloom. "Anyone can join the council," she says. "You don't need experience. You need concern about kids. In this time of funding cutbacks, children services need citizens to do the advocacy for them."

This year, the council, which is one of 42 across the state mandated by legislation creating the Massachusetts Office for Children in 1972, is engaged in national effort to monitor the effects of federal cutbacks on children's program, such as child health, day care, aid to families with dependent children and welfare services.

The Child Watch Project, as it is known, is engaged in a two-pronged effort of interviewing key community people in the various areas of children's services and informing the public about the committee's findings.

"Child Watch is trying to determine how the cuts from 1981 are impacting upon the actual lives of children and families with children receiving service," says Bloom, "We are trying to make people aware as a public information effort because very often people read in the papers about a program which cut back on its services, but won't really know how it is impacting the lives of children in our area."

The study is being sponsored by the Massachusetts Advocacy Center in Boston and the Children's Defense Fund, which is based in Washington. Twenty councils for children across the state are participating.

A second facet of the council's operations, the community review, involves conducting a site-visit and collecting and analyzing written information on a specific program chosen for a review. Programs under review include both privately funded programs and those funded by such agencies as the Massachusetts Departments of Social Services, Mental Health, and Public Health.

Reviews are undertaken for various reasons, including the choice to support quality programs, which may have a low profile in the community or programs which may be encountering problems and need support towards improving services, according to Bloom.

"Our citizens come in with a different viewpoint than professional monitors," Bloom says. "They're not paid by the state. They look with the standpoint 'do I want my kid to be here? If so, why is that? and I'd like to inform the public about what I see. If there's a problem, I'd like to support the program to change, so my child will have a good experience there."

"The goal is to try to improve services for children" Bloom says, " so we will try and stay in contact. The point of the community review isn't to police the program, but give it community support and make suggestions about things that might need to be improved for the welfare of our communities' children.

The review, which usually takes between two and four months, is performed by a small group of council members. They visit the program, interview the staff and director, observe staff interaction with the children and question parents about the program.

The proposal review committee of the council will be involved this fall in helping to determine which day care center facilities in the Mystic Valley should receive state funds.

Community volunteers equipped with training and technical assistance, will review day care proposals with the Massachusetts Dept. of Social Services area board. The groups form a joint committee and offer recommendations to the director of the state agency providing the funding. However, all final decisions are left with the agency.

"Membership in the council is comprised of citizen volunteers intersted in improving children and youth services. Anyone can join the council, you don't need experience. You need concern about kids. In this time of funding cutbacks, children services need citizens to do the advocacy for them."

—Community Representative Matty Bloom

The council also coordinates other task oriented, "non-mandated" committees, such as a 766 Advocacy Committee, concerning special education. Other committees, which the council hopes to establish may focus on child abuse, parenting support, and legislative action.

Committees theoretically have an equal number of "providers" (teacher, social service administrators and social workers) and "consumers" (parents), according to Bloom. "We really try to stress consumer and parent needs," Bloom says. "The reason we do that is that we believe that anyone who has kids or knows children has a lot to offer to the community about maintaining quality programs for children."

In addition to the various committees, the council also sponsors forums on topics like teen-age drinking and the psychological impact of the nuclear age on children. Single parenting will be discussed at the council's annual meeting on Sept. 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the First Congregational Church, 21 Church st., Winchester.

Board elections will take place at the beginning of the meeting. The meeting is open to the public. All citizens who live or work in one of the Mystic Valley towns are also eligible to join the council board.

"There is room for expanded council activity, since council involvements are largely determined by the interests of the membership. Citizens who work together locally can," says Bloom, "have a positive impact on the accountability of the local children's services."

Alarm Co. Owner Advocates Licensing For Installers

In the wake of an alarm dealer's bankruptcy, consumers have found that guarantees of home alarm systems have disappeared.

Richard L. Sampson of Winchester, president of American Alarm & Communications Inc., headquartered in Winchester, says the situation could have been avoided if the pending proposal for licensing burglar alarm installers had been in effect.

In the meantime, he suggested that consumers can get a pretty clear picture of just whom they might be dealing with through a phone interview.

Sampson says home and business owners should ask the following nine questions and take a look at the pattern that emerges from the answers: How long has your company been in business under present management?; Who owns the firm?; Is it listed by the Underwriter's Laboratory?; Is the company a member of the National Burglar and Fire Alarm Association or the State Security Contractor's Association?; Do you use subcontractors to install systems?; Who will visit my home, and what is his-her background?;

Also, Do you carry workmen's compensation, product liability, errors and omissions, and general liability insurance?; Is your company rated by Dun & Bradstreet?; Can you provide references from customers in my community?

Sampson suggests that trade associations, local crime prevention officers, and neighbors and business associates who've received satisfactory systems and service, be asked for referrals. In the absence of tough licensing standards, checking references is considered a must.

Edward Markey Honored For Support To Small Businesses

Congressman Edward J. Markey was honored for his "stalwart support" of small business by the national magazine Inc. in the publication's September issue.

Markey won the distinction for his support of five crucial rollcall votes in the House of Representatives which were supportive of small-business interests. He is listed in the magazine's "Entrepreneurship Honor Roll."

The honor was awarded on the basis of Markey's support for passage of the Small Business Innovation Development Act of 1982 which was approved by Congress in June and signed into law by President Reagan in July.

The act will funnel millions of dollars of reserach and development funds from federal agencies to small businesses. Over the next five years, this bill could provide as much as $1 billion in such funds for thousands of firms, especially in high technology companies such as those located along Boston's Route 128 corridor.

Markey is also the prime sponsor of the Small-Issue Industrial Revenue Development Act of 1982 which would allow state and local governments to raise money for use in promoting small business growth and capital development.

Constitution Week Sept. 17

President Ronald Reagan has proclaimed the week of Sept 17 to 23 as Constitution Week.

Mrs. Ernest A. Phillips Jr., Regent, and members of the Committee of Safety Chapter DAR in Winchester urges Winchester townspeople to celebrate the 195th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution by resolving to be better informed and more alert citizens.

Senior Notes

INTERACT Flea Market

On Sept. 25, the WSA will have booths at the Winchester Interact Flea Market, placed in front of the Jenks Senior Center. Shoppers can select items from the following tables: men's and women's boutiques, electrical appiiances, gift shop, jewelry, and Claxton fruit cakes. Tickets will also be sold for the several prizes to be awarded at the end of the Seventh Annual Fall Fiesta Fair on Oct. 6 and 7 at the Jenks Senior Center.

Fall Fiesta Fair

Give a real fall gift to yourself by attending the Seventh Annual Fall Fiesta Fair sponsored by the Winchester Seniors Association on Oct. 6 and 7. The doors of the Jenks Senior Center will open on Oct. 6 at 2 p.m. and selling will continue until 9 p.m. On Oct. 7 the fair will open at 10 a.m. and remain active until 3 p.m. Rena and Randy Kazazian and their committee will operate a snack bar throughout the fair.

Catered Dinner

There will be a catered dinner at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Oct. 6 from 5-7 p.m. The dinner menu is as follows: tomato juice, tossed salad, all-meat chicken pies, mashed potatoes, vegetable, cranberry sauce, rolls and butter, ice cream, homemade cookies, tea, coffee, or Sanka. Tickets are available at the Jenks Senior Center. Mrs. Helen Hodgdon, food chairman of the WSA, Mrs. Helen Murphy, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Randy Kazazian, program chairman of the WSA, are in charge of arrangements.

Waiters And Waitresses Needed

At the dinner at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Mrs. Helen Hodgdon is seeking agile volunteer waiters and waitresses to help serve the 500 diners with dispatch. If you are willing to give your services, please contact the Jenks Senior Center. You do not have to be a senior to serve in this capacity. Since the dinner will be continuously served from 5 to 7 p.m., it is requisite to have many hands to attend to removing dishes and silver and providing new diners with food so that there will not be delays.

Prizes

Several items of value can be had at the Fall Fiesta Fair on Oct. 6 and 7 by holders of the lucky numbers. A beautiful handmade quilt of Grandmother's Flower Design has been worked on by many talented seamstresses through the spring and summer months. One day, the quilt will be an heirloom. A Pot of Gold Money Tree carries a substantial amount of money. A beautiful fan pattern knitted afghan made by Catherine Hatch is not only decorative but serviceable when winter winds blow. An international basket of cheer worth many dollars has been carefully selected by Norman Reed, president of the WSA. Tickets are available at the desk of the Winchester Senior Center and will be available throughout the fair.

SOI Women Invite All To Membership Tea

The Officers and Members of the Winchester Womens' Lodge 1592 Order Sons of Italy invites all interested persons to attend a membership tea and reception Sunday afternoon, at 3 p.m. at 117 Swanton st.

By joining the Winchester Womens' Lodge members will become a member of the Grand Lodge of Mass. and the National Order, Sons of Italy in America and be afforded the opportunity to participate in local and statewide programs to benefit members, their families and fellow citizens.

The past years have brought forth many important programs, benefits and activities to the order, including a monthly Sons of Italy newspaper, Italian culture commission, charity commission for the needy; scholarship commission, low cost insurance program, sports commission and Don Orione Home for the Elderly.

In the Winchester lodge activities include: bowling league, Christmas party; a getaway weekend, mystery rides, and lunch and theater days. The meeting calendar this year included many professional speakers, an Italian culture night, a make-up demonstration and a Bermuda travel night.

Funds raised by the fashion show, a night at the races, bridge and whist and Las Vegas night helped charitable endeavors.

The Winchester Womens' Lodge 1592 celebrated 50 years of service this year. Guest of honor at the tea will be Mrs. Eugene Falco, president of the Benefit Insurance Commission and National Regional Deputy of the Order Sons of Italy. She holds the position of executive coordinator of the largest and most complex study, funded and sponsored by the National Eye Institute, The Early Treatment Diabetic Retinopathy Study at the Joslin Clinic, Boston.

Mrs. Charles (Peggy) Perenick, assistant venerable of the Winchester Women's Lodge, is membership chairman, Venerable Elizabeth DiLoretto is honorary chairman.

WSA Glee Club Seeks Singers

Winchester Senior Assn. Glee Club is beginning its second year of practice and performance. A cordial invitation to join the choral group is extended to all interested people who enjoy choral singing. Each member will be welcomed enthusiastically.

Robert Mulford, a local musician, is the director of the group which meets on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month from 10:30 a.m. to noon, barring holidays.

The existing group is small but most congenial. They perform at special occasions at the Jenks Senior Center. One does not have to be a professional singer to be a part of this group. Just arrive at the Center on the dates scheduled and prepare to join the songsters.

All parts are needed - soprano, alto, tenor, and bass.

Common Sense

Yesterday's Boston Globe editorial about the tragic, indiscriminate killing of eight people in Miami by a crazed man wielding a shotgun is a classic lesson in how to ignore reality in order to make the world fit your image.

The crazed man with the shotgun was stopped by a licensed gun owner who shot him. The man was later presented a $100 reward and a citation by the Florida Crime Commission.

The Globe criticized the citizen and called him a "vigilante," and asked, "Is Miami really akin to the Wild Wild West, where the strongest survived and all were free to take the law into their own hands?"

The editorial concluded as follows: "Bay Staters concerned about crime can learn from this incident. Tough federal and state gun-control laws can stop bullets. Without guns, the death toll at the machine shop in Miami would have been zero."

That says it all.

Reflect on that statement for a moment.

It ignores the fact that tough drug control laws can't stop drug abuse. It ignores the fact that tough alcohol control laws — including a Constitutional amendment prohibiting alcohol, couldn't stop alcohol abuse, though this country tried it for 13 years. And it ignores the fact that highly urbanized areas breed both crime and crazy people in larger numbers and proportions than rural and suburban areas.

"Without guns ..."

The logic is incredible.

There are 60 million handguns in America and about 150 million rifles and shotguns. Less than four-tenths of one percent of the handguns are ever involved in crime. The number of rifles and shotguns subject to criminal abuse is so small statistics aren't kept.

But The Boston Globe suggests that if we could confiscate (or ban) the 209,735,000 — two hundred-and-nine-million-seven-hundred-and-thirty-five thousand — guns owned and used by law-abiding citizens, it would then be a simple matter to pick up the 265,000 or so guns used by criminals and crazy people.

Then, we suppose, The Globe would recommend doing away with police and courts and jails and spend all that money rehabilitating the criminals who are out of work because they can't find any guns.

And then grass would grow in the ghettos, and the people would all sip gin and tonics as they weeded their flower gardens under a blue sky broken only by an occasional puffy white cloud. It would be a very nice world.

It is incredible that The Globe editors can seriously make a statement like "Tough federal and state gun-control laws can stop bullets. Without guns. ..."

Not only does it ignore the reality of 1980s urban life in a country with more than 220,000,000 people, including some who are crazy and some who are criminal, but it should be a warning to all of us.

Just as there really are people "out there" in society who will rape, rob, steal and shoot for their own personal gain, there are others — like The Boston Globe — who sincerely believe that taking away 209 million guns from law-abiding people is the way to solve the crime problem.

To criticize the citizen who shot a crazy man who was in the process of killing eight innocent people, by throwing up visions of vigilantes and the Wild, Wild West is simply beyond our comprehension.

It is not the Wild, Wild West. It is the reality of Urban, Urban Miami, or Boston, or Baltimore or the Bronx. It is reality that no gun laws are going to stop criminals.

By definition, a criminal is a person who breaks the law. And what gun law is going to stop a crazy man who can obtain a gun on any street corner by simply attacking a police officer from behind?

"Bay Staters concerned about crime can learn a lot from this incident. Tough federal and state gun-control laws can stop bullets. Without guns..."

It is logic like this which makes the two million members of the National Rifle Association dig in their heels and take an uncompromising stance against new gun laws. And it is no wonder when in Massachusetts — a state with the strictest gun-control and licensing laws in the country — the largest newspaper tries to turn an incident of heroism into an argument for gun confiscation.

On a statistical basis, of the more than 200 murders in Boston over the last two years, only one was committed with a legally-owned gun. Yet The Globe and others seem to think the answer to the crime problem is more gun laws.

Let us hope that it is a coincidence that the Globe's anti-gun editorial appeared the day after the primary win by Ex. Gov. Michael Dukakis. Dukakis is an ardent anti-gunner who supported a firearms confiscation referendum question in 1976 which was defeated 3 to 1 by the voters.

The Globe's clear statement that its "gun control" position includes a ban on shotguns is enlightening. They say, "Without guns, the death toll at the machine shop in Miami would have been zero." They apparently say ban the shotgun.

This statement again admits the real goal of the gun-control proponents is confiscation and not control. And their view includes longarms as well as handguns. When the gun control zealots thought they were going to win the 1976 referendum, they openly talked about going after "sniper weapons" as their next target. That is the term they used to describe what most people call hunting and target rifles.

The really dangerous people here are not the criminals and the crazies. They are those who ignore common sense in pursuit of their idealism. They are those who would deny 99.6 percent of the people a basic freedom, and even the right to self-defense, in order to promote their goal for society.

And the danger is great, for they are truly sincere. The next time you hear a gun-controller telling you how he would solve the criminal and social ills of urban America with just one more law, call on your common sense to bring you back to reality.

Or, on the other hand, recall that vision of Roxbury in roses and the Bronx in bloom as we all sip from the same cup under a clear blue sky broken only by ...

A Magical World Gives Way To School

By TERRY MAROTTA

My little girl entered public school for the first time last week.

We walked to the top of the hill, she and I, on a blue September morning that Norman Rockwell might have conjured up.

We approached the yellow brick schoolhouse and beheld a time-honored scene: 300 kids freshly pressed and polished in their Back-To-School best; cartwheels and swaggering on the part of the older kids; lisps and uncertainty on the part of the kindergartners; and of course we groupies — the collection of first-time school moms like myself, snapping pictures, adjusting barrettes, and gulping back the sudden rise of salty tears.

The teacher called out 25 names. Remarkably, each child in my daughter's class acknowledged his name and got himself in line. As they filed into the building, I had the sense of a momentous event; I knew that I was feeding this little person into a large set of jaws — into the belly of school with a capital "S."

From this time forward, she's on the Rolls. I can't keep her home without just cause, and I can't make her late. Her formal education has passed into the hands of the state. I have this image in my mind of her little body on a conveyer belt, moving feet first into the great system of compulsory free education, from which she's likely to emerge 12 years from now with a respectable understanding of calculus, the Bill of Rights, and computer software.

And this is all as it should be.

But I'm feeling nostalgic today, I find, for the long five-and-a-half year chapter that drew to a close last week.

For from this point on, I guess, she's less mine, in a way. And we will no longer inhabit that cozy world where I was the only teacher and she was the only pupil; where we made up the curriculum as we went along; and the universe was our classroom.

Those were lovely years, as I look back on them, and we had fun, the two of us did. Life was simple and unpunctuated by clocks and schoolbells. The days had a rhythm of their own; they were long and lazy, and there was time for everything: for studying the furry trundle of a caterpillar; for watching the spectacle of a summer thunderstorm; for creating ripples in a pond and watching them radiate to infinity... There weren't a lot of rules operating in that world, and for sure there was no seating plan.

Her universe was a small and friendly place in those pre-school years, a place peopled with pals and confidantes. She used to tell secrets to her feet, as I recall, and they'd respond with secrets of their own. All four dozen dolls and teddies possessed not only the names she'd given them, but fully developed personalities as well.

I remember one time when she was scarcely 2. She'd been put to bed already, but she and the stuffed animals were having an especially bouncy time of it behind closed doors. Her father went in to bring the noise level down; the bouncing subsided. And as he pulled the door shut again, he heard her whisper with awe and admiration, whisper to an audience wholly non-existent to the sight of grownup eyes, mind you, "That was my Daddy!"

Her world was a magical one, animate and warm and sustaining.

But the world she's moving into is a magical one too, I guess: the world of natural law. She's fascinated now by the distinction between veins and arteries. She finds the mysteries of reproduction almost too miraculous to be true. And when she heard there was a planet that had 10 moons, it set her to wondering in a way that Mother Goose never made her do. ...

So I guess we're ready, she and I, to let school lead her further into this the realler and more rigorous world, and ready, too, to bid the nursery-world good-bye.

I'm reminded of an experience a younger cousin had once, some 25 years ago when she started public school. A little boy bit her on the arm, it seems, without cause or explanation. She did what she could to digest the experience, and went about her business; she certainly didn't mention it to the teacher.

But when she'd had her dinner that night, she sort of sidled up to her mother and said, with a great effort at casualness, "Do they eat arms in elementary school?"

Well, whether they eat arms there, or teach reading, or conduct fire drills, one thing is sure: a 5-year-old better be ready for anything.

Mine entered public school last week, and she'll leave it for good in the spring of 1994.

It's a long journey she's about to embark on, the journey of educating one's self. It's lifelong, and adventurous, and packed with discovery.

I wish her Godspeed on it. I wish her Bon Voyage.

Letters To The Editor

Store Owner Concerned By Apathy Toward Video Games

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Monday evening at 8 the Board of Selectmen held an open hearing on the subject of licensing Automatic Amusement Devices.

My attendance was because of my business interest on Thompson st.—— The proposed location of video amusement machines. I have no objections to licensing of video machines, only the location of said machines.

I also resent having out—of—towners (lawyers etc. from Boston) coming into our town and insinuating to our Board of Selectmen that if they do not grant licensing of video machines, their organizations have many millions of dollars for litigation (sure sounded like blackmail) and their only concern was to save the town money.

Has any thought gone into rehabilitating the old waiting room at the railroad station or buying the old Purity building, hiring managers to operate the games, and only licensing the town to operate these machines?

The town could really do well in the Purity building; they could have an excellent youth center and it would be self—supporting by income from the machines. They could have pool tables, ping pong, television and a soft drink bar—lounge.

The town has recently received a grant of many thousands of dollars to beautify our downtown area. A game parlour in the center would hardly seem to conform to my idea of beautification.

It is time more concerned citizens showed up at Town Hall to support or reject the many decisions selectmen must make. If we don't make our feelings on issues known then these gentlemen must assume we don't care.

I am sure many more people have opinions about the video games coming to Winchester — where were you Monday night?

Breen Family Thanks Searchers

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We, the Family of John Breen, would like to thank all the people and friends in the search for our son. We know how hard it was for you to do this dreadful task.

We now realize how many people came to love our son by the show of concern and thoughtfulness each one of you showed. It was a sad and tragic death that we all suffered and we know how much our son will be missed.

Officials Meet To Solve Pollution In Mystic Lake

What can be done about pollution in the Upper Mystic Lake and the pollution carrying effects of the Aberjona River and its other tributaries?

Community representatives and other residents of the area will gather for the final meeting of the Urban Runoff Advisory Committee tonight in the Board of Health Room, Winchester Town Hall at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting, called by the Office of Planning and Program Management of the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, is open to all interested residents.

The main topic of discussion will be the draft report of the Upper Mystic Lake Watershed Urban Runoff Project. During the study it has been necessary, officials say, to look at other sources of pollutants besides the runoff of rain and stormwater into the rivers and lakes. These other sources have included hazardous waste and combined sewer problems, particularly in Winchester and Stoneham. An overview of the report will be given at the hearing.

Dr. Herbert Meyer, president of the Mystic River Watershed Association which is conducting the public participation phases of the study, urges area residents to attend the meeting and participate in the discussion.

While the study officially concludes the end of this month, implementation of its control recommendations remains in the future and subject to public action, Meyer stressed.

The study involves the entire Upper Mystic Lake Watershed, which includes Arlington, Medford, Woburn, Stoneham, Reading, Wilmington, Winchester, and Burlington.

Claude Pepper Was Right About Cuts

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I think Claude Pepper is right when he gets all shook up about our politicians trying their darndest to cut our Social Security.

Why keep our elderly worried all the time?

This country will never be great unless poverty is eliminated and people are put back to work and they are happy again.

The thing that makes so much crime is poverty.

Now, I am told, even a man who works five days a week and gets paid a little over $200 per week has $30 or more taken out of his pay for taxes, while our bigwigs get a raise every year, voting it themselves. But they tell all the working population not to ask for one.

The elderly try to live on $4000 or $5000 a year. Now everyone knows this can't be done. Teeth are needed, hearing aids, feet done. Even when we go to a doctor, if he is kind enough to accept Medicare, we owe 20 percent of the bill.

If Medicaid is used, you are classified as a pauper. Why should our elderly have to have this stigma?

The old Townsend plan would have been nice. You would be given a certain amount of money each month at 65 years, but you would have to spend it and not put it under a barrel before you could have more.

This would have helped our stores in town because the elderly would buy things they need each month, keeping money in cirulation.

Sincerely,
Louise Chase

P.S. Thank goodness for free speech.

Newcomer's Club Oktoberfest Party Starts 1982-83 Season

An Oktoberfest party on Sunday, Oct. 3 will be Winchester Newcomer's Club first social event of the 1982-83 season.

The event is planned from 3-6 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Traniello 24 Olde Village dr.

There will be no charge for this party at which German beer and wines, German sausage, cheeses and bread will be served.

This party, like Newcomer's Club itself, is intended to help new residents of Winchester meet one another and build up a circle of new friends with similar interests.

This first party of the season is traditionally a well-attended, friendly affair and a warm invitation is extended to all adults who have moved into town within the past three years.

If further details are required please contact Carolyn Mingo, 43 Jefferson rd., or Carol Andrus, 134 Arlington st.

Art Assn. Member Exhibits

For the month of September, Elaine Chipman, a member of the Winchester Art Association, is exhibiting her realistic oil paintings at the Cambridgeport Bank, Winchester.

Chipman has studied with Vincent Hartgin at the University of Maine and with King Coffin at the DeCordova Museum.

She is the past president of the Studio Guild in Winchester and has served on the board of the Winchester Art Association.

GOOD FOR ALL — The Winchester Youth Soccer team and the town's parks department have negotiated a deal which benefits them both. Under the direction of Delip Bokil of Marion st., the soccer players who range in age from grades one through 10 share the cost of field maintenance with the town. In exchange for sharing expenses for the seeding, aeration and fertilizing of MacDonald, Lockeland, Leonard, Muraco and Lynch fields, the team has the use of the playing fields for their soccer games. This works out to everybody's advantage and Winchester residents make out in the deal with beautiful fields. The players above kick off the start of the Winchester Youth Soccer program at MacDonald field. Approximately 700 boys and 500 girls registered for soccer this season. And they will be playing on beautifully-groomed fields to boot. (Staff Photo by Noreen Murphy)

Nuclear Awareness Forum Features Speaker Wednesday

"Shaping Our Nuclear Present," a series of evening forums for awareness and action, continues on Wednesday, Sept. 22 with a presentation by John Mack, M.D., entitled "Psychological Effects and Causes of the Nuclear Arms Threat."

Dr. Mack is a professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School, and a practicing psychiatrist at the Cambridge Hospital and the Cambridge-Somerville Mental Health and Retardation Center.

The Winchester-Woburn Citizens for a Mutual Nuclear Weapons Freeze and the freeze groups from neighboring towns are sponsoring this series which continues every Wednesday through Oct. 14. The forum begins at 8 p.m. at Clarke Junior High School, Brookside ave., Lexington. For further information, please contact Steve Wirtz, 124 Mt. Vernon st.

Jewish Community Sponsors New Years Party Saturday

Saturday, Sept. 18, marks the first full day of Rash Hashanah, and Monday, Sept. 27, the first full day of Yom Kippur.

These two dates are the high points of a 40-day period devoted to Jewish religious prayer and serious thought. It is a time when Jews take stock of their ideals and deeds, to strive to acquire new ideas and new hopes to face the year ahead.

In observance of this time, the Winchester Jewish community is sponsoring a family Rosh Hashana party this Saturday afternoon, from 3-5 p.m. The party will be held at the home of Susie and Richard Pallan. There will be a short ceremony with apples dipped in honey and wine to celebrate the sweetness of the New Year.

WJC members and prospective new members are invited to attend and are asked to RSVP to Jill and Vick Hasson, 12 Madison ave. West, or Susie and Richard Pallan, 13 Norwood st.

Resident Speaks At Annual Visiting Nurse Meeting

Dr. Eileen Schell, Secretary of Consumer Affairs, will be the guest speaker at the annual meeting of Visitng Nurse and Community Health, Inc., Sept. 20, at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend. Dr. Schell, a Winchester resident, will alert her audience to changes in health care consumers should know about.

The annual meeting will be held at the Grey Nuns, Pelham rd., Lexington.

Following her speech will be the annual meeting of members, election of officers and directors for '82-83 and the annual meeting of Visiting Nurse and Community Health Inc.

Visiting Nurse and Community Health is the Medicare-Medicaid provider of home health care to Arlington, Burlington, Lexington and Winchester. Residents of the four communities who are interested in the delivery of home health care are urged to attend.

W. Howard Niblock of Cambridge st. will preside at the annual meeting. Niblock is just completing his first term of office as president of the board of directors. Program Chairman Pauline Shanks of Lexington will introduce the guest speaker.

Winchester Savings Bank Forms Real Estate Development Firm

The Winchester Savings Bank announces the formation of the Winchester Group Inc., a real estate development firm. The corporate office will be located in the bank's main office at 661 Main st. The new subsidiary corporation will be engaged in real estate development projects, residential as well as commercial.

Operating the company and serving as its executive vice president will be Anthony P. Petrucci of Coolidge rd., former vice president and senior loan officer of the Winchester Savings Bank.

Petrucci's initial efforts will be to locate other developers to form joint venture partnerships. "Initially, our efforts will be concentrated in finding top quality developers, either residential or commercial, who need equity cash and construction financing and are willing to form a joint venture partnership. We will also be looking for sites to do our own development in which no partners will be involved," Petrucci said.

CLOSE ENCOUNTERS — Of the four-footed kind are explored in the Winchester Drama Workshop by (l to r) Brigette Cossu, Kristen McKay, Susan Soloman, Maria Cloherty, Matthew Kennedy, Jason Boone and Tracy Collum. A new jr. high group opens next Wednesday with registration starting Saturday at the town recreation office.

Drama Workshop Offers Arts Holistic Education

A ten - week Drama Workshop series for Junior high youth offers Holistic Education in theater arts beginning next Wednesday.

It's all about: discovering one's roots in the ancient myths of other cultures and in different forms of life on the planet; healing the body and mind through the freeing of creative impulses; and uplifting the spirit through movement, music, humor, vision and shared improvisation.

Seasoned troupers of McCall's "Once Upon a Mattress," former Drama Workshop participants and newcomers to theater arts are all invited on this adventure together on Wednesday, Sept. 22 from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Social Studies Area of the High School, second floor, front.

Co - sponsored by the Recreation Department and the Winchester Drama Workshop, the series is financed in part by the Winchester Rotary Club and the Enka Society, so that participants need pay only $10. Tuition assistance on this fee is available on application to the Recreation Office.

The group will work on Wednesday afternoons for 10 weeks on body tune—up with yoga exercises and relaxation; sensory awareness exercises; basic movement patterns; the silent language of mime; theater games to evoke spontaneity and improvised scenes. The series will culminate in a demonstration tentatively set for Thursday evening, Dec. 2, which is open to the community.

During August workshop leader Paulett Taggart participated in a sacred arts program in New Lebanon, N.Y., with Saphira Linden, artistic director of Theater Workshop Boston, who directed the Cosmic Celebration in London in July; Allaudin Mathieu, concert artist and director of the Sufi Choir in San Francisco; and Zuleika, who has trained extensively in Eastern and Western dance forms.

Registration for the new jr. high group, which will be limited in size, will open Saturday, Sept. 18, at the Recreation Office at the rear of Town Hall. Furthur information is available from Taggart.

Music Instruments Hotline Available

The Friends of the Winchester High School Music Department have a number to be called if someone wishes to buy or sell good used student musical instruments.

Call Ginny Laats, 729-8896, between 7 and 9 p.m.

Red Cross Announces Fall 1982 Training Registration

The Winchester Red Cross announces the first two courses in its Fall 1982 Training Schedule. The first course will be a three—night CPR class. The second will be a five—night Standard First Aid class. Both classes will be held at the Winchester Chapter offices, 39 Church st.

Pre—registration and pre—payment are required; initial registration may be done over the phone by calling the Chapter House, Monday—Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

CPR is a first aid technique of last resort in dealing with cases of heart failure. It is recommended that at least one person in each family know CPR. Because it is a technical skill, certification is only for one year. For those who have taken CPR in the past, the course can sharpen memory and skills.

Standard First Aid covers all other areas of general first aid. Emphasis will be on practical skills, though all of the textbook material will be covered. There will be final practical and written tests.

This course is especially pertinent to people dealing with the general public, such as auxiliary police and fire people, life or skating rink guards or day care workers.

Winchester Music Program, Belmont Hold Open House

What is Suzuki? For parents who would like to know more about this unique method of teaching music to children 3-years-old and up, the Winchester Music Program and the Belmont Music School are holding an open house Sunday, Sept. 19 at 3 p.m. at the Unitarian Church, 404 Concord ave., Belmont.

This open house will provide an opportunity for interested families to see demonstrations of the Suzuki method and to discuss the program with the Music School Suzuki faculty.

According to proponents of the Suzuki method, a child acquires not only a lasting enjoyment of music, but experiences the excitement of sharing music with other children, as well as with the family who shares in helping the child learn.

The Belmont Music School offers Suzuki violin and cello. In Winchester cellist Nancy Hair has joined the faculty with special training in the Suzuki method. She will be working with young students, as well as with older, continuing cello players.

Anyone interested in receiving further information should call Corie Nichols, 10 Oxford st., or Sandy Thompson, 48 Samoset rd.

Friends Of Winchester Hospital Conduct Fall Orientation Sept. 23

The Friends of Winchester Hospital will be conducting their Fall Orientation for prospective volunteers on Thursday, Sept. 23, from 9 to 11 a.m., and in the evening from 7 to 9 in the hospital board room.

Plan to join the group for coffee, a brief presentation, and tour of the community hospital.

Volunteers are needed in most areas of service, including messengers, evening patient care, flower service, and the coffee shop. Men as well as women are needed.

For additional information about the orientation call the Volunteer Department at Winchester Hospital or Mrs. Lou Ann Bankson, 4 Longfellow rd.

On A Plane From Spain

WELCOMING PARTY — Students from Spain, visiting Winchester High student as part of an exchange program, were treated to a reception in the WHS Home Ec room Monday. The students were greeted by High School Principal Vincent Larocco and School Committee member Sandra Rogers, but most, like Christina Fuentes and Maria Madrid, were more interested in sharing a snack with their new American friends.

Students Host Spanish Visitors

By BETTY DeCONTO

Winchester High students picked up a bit of Spanish culture Sunday at Logan Airport.

On Sunday, a group of Winchester High School students and their parents went to Logan to meet an airplane carrying a group of Spanish high school students.

The 17 high schoolers, from Madrid and Cuenca, Spain, were met by the enthusiastic students waving the Spanish flag in welcome.

The students, 15 girls from Cuenca and two boys from near Madrid, came to spend three weeks in the United States as part of an exchange program, the second for Winchester High School.

Organized by Felicia Hall, a Spanish teacher at WHS, and sponsored by the High School language clubs, the Student Union and EnKa, the program brings Spanish students into the homes of 19 Winchester host families.

Winchester students taking part in the exchange are: Peter Conrad, Cindy Bortman, Karen Kirk, Michelle Stolow, Peter Quine, Patti Mahoney, Andy Thompson, Martha Davis, Marc Tonaszuck, Melissa Barger, Soha Ahmed, Andrea Lane, Ann Cullen, Whitney Redding, Sharon Kennedy, Carla Torres, Allison Webster, Denise Geannaris, Katrina Hemmerdinger.

The American students involved in the exchange are currently taking Spanish and agreed to have a Spanish student live with them until Oct. 2.

The Winchester students bring the Spanish kids to school with them, and will show them around our town and other areas of interest. In April, they will make the trip to Spain and will stay with the student that they hosted in America.

Whitney Redding is one high school senior involved in the Spanish exchange.

"I decided to go on the exchange because I like the idea of visiting Spain and learning about their culture, especially with people I know," she said. "It helps my Spanish and it's fun to talk in it."

She had a picture of the girl who would be staying with her, so they could recognize her at the airport. When asked if the first meeting was awkward, Whitney replied, "Well, everyone was so excited that for us the awkward part did not last very long. You expect them to be like what you read about in books but when they come over there is no difference in personality. As people they're no different at all."

She said that the girl can communicate fairly well, but added, "You can't talk too fast or use slang.

"She has a good grip of conversational English," Whitney noted.

"You find yourself talking in Spanish to Your American friends and you get used to talking slowly and wondering if they understand you."

Although the girls have only known each other since Sunday, it's apparent they will form a close friendship.

"I'm sure I'll miss her and I know I'll feel bad when she leaves, but I'll also feel excited about going to Spain in April," said Whitney. "We have an advantage because we know them. When they came here they didn't know us at all."

Karen Kirk, another senior at Winchester High, is also hosting a Spanish girl for the exchange.

"She kissed me at the airport. It's a tradition in Spain. It was like we knew each other for a long time," Karen said.

She also said that the Spanish student spoke English very well.

"She's used a dictionary once," she commented. "She talks a mile a minute in English. It's surprising."

"She gets excited about looking up at the flag," Karen continued. "We went out to dinner and she asked for a typical American dinner (steak, french fries, and a Coke)."

According to the Spanish girl, Levis cost about $70 in Spain, so she brought money from her friends to buy some.

Apparently, the two girls are getting along really well.

"She's comfortable to be with and she's really funny and friendly," responded Karen.

Carla Torres replied that it was the chance to go to Spain which made her want to do the exchange.

"That was the main reason I did it," Carla explained. "It's a new adventure. I thought it would be neat to see the difference, to show her around, and introduce her to our culture."

She said that it was not really awkward at the airport and that they were really friendly. "At the airport they were really happy to see us. We'll be together all day long. I'm glad we're getting along."

Carla added, "Dristina speaks very good English. She understands very well. It's not hard for us to communicate."

They will visit the Plimoth Plantation and the Museum of Science as a group and will undoubtedly do a lot of shopping.

Carla hasn't seen too many differences between herself and Kristina.

"She's just a regular kid. I don't know her well."

When asked about the trip to Spain in April, Carla exclaimed, "I can't wait to go!"

(Betty DeConto is a senior at Winchester High School and the news editor of the Red and Black.)

Field Hockey Team May Be A Winner

by DAVE LEECO

Forget the fact that the Sachemettes field hockey team lost its first game of the season. This isn't the same Winchester squad that lost all but one game last year.

First of all, the loss was to Wakefield — the top team in the league last year.

And second, the Sachemettes held that Wakefield squad scoreless for nearly three periods and barely lost the contest 1-0, after Wakefield's star goalie turned away 11 Sachemette shots.

And third, the Sachemettes came up with an impressive 4-0 victory over Malden, a team predicted to come up with a host of wins this season, in a preseason scrimmage Friday.

"Even though we lost today, I was really impressed with the way the girls played," said coach Pattie Ryser after the Wakefield loss. "They played well as a team, they're really starting to come along."

Winchester actually controlled the pace of the game in the first half, keeping the pressure on the Wakefield net minder and keeping the Wakefield players away from their own net.

Co-captain Karen Buckley, in particular, was superb from her defensive sweeper position, knocking away the sphere when Wakefield threatened.

"Karen is really our last resort before the goalie," noted Ryser, "and she made some really good clears when they were attacking."

When the Wakefield attackers got past Buckley, they had to contend with goalie Lisa Wiley who, Ryser said, "made some fine saves." Even the one goal Wiley gave up was due more to chance than her error or Wakefield's skill.

"The goal they scored was kind of a freak," commented Ryser. "We were clearing the ball outside the circle, and it deflected off one of my kids to a Wakefield player. It was a hard shot to save."

But unfortunately for the Sachemettes, the Wakefield defense was stronger than Winchester's.

The Wakefield defense was virtually one person, goalie Rene Vitiari. After an overwhelming first season two years ago, Vitiari quit field hockey to play soccer last season. To the dismay of the Sachemettes, she is back in a field hockey net this season.

"Her clears are just way out," said Ryser. "You just don't get a second chance, a second shot on goal.

"We had a lot of opportunities through the game (Winchester had 11 shots on goal), but she clears so good one shot is all you have," said Ryser. "There are no rebounds."

Hopefully, the Sachemettes will rebound from the loss, and play like they did against Malden.

Winchester picked up goals from captains Sheila Connolly and Karen Brown in the first half, and Liz Doherty and Jean Romeo in the second on their way to the 4-0 win.

"I was impressed with the scrimmage," said Ryser. "It showed me anyone could score. It's not like I had to depend on one outstanding person."

The Sachemettes will be looking for their first win of the year today, as they take on Stoneham at home.

With any luck, the game will signa the beginning of a new era for the team

Marshall Drills Troops Hard To Prepare For Pigskin Premiere

If a pre-season scrimmage is any indication of how the rest of the year will go, the Winchester High Sachem football team is in for another blockbuster season.

But then, coach Manny Marshall doesn't put any stock in pre-season scrimmages.

On Monday, during the first practice since Winchester dominated Billerica, 19-8 in the pre-season scrimmage Saturday at Knowlton Stadium, Marshall was berating his troops, urging them to play just a little harder.

"My 80-pound son would have decked you," he shouted at one back, as he ran his fullbacks and halfbacks through blocking drills. "It's hard to defense our offense, they can't do it. But the secret to it is you have to block for one another."

Marshall had only one thing on his mind during the practice: the Sachems' season opener against Somerville, to be played this Saturday at 10:15 a.m. in Somerville.

"Forget the rest of the season," he told his players. "The only thing on your minds should be Somerville. That's the season right now."

Marshall's gruff tones didn't mean his charges played poorly against Billerica Saturday, however. On the contrary, the Sachems showed they could pass, run and play defense with composure.

"I'd say it was a positive scrimmage," commented assistant coach Tom Kline. "They were playing a lot better

Despite Coach's Fear, Soccer Team Beats Wakefield In Opener

By DAVE LEECO

Soccer coach Gene Bouley was just a little bit frantic when the Wakefield Warriors scored a goal off his largely untested Sachems minutes into the first game of the season Tuesday.

After all, the Warriors were the only team to beat Winchester in the regular season last year, and they were the defending Middlesex League Champs.

And as for the Sachems, they were a new crop of faces, a team that had lost virtually every one of the starters that gave the team the state co-championship last year.

"Yes, I was worried, especially when they came up with such an easy one," said Bouley. "But the kids handled it well. Better than the panicky coach on the sidelines."

That's for sure. Bouley had worried before the season began that his team would get off to a slow start. But the kids didn't believe that.

They came back with a quick goal of their own, as Chip Triglione fed the ball to Bob Anderson, who put it into the Warrior net.

Before the period was over, Triglione had a goal of his own, off a Mike Driscoll pass for the left wing. And that was enough to give the Sachems an opening game victory, 2-1.

It was not an easy victory.

"At times they (Wakefield) were the better team," noted Bouley. "But we hustled right with them — we've got a hustling team."

Both squads hustled up and down the field for the final three quarters.The action at both ends got hairy at times, with shots barely missing the net.

But the Sachems held on to their slim lead throughout, and that's all they needed to do for the win.

"During the last three periods, there were a lot of chances both ways," commented Bouley. "There were posts hit, sure shots missed, and both goalies made a lot of good saves."

A lot of the credit for the Winchester win goes to goalie John Shirley, who stepped into the crease left vacant by the graduation of Mark Sterenka.

Shirley was on the Winchester squad last year, but only played a few periods when the Sachems were comfortably in the lead, and for half a game when Sterenka broke a finger at the end of the season.

But he proved he could mind the nets Tuesday, shutting out Wakefield in the final periods with some spectacular saves.

"There was one ball that got by him, and I thought it was going in," recalled Bouley. "But John twisted around somehow, and dove into a pile of people to get it and save the goal."

Bouley is still playing around with his positioning, trying to find a combination that will ensure victories. For example, he still hasn't settled on a center halfback and is rotating Triglione and Mark Herlihy.

The team has improved with the fiddling, and with more playing time.

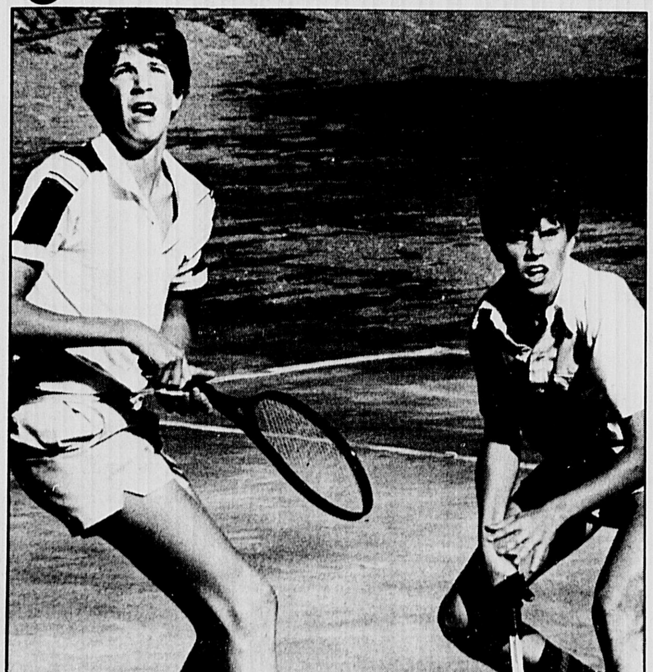
In its first scrimmage, Winchester was only able to salvage a 1-1 tie with a usually unimpressive Arlington squad. By the second scrimmage, they were able to defeat the perennial EMass powerhouse, Concord-Carlisle 2-0.

And now, for the opening game of the season, the Sachems knocked off Wakefield, a squad which has given the Sachems fits for years.

As Bouley put it,"we're becoming respectable."

And the coach is starting to become less panicky.

Jr. Tennis Tourney Wraps Up With Thrillers



DOUBLES WINNERS — Hank Lynch (l) and Paul Sughrue (r) kept their eye on the ball throughout the town's Junior Tennis Tournament last week on the Packer tennis courts. The tandem took the match for the age 15-and-under group. (Staff photo by Noreen Murphy)

It may have been kids playing in the Winchester Junior Tennis Tournament finals this week, but the matches had all the elements of the grown-up version being played at the U.S. Open in New York.

You wanted a battle to the finish? The Junior Tourney had a second-set comeback by Carmen Elio in the 15-and-under finals, a comeback that was finally thwarted by Elio's opponent, Paul Sughrue, 7-5.

You wanted a lengthy study in volleys and lobs? The girls 15-and-under finals featured a three-hour and 15 minute, back-and-forth showdown between Mary Pat Furey and Kren McCall.

You wanted upsets? Elio got into the finals against Sughrue by overcoming the tournament's second seed, Shawn Herlihy, in the semis.

When the two days of finals were over on Friday, Sughrue and Furey were the boy's and girl's singles champs in the 15-and-under division, with Kelly O'Callaghan and Scott Herlihy taking the honors in the 12-and-under category.

For the doubles trophies, Scott Herlihy and Eliot Foley won the boys, 12-and-under bracket, Kathy Furey and Kelly took the girls' 12-and-under finals; Sughrue aided by Hank Lynch, took home another prize in the boys' 15-and-under; and Furey was also a dual winner, when with Lulu Kermond she won the girls' 15-and-under.

The tournament finals spanned two beautiful days, with the doubles championships decided Thursday and the singles on Friday.

In the 12-and-under girls' doubles, Kathy Furey and Kelly O'Callaghan overpowered their opponents in two sets, defeating the team of Jennifer Thorne and Laura Tozza 6-2, 6-3.

On the distaff side, Scott Herlihy and Eliot Foley, working together like a machine, cruised through their first set against John Murray and Robbie McDonough in the 12-and-unders 6-2. They had to fight to finish Murray and McDonough off, however, as the second set went 7-5.

For the older players, the doubles were a hint of what was to come in the singles the next day.

The eventual singles champion, Sughrue, and his partner, Lynch, beat opponents Shawn Herlihy and Greg Johnson with ease, 6-1, 6-3,

The doubles final that pitted Furey and Kermond against twins Karen and Linda McCall was a bit more of a contest.

The Furey-Kermond duo barely squeaked past the twins in the first set, 7-6. But they pulled their game together and overwhelmed the McCalls 6-1.

With the doubles championships decided, the tournament moved on to the singles showdowns on Friday.

Kelly O'Callaghan, who had taken half the girls' 12-and-under doubles trophy the day before, continued her awesome performance, defeating Laura Tozza 7-5, 6-2.

In the boys' 12-and-under finals, tennis fans saw a real battle as Scott Herlihy and Vandy French fought for three sets.

The first set could have gone to either player, but Herlihy finally won it 7-5. French was undaunted by the loss however, crushing his opponent to tie the match with a 6-1 second set.

But French couldn't keep up the momentum, and Herlihy came back to win the third set and the championship, 6-3.

The 15-and-under boys- finals between Sughrue and Elio was another teeth-grinding war, as Elio made a late rush against his opponent.

Sughrue had taken the first set with ease, and it looked like he would put Elio away in the second set without much trouble either.

Sughrue was leading in the second set 5-3 before Elio made his move.

Elio fought back to tie the set 5-5, and it looked like the momentum had shifted to him. But Sughrue withstood the pressure, and finished off his opponent 7-5 for the prize.

It would be 5:45 p.m. before the last match of the day, the girls' 15-and-under finals, was decided.

Both finalists, Mary Pat Furey and Karen McCall, played the clay Packer Court like a Stradivarius, with high slow lobs and lots of topspin.

But Furey proved she was the virtuosa, winning in three sets, 7-5, 1-6, 7-5.

Players Advance To This Weekend's Finals In Town Tennis Tournment

With temperatures in the high 80's and not a cloud in the sky, the Packer Courts witnessed their 53rd edition of the annual Fall Tennis Tournament.

In what has to be one of the most competitive town tournaments in Eastern Massachusetts. Play was tough and intense.

Despite the fact that both players and spectators traditionally grumble about seedings, the men's singles found only seeded players reaching the quarter-finals and those left for the semi-finals are outstanding clay court players.

The most outstanding early round matches found Leo Laurentano taking Bill Wolfe 6-2, 4-6, 6-0 in a battle of the "Laser" backhand vs. the "Bludgeon" serve.

In the round of 16, David Palumbo of the Winchester High tennis team, took out indoor club champion Will Aldrich 7-6, 4-6, 6-2.

The men's quarter finals found No. 1 seed Neil Hurley beating former over-45 champion Bob Horne 6-1, 6-2.

High school hot shot Marco Cosentino bested Ted Martin 6-4, 6-2. Steve Powers surprised David Palumbo 6-1, 6-0, and 1979 town champion Tom Dunn beat 1980 finalist Doug Carlson 6-3, 6-4.

The semi-finals this coming weekend will pit Hurley vs. Cosentino and Powers vs. Dunn.

In the women's singles, Hillary Turkewitz beat former singles champ Stella Gallant 7-6, 6-7, 7-5 in a 4-hour than last week — they're learning a little more, they're a little more confident in what they're doing."

Kline was especially impressed with the caliber of play because five starters, including co-captain Tom Porell, were out sick.

"With the kids out sick, we were able to look at some of the kids we wouldn't usually get a chance to," said Kline. "Some of them showed us they could give us some help during the year. There are a couple of juniors that are coming along strong, and they'll be able to play when they're needed."

"Timmy Lawton and Jasper Asaro (at defense) played consistently, Neil Hurley and Paul Bennet at the line played a good game," Kline noted. "Chris Cahill showed he could throw, and we had guys that caught the ball — the McDonald brothers and Tim Hoffman."

In fact, the entire team put in a good performance. The offense managed to score a touchdown in each quarter, and the defense nearly shut down Billerica's running back, a huge bear of a football player.

"There was no way one person could stop a player like that," commented Kline. "So the kids pulled together."

Winchester's scoring started early, with Cahill hitting end Steve McDonald for a 50-yard touchdown pass on the sixth play of the game.

Chuck Allard, who is likely to be the key to the Sachem running game from his halfback position, scored the next TD with a 25-yard sweep on the second in the second quarter.

Hoffman scored the final Sachem TD, catching a Cahill 10-yard pass after a long, clock-eating drive.

Golf Team's Back

Winchester High School will have a golf team again this season, the second since the sport was dropped by the School Committee due to Proposition 2.5 cuts.

The School Committee voted Monday to reinstate golf, paying for the sport with money left over in the personnel account and by the cancelling of ninth grade field hockey.

Of course, the fact the School Committee waited until Monday to reinstate golf will pose some problems for the yet unchosen squad, because the golf season began last Thursday.

And the WHS golf team has lost the chance to play at the Winchester Country Club, because the club is already booked for the fall.

However, Athletic Director William Colella told the School Committee that other league teams were checking the schedules of their home courses "so we can play our home games away."

And the league, said Colella, will allow Winchester to make up the two matches it has missed already later in the season.

Now all the Athletic Director must do is find a coach, and a team.

Teamen Shoot Out In Conn. Tourney

Over the Labor Day Weekend, the Winchester Teamen (boys born in 1971) participated in the Simsbury Soccer Shootout in Simsbury, Conn.

The boys played some excellent soccer in compiling a 1-1-1 record against strong competition from Connecticut and Virginia.

The Teamen were one of 12 teams to compete in their age category — three teams were from Massachusetts (Needham and Wellesley were the other two), eight were from Connecticut, and one was from Virginia.

In their first game against Newtown, Conn., the Teamen held a 2 to 1 lead with two minutes left in the game. A charging call against the Teamen just outside their penalty area resulted in a direct free kick for Newtown. The Newtown kicker chipped a perfect ball over the Winchester wall and over the outstretched arms of the Winchester goalie to tie the score at 2-all.

The Teamen dominated the last two minutes of play, just missing a tie-breaking score in the last 30 seconds, but had to be content with a 2-2 tie.

Early in the first half, Jackie O'Callaghan had put the Teamen in front 1 to 0 with a solid kick from the left side on a fine crossing pass from Michael McGeehan. After Newtown tied the score, David Romboli dribbled through the Newtown defense and drilled home Winchester's second score.

Overall, the Teamen had the better opportunities in a hard fought, exciting first game.

The Teamen played their best game of the tournament in their second game against Sterling, Va. Prior to tournament play, many thought Sterling would win the championship easily.

From the outset, the Teamen controlled the game. David Romboli and Vandy French connected on some excellent teamwork to give the Teamen an early 2 to 0 lead. On the first goal, Vandy chipped the ball over the defense to David for a pretty breakaway score. Vandy scored the second goal on a perfect crossing pass from David.

While the Sterling team tested goalies John Murray, David Snyder, and Alex McNamee on four or five occasions during the game, for most of the game, the Teamen outhustled, outscrapped and outplayed their opponents. Some spectacular goaltending by the Sterling goalie held the final score to 2 to 1, Winchester on top.

In their last game against eventual tournament winner, Wallingford, Conn., the Teamen were required to play their second game on a hot Sunday afternoon. Both Winchester and Wallingford had won one game and tied one game and the winner would advance to the semi-finals.

The action was fast and furious during the first half with neither side able to penetrate the other's defense until the last minute of play. Wallingford was awarded a penalty kick with only seconds remaining in the half. Many watching the game disagreed with the call, but the call stood, and Wallingford led 1 to 0 at halftime.

Early in the second half, JJ Alberts scored to tie the game on a beautiful pass from David Romboli. The momentum appeared to swing to the Teamen. However, another penalty kick against the Teamen proved to be the back breaker.

The final score of 4 to 1 doesn't do justice to how evenly matched the two teams actually were. Wallingford's top goal scorer and the top goal scorer in the tournament was completely shutout by the Teamen as he was not able to register even one shot on goal during the game. Danny McGee and David Ducharme did an outstanding job of bottling up this talented goal scorer.

Coaches Van French, Jeff O'Grady and Steve Romboli were extremely proud of the effort, skill and sportsmanship displayed by the Teamen.

marathon that easily was the match of the tournament so far.

Reacing the semi-finals in women's singles were Kathy Hurley, a 6-4, 6-3 winner over Pinky Samoiloff; high school junior Dianne Intravaia 7-5, 7-5 over Ann Marie Mazzucotelli; Joan Byrne 7-5, 7-6 over Turkewitz, and last year's champ Calista Force 6-0, 6-0 over Emily Bushnell.

Men's doubles action found the No. 1 seeds Chris Scanlon and Vandy French shooting into the quarter-finals with a 6-2, 6-0 win over Terry Fuller and Bill Ferry.

Marco Cosentino and the legendary Ralph Bates Bested Ken D'Arcy and Mark Herlihy 6-4, 6-4. Peter Svahn and Steve Powers were 6-2, 6-2 winners over Jon Ripley and David Maxwell.

Hank Skehan and Don Ellis reached the quarters with 6-1, 6-0 over the Webber brothers. Will Aldrich and Jack Corf beat Vince Cortina and Frank Germain 6-0, 6-2, Rich Rowe and "Jungle" Jim Phillips spinned and sliced their way to a 6-4, 6-3 win over Ed Fitzgerald and John Lane.

No. 2 seeds Neil Hurley and Parker Gray won love and one against Joe Desmevles and Joe Tozza.

Rounding off the men's doubles quarter-finalists were Bill Wolfe and Alex Popp with a 6-3, 6-2 win over Vito Sammarco and David Palumbo.

The women's doubles found last year's champs, Vicky and Lynn Robinson, cruising 6-1, 6-1 over Patty Lavin and Katherine Dunn, to reach the semi-finals.

Dunn and Lavin earlier had beaten Linda Popp and Gwenda Kenton in a 5-7, 7-6, 6-4, survival of the fittest.

In another women's doubles quarter-final Mary Golden and Joan Byrne coasted to a 6-0, 6-1 win over Gail Cooper and Hillary Turkewitz.

Marilyn Lane and Arline Estabrook beat Beth Furtin and Jane Johnson 6-1, 6-4 to also reach the semis.

In mixed Doubles, teams reaching the quarter-finals were Vicky Robinson and Leo Laurentano 6-2, 6-0 over the Sammarcos; Chuck and Jane Johnson 0-6, 6-3, 6-3 over Gail Cooper and Rich Rowe; Bob and Stella Gallant 6-0, 6-1 over Linda Popp and Mike Belida.

Also, Bill and Dee-Dee Cunningham 6-3, 6-1 over indoor club champs Bobbie McNamara and Joe Culhane; Doug Carlson and Calista Force 6-3, 6-1 over Emily Bushnell and John Stevens; Sue Cowen and Tom Dunn 6-1, 7-5 over Dianne Intravia and Steve Brosnan, and Ted and Karen Martin beat Pat Bonnell and Ralph Bates 6-3, 6-0.

In the men's 45-and-over singles the "Human Backboard" Charlie Watson "upset" Bob Horne 6-3, 6-1 to move into the semi-finals.

Other senior action found Al Samoiloff beating Jack Whittier 6-4, 6-1; Hank Skehan 6-3, 6-3 over Ned Gediman and defending champ Jack Corf 6-1, 6-1 over Bob Gallant.

This year's tournament which concludes the summer season is being run by Lynn and Don Robinson.

The seeding committee consisted of Roberta McNamara, Pinky and Al Samoiloff, Ralph Bates, Alex Popp, Joan Byrne and Bob Gallant.

Refreshments were provided by Rose Ann Innes. The committees wish to thank Don Ellis for his outstanding groundskeeping effort all season long.

Outstanding tennis will continue this weekend at the Packer Courts with all finals Sunday.

FINALISTS — The Winchester Junior Tennis Tournament on the Packer tennis courts last week showed the town is continuing its tradition of turning out top-notch tennis players. Standing from left to right are girls' singles finalists Laura Tozza and Kelly O'Callaghan for the age 12-and-under group and Mary Pat Furey and Karen McCall for the age 15-and-under group. In addition to making the singles finalists Furey also won the doubles finals with Lulu Kermond. The tandem beat Karen and Linda McCall. O'Callaghan and Kathy Furey took on Jennifer Thorne and Laura Tozza to win the doubles finalists. In the 12-and-under group for the boys' singles tournament, Scott Herlihey (l) and Vandy French (r) might be smiling sweetly now, but the two were tough on the courts as they both made the single finalists.

Boat Club Swimmers Honored

The Winchester Boat Club Swim Team held an Awards Night recently to recognize the achievements of its swimmers.

All 77 members received certificates and sweat shirts for their participation in a very successful season. The team record was five wins and one loss this year.

In addition to the general awards, special awards were presented by Coaches Keith Flemming and Lynn Van Ummersen for the most valuable swimmer in each age group.

Maura Riley and Jonathan White were chosen as most valuable in the 8-and-under group; Sara O'Conner and Brice Gaeta won the award for the 10-and-unders; Wendy Boerner and T. J. Foley were chosen as the most valuable 12-and-unders; Kerrie McCorron and Matt Kennedy won for the 14-and under age group; and Liz Porras and Andy Laats were the most valuable senior swimmers, in the 17-and-under category.

Awards were also presented for the most improvement in swimming during the course of the summer. They were earned by Laura Rutherford and Matt Kennedy.

The Coaches' Award for the swimmer who contributed the most to the swim team during the season was presented to Andy Laats.

Local Teams In Soccer Festival

SOCCER CONTESTANTS — Members of the Winchester Girls' Soccer teams participate in the Nutmeg Soccer Festival in Connecticut. Eleven hundred girls participateed in the event.

This summer two Winchester girls' soccer teams participated in the Nutmeg Soccer Festival, hosted by the Wilton Soccer Association of Wilton, Conn.

In this small, affluent Connecticut town, more than 1,100 girls of all ages spent an exciting, yet tiring weekend of soccer, soccer and more soccer.

This game, which now offers girls an opportunity to play an aggressive and competitive team sport, continues to attract the female athletes of Winchester.

Each year the Winchester Soccer Club provides competitive play and instruction in the fall and spring for boys and girls as well as coaches' and referees' clinics.

This year the club entered girls' teams into leagues affiliated with the Massachusetts Youth Soccer Association, thus enabling players to participate in tournaments and on state teams.

The two Winchester girls' teams in the Wilton Tournament were the Winchester Mischiefs, coached by Bud and Betty Small, and the Winchester Warriors, coached by Berry Reece. They represented the girls C-Division, under-12, and girls B-Division, under-14.

The girls enjoyed the hospitality of host families in Wilton and Ridgefield, Conn., while many supportive parents stayed in nearby motels.

Each day the players, coaches, and parents congregated on the dusty, hot field, fortified with ice, Gatorade, sunblock, wet rags, and ice packs.

Physically, the girls needed to be in top condition to play two games a day for three days. Despite injuries, the heat, adjusting to the host families, and limited sleep, the girls played outstanding soccer.

The Winchester Mischiefs had an impressive record of 3-1-1 in the toughest division of their age group.

As a team, these girls deserve equal recognition: Sandra Bennett, Amy Binding, Kathy Boyle, Beth Conley, Amy Derry, Stephanie Geoghegan, Kristen Grant, Kim McAdams, Cara McDonough, Ann Mueller, Debbie Nowell, Kelly O'Callaghan, Amy O'Donnell, Marla Patti, Julie Sexeny, Beth Small, Ingrid Spanjaard, Elizabeth Sweeny.

PET CARE
Our Managers, Sarah & Wendy

Owning a pet increases the quality of the pet-owner's life. A psychiatrist at the University of Pennsylvania's Medical School observed that patients with pets who are being treated for heart disease live longer than those without pets. Researchers at the same university also discovered that people, who quietly observe fish in an aquarium, have reduced blood pressure and tension. No wonder so many dentists have fish tanks in their waiting rooms! By caring for a pet, an owner's self-esteem rises. An animal's dependence and loyality nurture a fond sense of companionship and stability. For many, a pet is the difference between loneliness and love.

If you think about it, a pet owner receives many wonderful benefits from such a relationship. At BREEDERS PRIDE PET CARE CENTER, 665 Mass. Ave., Arlington, we give you, the pet owner, an opportunity to return some of this kindness, love and affection. Our facility offers you the chance to select the nutritionally sound diet that will contribute to your pet's overall health and well-being. We also offer a selection of "creature comfort" type accessories. Come and visit us soon and do your pet a favor. Tel. 643-0195. Open 9-6 Mon., Tues., Wed. & Fri.; til 8 Thurs.; 9-5 Sat. VISA & MasterCard accepted.

P.S.: Choose a pet that best fits your own lifestyle and temperament.

Marlene Dacri

Marlene Ciroli Marrys Stephen Dacri

Marlene Ciroli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mario D. Ciroli of Fernway, was married to Stephen Dacri, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dacri of Fairmount st., on Aug. 20.

The Rev. Douglas Sears officiated at the 6:30 p.m. candlelight ceremony, held at the Chateau DeVille in Framingham.

The bride was given away by her father during the double-ring ceremony.

She wore a silk peau de soie gown with an off-the-shoulder neckline, a Basque waist and a full skirt. Yards of ruffles adorned the sleeves and hemline of the gown, designed by The House of Bianchi.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Doreen Costa of Arlington, the sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were: Mrs. Debra D'Andraia of Arlington, a sister of the bride; Cathy Ochs of Stoneham, a cousin of the bride; Karen Melecha of Peabody; Jean Harrington of Medford; Nancy Sullivan of Somerville, Lisa Michael of Worcester, a cousin of the groom; Karen Vinci of Boston; and Mary Tambone of Winchester.

Jeana and Julie Costa and Dawn D'Andraia of Arlington, all nieces of the bride, were the flower girls. The ring bearer was Michael D'Andraia of Arlington, a nephew of the bride.

The bridesmaids wore light blue gowns and a wreath of baby's breath and flowers in their hair. The matron of honor wore peacock blue and a baby's breath wreath. They all carried mixed summer bouquets.

The best man was Frank Costa of Arlington, brother-in-law of the bride. Ushers were Scott Morray of New York, a cousin of the bridegroom; Godfrey Pollistma and Curt Rogers, both of Rhode Island; Pete Pemberton, Ray Tusken and Joel Rossen, all of California; Daniel Harrington of Medford, Edward DesRosiers of Framingham and Thomas McCabe of Shrewsbury.

The reception was held at the Chateau deVille, Framingham. Susan Stazzani, a cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book. The couple took a Caribbean cruise honeymoon. They reside in Beverly Hills, Calif.

The bride graduated from Winchester High School in 1974. After graduating from Mt. Ida Jr. College in 1976, she became employed as a Medical Assistant.

The bridegroom graduated from North High School in 1970 and from Worcester Polytech Institute in 1974.

Cradock Apothecary,

A Local Pharmacy

When you need prescription drugs or health supplies, you shouldn't go to just any pharmacy. You should go to a pharmacy with experienced owners who have a genuine concern for their customers. In Winchester, that pharmacy is Cradock Apothecary of Winchester, located at 22 Church st.

Cradock Apothecary has been owned and operated in Winchester for 20 years by the Surabian family, all of whom are Winchester residents. The family also runs Cradock Apothecary of Medford and Cradock Surgical Supply Co. of Medford, both located at 44 High st.in Medford Square. In the Winchester store, you'll find a local pharmacy providing all of the traditional pharmaceutical services at competitive prices.

You'll also find a lot of services. Cradock offers a free delivery service available to any customer. The Surabians also carry a complete line of surgical supplies for both rental and hospital beds, wheelchairs and, said Bob Surabian, "all hard-to-get items" can be found at Cradock. The company is the franchise dealer for Everest and Jennings wheelchairs and Camp Surgical Garments, and Cradock operates a fitting department for all orthopedic garments at its Medford location. Specially trained and registered male and female fitters are available to fit customers into such items as back braces and knee supports.

Cradock also offers services for ostomy and mastectomy patients, carrying a full line of Hollister ostomy supplies. And the company also has one of the largest stocks of prescription drugs in New England. "If it's a hard-to-get drug, you can usually find it here," Surabian said. Of course, Cradock also carries all of the other items associated with a modern pharmacy, including a full line of cosmetics (the company specializes in Shalimar, Chanel, Nina Ricci and other full lines) and any health or beauty aid you could possibly need.

The Surabians have enjoyed their 20 years in Winchester, Bob Surabian said, and they plan to stay here for a long time. "We've enjoyed serving and catering to the residents of Winchester and we hope to continue doing so," he said. Cradock Apothecary can be reached at 729-1500.

Weddings

Mary-Rita Cassidy Is The Bride of Dana Peterson

Mary-Rita Michele Cassidy, daughter of Mrs. George Cassidy and the late Mr. Cassidy of West Haven, Conn., was married to Dana Elwyn Peterson Jr., son of Mrs. Dana E., Peterson and the late Mr. Peterson of Brayson rd., on Aug. 21.

The Rev. Vincent B. Brown officiated at the 3 p.m. ceremony at St. Lawrence Church in West Haven, Conn.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, George Cassidy Jr., and was given in marriage in the double-ring ceremony by her mother.

The bride wore a gown of white silk organza over satin appliqued with Alencon lace. The gown was designed and created by the bride's mother. Her cathedral-length veil caught to a Camelot cap of matching Alencon lace. She carried her mother's Bible marked with white roses, baby's breath and stephanotis.

The matron of honor was Mrs. George Kluth of West Haven, the sister of the bride.

The bridesmaids were Allison Kaiser of Connecticut, Miss Linda McCarthy of Connecticut, Linda Orie of Connecticut, and Mrs. Carol Mortberg of Woburn, the sister of the bridegroom.

The attendants wore qiana gowns of lavender print and full-length capes. They carried old-fashioned bouquets of purple and white chrysanthemums and baby's breath.

The best man was Steven McDevitt of New York, ushers were George Cassidy Jr. of Connecticut, brother of the bride; Steven Hodgson of Virginia; Peter Pirani of Stoneham; and John Procopio of Oak st.

A reception was held at The Royal Footman in Hamden, Conn. Following a wedding trip to St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, the couple moved to Woburn.

The bride is a graduate of the Academy of Our Lady of Mercy High School and holds a B.S.N. degree from Southern Connecticut State College. She is employed as a nurse at Yale University Hospital.

The bridegroom graduated from Winchester High School and holds a B.S. degree in business administration from the University of New Hampshire. He is currently pursuing an M.B.A. degree at Babson College while working at Honeywell Inc. in Lawrence.

Mary-Rita Peterson

Judith Marko Is The Bride Of Rodney Tillman

Judith Marko, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas Marko of 30 Wildwood st., and Rodney Nickle Tillman, son of Prof. and Mrs. Rodney Tillman of Potomac, Md. were married on May 29.

Rev. James Haddad officiated at the wedding ceremony. A reception followed at the Woburn Country Club.

Audrey Klimke of San Francisco was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Krista Williams of Hollywood, Calif., and Paula Marko of Washington and Elizabeth Marko of Winchester, sisters of the bride.

Davis Tillman was his brother's best man. Ushers included Mark Tillman, brother of the bridegroom, John Fitzgerald of New York, Jason Korman of New York, Thomas Cove of Rockville, Md., James Bradley of Potomac, Md., and Kirk Feldmann of Potomac, Md.

The bride graduated from Winchester High School in 1976 and from the Georgetown School of Foreign Service in 1980. She is a research assistant with the American Petroleum Institute in Washington, D.C. The bridegroom, a graduate of George Washington University, is president of Corner Gourmet Shops Inc.

Following a trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Tillman are residing in Washington, D.C.

Judith and Rodney Tillman

Lisa Vercollone, Alasdair Ritchie Are Married

The bagpipes played at St. Eulalia's Church on Aug. 22 for the wedding of Lisa Marie Vercollone to Alasdair John Ritchie in celebration of their mutual Scottish ancestry.

The Rev. James J. Haddad officiated.

The bride is the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vercollone, longtime residents of Winchester now living in Stoneham.

She is a graduate of Skidmore College, earned a master's of fine arts degree at University of Mass., Amherst, with honors in print making. She has been working in New York City for the past two years as supervisor of photographic records at the Pierpont Morgan Library.

The bridgroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Murdock J. Ritchie of Hamden, Conn.

He was born and educated in England is an alumnus of the Taft School and Union College. He is a doctorale candidate at Carleton University in Ottawa, where the couple will live.

The bride's gown of finely tucked Swiss cotton batiste with French Vallace insertion was designed and made by her mother, who also made the embroidered white cotton blouses and pink polished cotton skirts for the four bridesmaids.

Susan Vercollone was the maid of honor and Mrs. Nick Burns (nee Libby Baylies, formerly of Winchester) one of her bridesmaids.

Lisa Ritchie

David Vercollone, his wife Karen and three children were visiting from Chicago. The reception was held at the Harvard Faculty Club.

TRAFFIC PATTERNS

When considering the purchase of a home, you naturally check it out carefully. You look at the construction, rooms, storage space, bathrooms, special features, etc. But there's something else to consider — something you can't actually see, but nevertheless is of prime importance when and if you buy and move in.

It's the matter of traffic patterns. This is related not only to the placement of the rooms and hallways, but also to the amount and kinds of furniture you own. Try to visualize the traffic patterns when inspecting a home. It may even be a good idea to make a rough sketch. You don't want to be stumbling over a sectional sofa when going from the front door to the living room!

Visualizing traffic patterns involves common sense. Just remember, you should be able to get around in your home as smoothly as possible and with a minimum of interference. Bedrooms and recreation areas should also be taken into account as well as the "main" rooms — kitchen, living, dining, etc.

WANTED

CIVIL WAR Unit looking for members: The 5th Massachusetts Battery is made up of people in the Greater Boston area interested in the Civil War. There are two divisions: (1) competition shooting divisions which is a North-South Skirmish Association unit that competes in team matches with a full-sized muzzleloading cannon as well as with muskets, carbines and revolvers of the pre-1865 era. And (2) the "chowder and marching division" which takes part in parades, battle re-enactments, and authentic living history demonstrations. You can join either or both depending on your interests. The musket and carbine shooting events involve team shooting at breakable targets with the shortest elapsed time determining the winning team. It's fun if you're interested in black powder shooting. For further information contact 5th Mass. Battery, John Humphrey, 195 West st., Reading, or Al Goscinak, 27 Washington st., Charlestown, by phone or mail. 3.19TF

I WILL NOT GIVE UP — Lt. Governor hopeful Sam Rotondi, flanked by his wife, Dee, tells a reporter from Channel 7 that he will not concede despite the figures at midnight which showed John Kerry and Evelyn Murphy running neck and neck for the lead.

screen. "I have the best campaign going out in the field. "I think they will bring about the results later. I'm looking to New Bedford, Brockton, the Merrimack Valley and Worcester County. The final results are still a long way off and I think it'll look much better for me in a few hours."

But about an hour later, Rotondi was on the telephone congratulating John F. Kerry on his victory and Evelyn Murphy on her close second place win.

"I hung on until the wee hours because there were only percentage points separating me from Kerry," Rotondi said Wednesday morning. "I was running a close second, but when the figures came in later, it became apparent that it was Murphy and Kerry."

Rotondi attributed his loss partly to the large number of candidates he was running against and to the number of voters who made last-minute choices.

"I think it was a case of Lou Nickinello cutting me just enough," he said. "If he wasn't in the race, I think I would have had a good chance to win — just as Evelyn Murphy would have had a good chance of winning if Lois Pines wasn't in the race. If it had been a three-way fight between Kerry, Murphy and Rotondi — it would have been incredibly close.

"I think it was also a case of having a good, qualified field of five candidates running for an office with very little appeal," he continued. "The risks are incredible when 42 percent of the voters walk into the polls undecided. Anyone can win."

Rotondi did not win, but he said his loss did not signify a lack of statewide acceptance for his candidacy.

"I pulled strongly across the state," he said. "I got some cities from western Massachusetts to the southeastern part of the state, right to the Merrimack - valley as well as in the district. I was very impressed."

Rotondi said he has not yet made any plans for the future of his political career.

"I haven't had the time to think too much on what the future will be," he said. "I'll be looking forward to finishing my term in the state senate — there are some substantial issues coming up Sept. 20 and later in the year.

"I'll be spending time with my family and seeing my children," he added. "There are a lot of rewards in this business, but one of the great hardships is that you can't spend time with your family."

In addition, Rotondi said his immediate plans focus on thanking all his dedicated supporters.

"I was really pleased with the showing in my district," he commented Wednesday. "It really came through hard for me. It showed a sense of respect that I appreciate.

"Now, I'm going to reassess the results and thank the appropriate people," he continued. "I'll spend a lot of time thanking people — there were a lot of people who worked very hard on the campaign.

"They all did so much work — even my opponents recognized that I had the best grassroots organization going," he added.

And judging from the enthusiastic supporters at his party, Rotondi will be saying a lot of thank yous.

In the face of the unwanted figures flashing across the television screen Tuesday night, and despite their weariness from long, grueling hours of campaigning, supporters were in high spirits to the very end.

Flashing Rotondi hats and banners, they danced, cheered and chanted at every possible moment.

"I'm nervous and hopeful," said Patricia Conley of Laurel Hill ln. who spent the day holding up signs at voting areas. "I'm clenching my fists and hoping and praying now. My prayers are with Sam."

"I worked the polls from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. today," said Janet Harrington, Rotondi's sister. "A lot of people have been saying, 'You must be so tired; but I feel terrific. I feel real good.'"

★Donahoe

Richard A. Kraus of Arlington. Donahoe said he felt "quite confident."

But as phones rang, calculators clicked and the television blared, the long night brought a steady decline in Donahoe's chances to win a seat on Beacon Hill.

At 11 p.m., with all but Arlington's votes in, Donahoe leaned back in his chair and said "I think Kraus has got it."

No speech was made. There was no need. The group felt what he felt, sharing it as they had been sharing every part of the six-month struggle. They had been actively campaigning since March.

Donahoe feels that Kraus had a kind of unofficial alignment with Dukakis which helped Kraus get elected. "It's not a Kraus victory, "Donahoe stated, "it's a Dukakis victory."

"Everywhere you saw a Dukakis sign, you saw a Kraus sign," added Donahoe's wife, Virginia. "Gerry tried to run his own campaign."

"Kraus hasn't done anything in the last five or six years," said Donahoe, "whereas I've been involved in volunteer and other social programs for the last 25 years...but I've met Kraus, and found him to be intelligent and competent. We all feel disappointed but not bitter. He ran a good, clean campaign."

Donahoe found that, "you can work and work and work and work, and then a newspaper endorses someone and though that doesn't take away any votes, it does take the undecided votes."

Accompanying the disappointment were frequent expressions of what a hard worker Donahoe is and what a hard working senator he would have been.

Donahoe commenced his active campaigning in March and would often spend four or five hours a day knocking on doors, covering all of Winchester and 50 percent of Arlington, Woburn and Lexington, according to Mrs. Donahoe.

"He worked from 7 in the morning right up until midnight sometimes," said Diana Donahoe, a senior at Amherst College who came home to help support her father on election night.

Two of Donahoe's other children — Ellen, a freshman at Winchester High School, and Gerard, a recent graduate of Bates College were present, answering phones and helping tabulate the reports as they came in. Carol Donahoe, a sophomore at Brown University, called several times to give her support.

Overall, however, the mood was a merry one. Several people, including Mrs. Donahoe, expressed relief that the nine-month project was over, for it was in December of last year thah Donahoe first announced his candidacy.

"We ran a good little campaign, Mrs. Donahoe told the lingering diehards as the clock neared 1 a.m. "We couldn't have done any better. We had such wonderful support and devotion from everyone."

What about 1984?

Mrs. Donahoe laughed.

PLANNING BOARD NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING REGARDING ZONING MAP AMENDMENT

Notice is hereby given that the Winchester Planning Board will hold a public hearing on WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1982

7:30 P.M.

at the Vinson-Owen School, 75 Johnson Road, Winchester, MA, upon the petition to amend the Zoning By-law and the Map incorporated therein as follows:

ARTICLE

To see if the Town will vote to amend its zoning by-law and zoning map which is incorporated therein (which was adopted by vote of the Town Meeting on October 29, 1973, and became effective on June 28, 1974, as amended) by establishing a Planned Residential District as defined in said zoning by-law at the parcel of land hereinafter described and amending said map accordingly, or take any other action relative thereto, said land being bounded and described as follows:

EASTERLY by Wainwright Road 323' plus or minus;

SOUTHERLY by land now or formerly Stavros & Ekaterini Natsis 246' plus or minus;

EASTERLY and SOUTHERLY in several courses by land now or formerly said Natsis, Michael & Donna Nicolaro and Willliam B. and Kate R. Latta 649' plus or minus;

EASTERLY by Wainright Road 97' plus or minus;
right Road 97' plus or minus;

SOUTHERLY, EASTERLY, and NORTHERLY in several courses by land now or formerly William J. and Martha R. Fuller 459' plus or minus;

NORTHEASTERLY and NORTHWESTERLY by Wainwright Road 42' plus or minus and 50' plus or minus respectively;

NORTHEASTERLY, EASTERLY and SOUTHEASTERLY by the center line of Wainwright Road 780' plus or minus;
minus;

WESTERLY 207' plus or minus, SOUTHERLY 404' plus or minus, WESTERLY 161' plus or minus, SOUTHERLY 551' plus or minus, EASTERLY 145' plus or minus SOUTHERLY 532' plus or minus and SOUTHEASTERLY 123' plus or minus, by land now or formerly Margaret M. Mahoney, Paul J. and Charles A. Mahoney;

Obituaries

Charles Raffi

Charles L. Raffi, a retired manufacturer of specialty coatings, died Sept. 6 at home in Arlington. He was 95.

Mr. Raffi was a member of the Winchester Country Club for 45 years, and was well-known by Winchester residents.

Mr. Raffi was born in Boston on Nov. 25, 1886. Educated in Boston, he graduated from the Franklin Institute of Chemistry in 1912.

During World War I he served in the Chemical Warfare Corps of the U.S. Army.

In 1923 he co-founded Raffi and Swanson Inc., which became one of the largest manufacturers of specialty coatings, inks and adhesives in New England. The company is located in Wilmington.

Mr. Raffi was formerly a president of the New England Paint, Varnish, and Lacquer Association; regional vice president of the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association; president of the Chelsea Cooperative Bank; president of the Chelsea Rotary Club; and a former member of the board of managers of the Middlesex County National Bank.

He leaves his wife, Florence (Catani); a sister, Matilda Carbone of Arlington; a brother, Romeo, of Somerville; two sons, James C. of Arlington, and Charles Jr. of Everett ave. and six grandchildren.

Wilbur Otis

Wilbur C. Otis, 65, of Windham, N.H., and formerly of Winchester, died Sept. 9 at his home following a long illness.

Mr. Otis was a former captain of the Winchester Auxiliary Fire Dept. and a former Civil Defense Director for the town.

Born in Malden, he resided in Winchester for many years before moving to Windham seven years ago.

Mr. Otis was a call fireman for the Windham Fire Dept. and also an emergency medical technician for that department. He was employed by the U.S. Forestry Service at the Jeremy Hill Fire Tower in Pelham, N.H.

Mr. Otis is survived by his wife, Marjorie (Brownell) Otis; two daughters, Carolyn Gianino of Salem, N.H., and Melinda Costello of Wilmington; four grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held Sept. 13 from the Peabody Funeral Home in Derry, N.H. Burial was in West Hampstead Cemetery, West Hampstead, N.H.

Donations in his memory may be made to the Windham Fire Assn., Windham, N.H.

Walter Malloy

Walter J. Malloy, 85, died Sept. 12 after a fall outside his York rd. home.

Mr. Malloy, a 15-year resident of Winchester, was an attorney, practicing in his own partnership on Beacon st. in Boston.

He was a former Boston City Clerk and a veteran of World War I. While serving during the war, he saw action twice and received a Purple Heart.

He was a member of St. Mary's Church, the Massachusetts Bar Assn., the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Catholic Lawyers Guild and the Massachusetts City Clerks Assn.

He is survived by his wife, Ellen (Spring) Malloy; two sisters, Catherine M. Malloy and Frances Miller, both of Dorchester; a brother, John P. Malloy of Georgia; and several nieces and nephews.

He was also the brother of the late William F. Malloy, Ethel T. Malloy, Joseph H. Malloy and Mary Armstrong.

Funeral services were held on Sept. 15 from the John C. Mulrey Funeral Home in Dorchester, followed by a funeral mass in St. Mary's Church.

Burial was in Oak Grove Cemetery, Medford.

Corinne Mead

A memorial service for Corinne Mead of Andrews rd., a former head librarian at the Winchester Public Library, will be held Sept. 23. Friends are invited to attend the service in the Chapel of the First Congregational Church at 3 p.m. A tea will be served following the service.

Born in New York, Miss Mead was educated in Virginia and Washington, D.C. She lived in Winchester from 1940 until her death.

In addition to holding the position of head librarian at the Winchester Public Library, Miss Mead was involved in various other town organizations. She was a member of the Winchester Garden Club, the Winchester Historical Society, and the Winchester Senior Citizens Association. She was also a member of the Winchester Country Club.

Christian Teaching And Worship Center Directors Host Southern Pioneer

Paul and Mona Johnian, directors of the Christian Teaching and Worship Center, will act as hosts Sept. 19 for Clarence Matheny from Mississippi.

Matheny is one of the pioneers in the present day move of the Holy spirit, and one of the first to bring the message of Living, Active Faith as it applies to the total Christian life.

Matheny will speak at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. at the Jenks Center and Monday evening at 7:30 at the Knights of Columbus Hall. Nursery will be provided. All denominations are welcome.

Also, Dean Mitchell, gospel singer from the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, will bring the music.

Arlington Boys And Girls Club Announces Registration For Fall Gym

Registration is now open for the Arlington Boys and Girls Club fall gym hockey leagues. Four separate leagues will be offered in all categories. The girls open league for ages 7-14 will be held on Wednesdays at 5:00 p.m. Leagues for boys include Pee Wee for ages 7 - 10, held on Fridays at 5:00 p.m.; Cadet for ages 11-13, on Tuesdays at 5:00 p.m., and Seniors for ages 14-17 on Thursdays at 5:00 p.m.

All leagues will begin the week of Oct. 11, but registration must be completed on or before Wednesday, Oct. 6. No registrations will be accepted after that date. Each player will receive a special team shirt which is included in the small registration fee.

"We will conduct a test of the area to make sure the clay is completely out," said Quigley "We will dig down and see if we hit clay. I feel we are in a position to tell very clearly what's there."

Weinstein explained that Pittorino would dig out trenches in various spots on the Amberwood lots with a backhoe so officials could check for clay.

"Visual inspection will give us enough reason to believe as much of the clay as possible is out, and any potential hazard alleviated," Weinstein said.

But, the health director admitted, "I think we can never be absolutely certain 100 percent of the material is out.

"Part of that is the fact that the fill is mixed in," said Weinstein. "Even if we do a chemical analysis (such as the test which first determined 16 chemicals were present in the Amberwood fill), it would be looking for a needle in a haystack because the clay is mixed up with the clean fill.

"That's why we feel a visual inspection is the best way to check," said Weinstein.

The Amberwood fill is going to a sanitary landfill in Weston, according to Weinstein, who followed one of Pittorino's trucks from Amberwood to the site.

Quigley noted that a sanitary landfill was a good place to put the fill, according to state and federal environmental officials.

"We felt it was important that the fill be used as a cap in a sanitary landfill," said Quigley. "We have it in writing, and we have Mr. Pittorino's assurances, that it will not be used for a housing development."

Before Pittorino took the fill out of town, Quigley said, town officials warned their counterparts in other communities of the potential health hazard from the material.

In June, at the urging of the Amberwood residents, the Board of Health hired a Cambridge firm to test the material. The tests discovered traces of 16 chemicals, most of which were carcinogenic.

"Although we have no jurisdiction outside of Winchester, we felt we owed it to surrounding communities to let them know what the fill should be used for," said Quigley.

When the Board of Health received the test reports on the fill, they ordered the material removed from the town by July 29.

That deadline was extended to give Pittorino time to make a case against removing the fill, and extended again, to Sept. 7, when Pittorino told the board he could not find a site to bring the fill to.

Pittorino didn't begin removing the fill until Sept. 7. But Quigley said the board granted the developer yet another extension, to Sept. 17, once it saw Pittorino was finally at work.

"As soon as we saw he was working full tilt, we told him we would be glad to grant an extension," said Quigley, noting the decision was not made at a formal meeting. "There was a verbal agreement between the members, and they allowed me as chairman to make the decision."

Quigley said that if Pittorino needed to keep removing the fill after Friday, the Board of Health would grant another extension.

"As long as we see he is conducting the work in a business-like manner, we will give an extension of additional time," said Quigley. "Our position is not to seek legal redress if possible."

MacKay suspects Pittorino might need that time.

Edward Flaherty received 971 votes in Winchester. James Lyons Jr. had 395 votes. Helen Metros got 255 votes, William Mahoney received 123 and Charles Porter took 101 votes.

As of Wednesday morning the Winchester totals were unofficial, pending double-checking.

Flaherty won overwhelmingly in Woburn, his home city, taking 4,657 votes. Lyons was second choice in Woburn with 1,700 votes. Mahoney received 873 Woburn votes, Porter 817, Kraus 428, and Metros 329. Winchester's Donahoe was the fifth choice in his neighboring city of Woburn taking 577 votes.

Lexington candidate Mahoney was the second favorite in his hometown. District victor Kraus took the Lexington lead also with 3,646 votes. Mahoney received 1,224 votes, a close second over third-place winner Lyons' 958 votes. Donahoe and Flaherty were virtually tied in Lexington receiving 558 and 557 votes respectively. Metros had 391 and Porter had 75.

Arlington voters overwhelmingly endorsed hometown candidate Lyons, giving him 7,057 votes. Arlington's Kraus took second place with 5,114 votes. Third place winner was Arlington's Metros who had 1,044 votes. Porter, the fourth candidate from Arlington, did not receive as many votes in his hometown as Flaherty who got 844 there, or Donahoe who took 695. Porter received 380 Arlington votes and Mahoney had 150.

In the voting for district attorney Scott Harshbarger won in the town as well as the county. He took a strong lead in town with 2,498 votes — about twice the 1,057 total Winchester voters gave to their second-place choice, Edward Gargiulo. Paul Cavanaugh received 787 votes and John Droney had 666. The unopposed Republican candidate, Guy Carbone, received 949 votes in Winchester.

In the unopposed races, Winchester voted as follows: Attorney General, Democrat Francis Bellotti received 4,158 votes and Republican Richard Wainwright got 977; Secretary, democrat Michael Connolly took 3,361 and Republican Jody Dow had 940; Treasurer, Democrat Robert Crane received 3,437 and Republican Mary LeClair took 971.

Auditor, Democrat John Finnegan received 3,280 and Republican Michael Robertson had 955; Representative in Congress, Democrat Edward Markey took 4,000 votes and David Basile had 1,002; Representative in General Court, Republican Sherman Saltmarsh took 1,245 votes; Clerk of Courts, Democrat Edward Sullivan had 3,424 votes; Register of Deeds Democrat John Zamparelli had 3,399 votes.

In the race for county commissioner, Winchester voted the same way the county did, endorsing Democrat Bill Schmidt with 2,202 votes over his Democratic opponent Albert Onessimo who received 1,550 votes in Winchester.

Democratic Councillor candidate Joseph Langone III won in Winchester as well as in the district with 2,361 votes — almost twice the number Winchester gave to his Democratic opponent, Anthony Pini.

★Driving

test and was subsequently charged with drunk driving. While he was being booked, he punched Culhane in the face, according to reports filed by Culhane and Lt. Mario Buzzotta.

After Zazzara was taken to the station, a search of his car turned up a controlled substance, according to police. Zazzara will face charges for driving an uninsured vehicle, driving an unregistered vehicle, driving without a license in possession, operating under the influence of alcohol, possession of a controlled substance, driving without a registration in possession, assault and battery on a police officer and attaching license plates to a car without authorization.

Although the new drunk driving laws received a great deal of publicity in the media, Winchester Police Lt. Andrew Crawford said he has not since detected a decrease in the number of arrests for driving while intoxicated.

Convicted first offenders may be fined $100 to $1,000 and spend up to two years in jail. Their licenses will be suspended for one year. First offenders may also be placed on probation which would require attendance in an alcohol education program. The program costs up to $400 and requires license suspension for 30 days.

Second offenders convicted for drunk driving may be fined $300 to $1,000. They will serve a mandatory seven days in jail and the judge may increase that term to as long as two years. An option for second offenders is probation in lieu of a jail term. That would require confinement for at least 14 days in a residential alcohol treatment program. Second offenders will have their licenses suspended for two years.

Citizens convicted of drunk driving for the third time may be fined $500 to $1,000. They will serve a mandatory 60-day jail term which could be extended to two years. Their licenses will be suspended for five years.

The new law also calls for a mandatory year in jail with the option of extending the term to a maximum 10 years for persons convicted of reckless and drunk driving in an accident in which a person is killed.

A person will be fined $100 to $500 if he is convicted of drinking alcoholic beverages while driving — regardless of whether or not he or she is drunk.

Convicted offenders will serve a mandatory seven days in jail which could be extended to two-and-one-half years for driving without a license if it was revoked for drunk driving or vehicular homicide.

Persons arrested for drunk driving will be asked to take a breathalyzer test. Refusal of that request will result in automatic license suspension for 90 days.

If the test registers over .05, the arrested person will be held at the police station, but there will not be a presumption that he or she was driving under the influence.

It is expensive to be arrested for drinking and driving. Cars are automatically towed, and the towing fee is about $40. Car storage fee is $10 a day. The bail magistrate's fee is $15 per day. A defense attorney fee could cost $400, the insurance surcharge could cost $100 and the loss of insurance merit rating credits for three years could cost $54, according to representatives from the American Automobile Association. In addition, convicted offenders pay fines and a possible alcohol education program fee which could cost $400.

★Contract

curriculum directors must work on curriculum development for six weeks during the summer.

Administrators agree that summer curriculum preparation is important, but argue that each director may not need six full weeks to complete the job. In exchange for the privilege of deciding how much time each director should devote to summer curriculum preparation, Bauman said the school board offered directors a higher percentage of pay for that work.

"There may be times when less than six full weeks of summer cirruculum work might be necessary in one or more subject areas," Bauman said. "The present contract requires us to pay for six weeks whether or not they are used. The School Committee wishes to have discretion concerning the number of weeks that each director would work on curriculum development during the summer.

"It is not clear that less than six weeks would be necessary next year or in subsequent years, but we want the administrative prerogative to make that determination," he emphasized. "Indeed, we have offered to settle for a higher dollar figure if we are allowed this discretion."

Finigan maintained that without those six full weeks of curriculum development, school would not operate as effectively as it has.

"The contract presently calls for the directors to work six extra weeks beyond teaching during the school year," he said. "These include a week to open up school and a week to close school so that leaves four weeks to develop curriculum work and that is a job of great magnitude.

"We honestly don't feel that the school could operate as well as it has been if that type of work is not available to us," he continued. "Apparently, the School Committee wants what they call managerial prerogatives, which I have a hard time understanding."

Contract negotiations began last March. Although an agreement has not yet been reached, both sides stress that negotiations have been conducted in a civil manner.

"The negotiations have gone well without any animosity, Martignette said. "The discussions have been quite amicable and open," agreed Bauman. "They have been good discussions."

Town Will Sue Patten Over Reval Delay

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Winchester is suing Patten Associates of Maine for failing to revaluate the town's property according to the terms of their contract.

The decision to take legal action against Patten was unanimous.

Acting on the unanimous recommendation by the Board of Assessors to sue Patten, the Board of Selectmen unanimously voted Monday night to file a lawsuit against Patten. That action followed a half-hour executive (closed) session between both boards to discuss the litigation with Town Counsel Douglas A. Randall.

"I move to direct Town Counsel to take legal action against Patten Associates for failing to meet the terms of the contract in a timely manner," said Selectman John Williams, who introduced the motion.

It was quickly approved by the board.

Town officials have been considering legal action against Patten since early spring after the firm repeatedly missed deadlines for completing the revaluation.

Talk of a lawsuit came closer to reality last May when Winchester had to borrow money to keep the town running until tax bills were ready to be mailed.

Legal action was virtually imminent when town officials realized the steep financial losses the delay caused Winchester. According to Comptroller Alphonse Faggiano, the delay cost the town $318,000 in lost investment opportunities and interest on borrowed money.

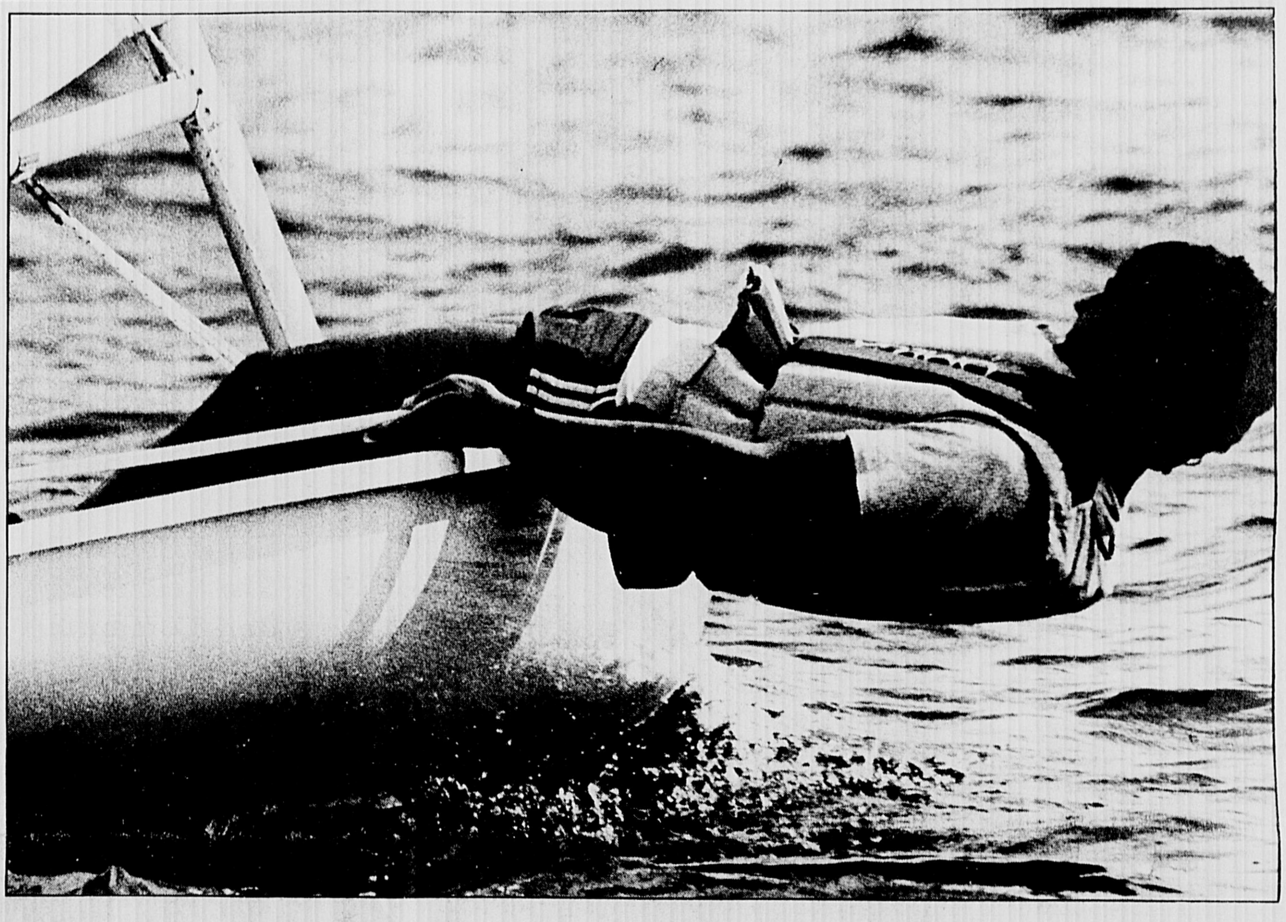
Patten was awarded a $171,000 contract in 1980 to complete the town's revaluation. The terms of the contract called for completion of the program on July 1, 1981.

Patten missed that deadline, so the assessors gave them an extension until October, 1981. Failure to meet the extended deadline made it impossible for the town to send out property tax bills last November and again last April.

A potential financial problem in Winchester was averted last November by a special legislative act allowing towns to mail out estimated tax bills.

Winchester voted to mail out the estimated tax bills in place of regular tax bills. Residents further helped to bail out the town by paying voluntary tax bills.

Regular tax bills were expected to be ready by April 1. When they were not the town was forced to borrow money. Bills were finally mailed out July 16 — nearly four months late.



Selectmen Not Sure TM Should Debate Nuke Arms Freeeze

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Winchester may have a chance to join 135 other Massachusetts towns which have adopted resolutions asking the President of the United States to take steps to stop the nuclear arms race.

But before Town Meeting can even begin to debate the merits of that issue, town officials will be debating whether or not the town should take on an issue that does not directly affect Winchester.

The Board of Selectmen closed the Town Meeting warrant Monday night. The warrant included a nuclear freeze article submitted by the Winchester Citizens For A Mutual Nuclear Weapons Freeze. The selectmen only agreed to keep the article on the warrant pending a discussion with Town Meeting Moderator John Sullivan to determine whether or not the article would be appropriate at Town Meeting.

"There will be a debate for sure on this article," commented Town Manager Tom Groux after the selectmen's meeting. "Assuming this article stays on the warrant, there will be a debate on it and part of that debate will be about whether or not there should even be a debate."

And if the selectmen's reaction to the article is any indication, the nuclear freeze could be one of the livliest, if not the most emotional issues, discussed in November.

Members of the freeze group submitted the following article:

"To see if the Town Meeting will vote to request that the President of the United States propose to the Soviet Union that the United States and the Soviet Union immediately and jointly stop the nuclear arms race, specifically by having the United States and the Soviet Union adopt an immediate mutual freeze on all further testing, production, and deployment of nuclear weapons, missiles and new aircraft designed primarily to deliver nuclear weapons and take any other action related thereto."

While the selectmen acknowledged the importance of the issue, they did not necessarily feel Town Meeting should be discussing it. Some of the selectmen felt that the issue would be more appropriately handled by a question on the annual town election ballot next March.

"It's getting out of the realm of the Board of Selectmen to see how Town Meeting conducts itself," Saraco said.

The Continuing Saga Of The Amberwood Fill

Board Of Health Says Contaminated Fill Gone

By DAVE LEECO

As far as the Board of Health and developer Felix Pittorino are concerned, the chemically contaminated fill is out of Amberwood drive.

"We do feel that the fill has been satisfactorily removed," Board of Health Chairman Lawrence Quigley told 100 Amberwood area residents at the board's Monday meeting. "I honestly believe every effort has been made at removal."

According to Health Director Steven Weinstein, Pittorino finished removing the fill from two Amberwood lots last Wednesday. The fill was taken to a sanitary landfill in Weston, he said.

The Board of Health ordered the fill removed after it discovered the gray clay material had come from an MBTA tunnel excavation under a W. R. Grace chemical dump.

That dump had been classified by the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) as a "confirmed hazardous waste site."

When chemical tests of the fill showed traces of 16 chemicals, many of them carcinogenic, the board ordered the fill trucked from town.

Still, some residents fear that all the fill had not been taken from the two lots (see related story).

Weinstein said that after learning of those fears, he contacted Pat Hynes, an environmental engineer with the federal Environmental Protection Agency, who has been following the developments on Amberwood.

Weinstein said that he asked Hynes what he should do to check if all the fill had been removed.

Hynes responded with a letter suggesting that the Board of Health first compare the amount of fill brought in with that taken out, then dig trenches at the site and look for the gray clay fill, and finally, "if all efforts fail," subject the fill remaining at Amberwood to chemical tests.

Quigley explained that the Board of

More Contaminated Fill Found On Surrey Road

More of the gray clay fill from MBTA Alewife transit station construction site has turned up in Winchester.

Several weeks ago, the Board of Health received a report that gray clay, similar to the fill banned from Amberwood dr. had been dumped on a house lot on Surrey rd.

The Board of Health ordered chemical tests of the fill. The results of those tests were delivered Tuesday, according to Board of Health Chairman Lawrence Quigley.

The testing, done by Erco Labs in Cambridge, showed the Surrey rd. material contained the same chemicals found in the Amberwood fill.

But the chemicals were found in even greater quantities in the Surrey rd. fill than in the Amberwood clay, according to Quigley.

Quigley said the owner of the Surrey rd. lot, a Cambridge resident, claimed he did not know how the fill got on the lot.

The area will be fenced off, and no fill will be alllowed to be placed over the contaminated fill, said Quigley.

The owner has agreed to assist in removing the fill, he said.

Board Pressured Into Testing Remaining Fill

By DAVE LEECO

Vince Ruotolo of 19 Amberwood dr., like the rest of the 100-odd Amberwood-area residents at the Board of Health meeting Monday night, had just one question he wanted answered.

Was the chemically contaminated fill which had been sitting on Amberwood dr. for four months finally gone?

"When we go home tonight, can we sleep soundly knowing everything's all right in our neighborhood again?" asked Ruotolo. "Has all the waste been removed from Amberwood dr.?"

The Board of Health had one answer to Ruotolo's query: Yes, we are satisfied the fill is removed.

The rest of the Amberwood neighbors had another: We can't be sure.

And when the Board of Health voted 2-1 not to make any chemical tests of the fill remaining on Amberwood dr., tests the residents said would convince them the fill was gone, it set off a one-hour shouting match between residents and board members.

Eventually, the Board of Health bowed to the pressure of the residents, and voted 3-0 to pay Erco Labs in Cambridge $3,279 to test the remaining fill.

But the three hours of debate and one hour of shouting over the Amberwood fill Monday night highlighted the residents' despair over the problem that has been haunting them for four months.

"What you are hearing here tonight is an absolute, utter sense of frustration," attorney Nelson Lovins of Thornberry rd. told the Board of Health.

As Lovins began to take the Board of Health to task for failing to stop the fill

Morison Honored

The achievements of former Bentley College president Thomas L. Morison, formerly of Bruce rd., were recognized at recent dedication ceremonies held at the new campus of the Bentley College in Waltham.

The faculty and administration building, one of the 12 original buildings erected at the campus, was renamed the Thomas Lincoln Morison Faculty and Administration Building in his honor.

Morison, a current resident of Falmouth and Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., served the town of Winchester as a member of the Finance Committee, and as auditor of the Fellsland Council, Boy Scouts of America. He is a former director of the Winchester Trust Co. His wife, Verna, was long active in the affairs of the EnKa Society.

In paying tribute to his predecessor in office, Bentley President Gregory H. Adamian stated, "Morison presided over the college's historic move from the Back Bay of Boston to the Waltham campus during a period when nationwide student and faculty unrest and upheaval made many college presidents wish they had chosen different careers."

Morison served as Bentley president from 1961 to 1970.

Oram Kicks

Doug Oram, is a member of this year's Bentley College varsity soccer team.

A freshman, Oram will be a fullback for the Falcons this season. He is a 1982 graduate of Winchester High School.

Coached by Jackson Foster, the Falcons lost its season-opener to WPI, 2-0, in a game much closer than the final score indicates. 7-6-3 last year, Bentley was ranked second in this year's Northeast-8 Conference preseason coaches poll.

Oram is the son of Allan and Beverly Oram of 189 Highland ave.

About Town

Perlman Aids

Evelyn B. Perlman of Winchester, a licensed psychologist, will lead a 10-week program designed to aid women in the home cope with increasing stress associated with marriage, raising a family and dealing with their own desires for self-fulfillment.

The sessions, sponsored by Our Place, the multi-service, educational, learning and development center serving eastern Middlesex communities, will be held starting Oct. 6 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at 38 Pleasant st. Stoneham. There is a fee.

Mondeau Promoted

Winchester native John P. Mondeau III has been promoted to local sales manager at WNEB. Mondeau's new responsibilities will include development and management of local sales and sales promotion materials.

Mondeau is the son of Anne and John P. Mondeau Jr., of 17 Dunham st. He began his career in radio at WHSR-FM, Winchester High, worked as station manager and graduated in the class of 1976.

Conklin Passes

Michael E. Conklin Jr. of the Winchester Hospital has successfully completed the 26th annual Healthcare Financial Management Association Fellowship (FHFMA) examination.

To pass the exam, a candidate must demonstrate superior knowledge of hospital accounting and financial management. Successful candidates are entitled to use the initials FHFMA after their names to indicate that they have excelled in their chosen field.

Curry Assigned

Airman Daniel J. Curry, son of John P. Curry of 200 Swanton st., and Katherine L. Curry, Yarmouth, Maine, has been assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas, after completing Air Force basic training.

Airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force. Curry will now receive specialized instruction in the civil engineering field.

Masella Graduates

Alexander A. Masella of Henry st. was among the 157 students awarded degrees and certificates at the fall commencement exercises at Wentworth Institute of Technology.

Masella, a student of architectural drafting technology, was awarded a certificate of graduation.

Van Ummersen To Swim

Lynn Van Ummersen, a swimming prospect from Winchester High School, will be a candidate for Coach Sue Lutkus' Big Green women's swimming team, as she enters Dartmouth College this month.

Captain of her team last season and a Boston Globe Central Conference All-Star team member, she placed in the finals of the Mass. State meet. She earned three varsity letters in the sport and led her team to the Eastern Sectional championship.

Ranked third in a class of 378 and a member of the National Honor Society, she will major in either marine biology or computer science. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Ummersen of 50 Church st.

Nine Named

Nine Winchester High School students have been named as semifinalists for the National Merit Scholarship competition.

Lori Benson, Ann Cullen, Janine Johnson, Peter McCann, Hugh Murray, Michael O'Brien, Paul Shawcross, Mark Sobkowicz and Jane Wiseman were among the 15,000 semifinals nationwide who will be competing some 5,000 Merit Scholarships awarded next spring.

Candidates were chosen as semifinalists on the basis of PSAT scores on tests taken when they were juniors. The awards go to the top half of one percent of each high school's senior class.

Levinson Edits

Brian Thomas Levinson, son of Harry and Roberta Levinson of Winthrop st., will serve as associate campus editor on the University of Kansas newspaper, The Daily Kansan, for the fall.

Levinson is a junior at the university's School of Journalism.

Cooper Dances

Lydia Cooper, 11, of Wedge Pond rd. won the fifth annual Harriet Hoctor Memorial scholarship recently from the Harriet Hoctor Ballet School on Thompson st.

Lydia is a sixth grader at Lincoln Elementary School and is the daughter of Gail and Richard Cooper.

She will begin her fourth year of ballet at the Hoctor school, and this year she will also begin private lessons.

The Harriet Hoctor Ballet School awards a full season scholarship each year in memory of Harriet Hoctor, the ballerina who founded the school 32 years ago. Each year, all students under 18 years of age who have studied at the school for at least one year are eligible for the drawing.

In addition to awarding Lydia the scholarship enabling her to have free ballet classes for the 1982-83 season, school director Mary Vasel presented Lydia with a book entitled "Backstage at the Ballet."

Pukay-Martin Passes

Mt. Pleasant st. resident Harry E. Pukay-Martin, product manager of Hewlett-Packard in Waltham, has successfully completed the 26th annual Healthcare Financial Management Association Fellowship (FHFMA) examination.

To pass the exam, a candidate must demonstrate superior knowledge of hospital accounting and financial management. Successful candidates are entitled to use the initials FHFMA after their names to indicate that they have excelled in their chosen field.

Mulcare Graduates

At the June 12 graduation of The College of The Redwoods, Eureka, Calif., Jane (Tourtellot) Mulcare received her R.N. associate's degree. She was valedictorian of the class.

Mulcare is a graduate of Winchester High School and Youville Hospital School of Practical Nursing. She is employed at St. Joseph's Hospital in Eureka as charge nurse in the Intensive Care Unit.

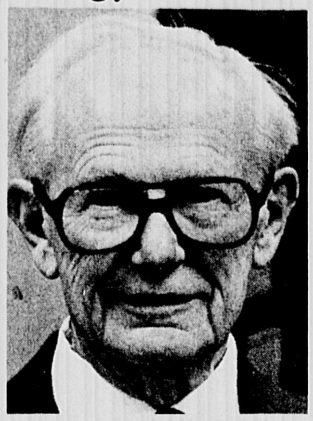
She and her husband, James, a senior at Humboldt State College, reside in Freshwater, Calif. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond B. Tourtellot of Elmwood ave.

Town Comes To The Rescue Of Rail Commuters

If rail strike continues, the Town of Winchester will provide a contingency transportation plan which will provide buses from Laraway rd. Train Depot to Government Center from 6:30 to 8:45 a.m. and return from Government Center to Laraway from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m.

For further information call Recreation Dept. or the Town Manager's Office.

Resident Awarded Gold Medal For Cancer Radiology Work



AWARD — Cambridge st. resident Dr. John Trump was recently awarded a Gold Medal from the American College of Radiology for his contributions to the field of cancer radiotherapy.

Dr. John G. Trump, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology physicist who pioneered in the development of megavolet x-ray devices for cancer therapy, received the Gold Medal of the American College of Radiology, the organization's highest honor for achievement in the field of radiology.

Dr. Trump, a Cambridge st. resident, was one of the few non-physicians ever to receive the award in convocation ceremonies Tuesday, during the college's annual meeting at the Sheraton Boston Hotel.

"The contributions of Dr. Trump to capabilities in cancer radiotherapy have been most significant, and this Gold Medal is a fitting tribute to his work," says Dr. Robert E. Wise, Chief Executive Officer and Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Lahey Clinic, an institution with which Dr. Trump has worked closely for the past three-and-a-half decades.

"The concrete benefits of his expertise are high energy radiation instruments that are able to penetrate the body deeply to attack malignancies, and techniques of using those instruments to offer maximum protection for normal tissue."

"These are substantial advances for the practice of medicine."

As a research associate at MIT in the 1930s Dr. Trump began experimenting with vacuum principles that would make possible high voltage x-ray generation. In 1937 he and an associate brought into operation at a Boston hospital one of the first million-volt x-ray sources - a capability making possible significantly deeper penetration with significantly less damage to the skin than had previously been the case.

In 1940 they produced a 1.25 million volt machine for the Massachusetts General Hospital, an instrument that remained in operation for the next 14 years. With the advent of World War II Dr. Trump undertook five years of work on microwave radiation and radar, including 14 months as director of the British Branch of MIT's Radiation Laboratory, which worked to bring high-resolution radar into effective operational use.

In 1947 he and two associates founded the High Voltage Engineering Corporation, producing such instruments as the two-million volt Van de Graaff x-ray source for cancer therapy.

Two years later, Dr. Trump began his long association with physicians at the Lahey Clinic with the treatment of nine difficult cases. During the coming years Lahey physicians and MIT scientists treated thousands of patients at the MIT laboratories with two and three million volt radiation, using progressively improved techniques of beam-shaping and tissue protection.

The team developed and introduced into use in 1951 techniques of using low megavolt electrons for extensive malignant lesions on or near the skin.

Although he is retired from both MIT and Lahey's radiotherapy service is now located at the Lahey Clinic Medical Center in Burlington, Dr. Trump continues a close association with the clinic. After becoming a trustee when it became a non-profit foundation in 1963, Dr. Trump has served as chairman of its board of trustees since 1974.

He has received honors as diverse as Great Britain's King's Medal and the Presidential Citation for his services during World War II, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers' Lamme Medal in 1960 and honorary fellowship in the American College of Radiology in 1975.

"The American College of Radiology's Gold Medal is its highest recognition," Dr. Wise notes, "and Dr. Trump is a worthy recipient."

Woman's Club Juniors Meet, View Fashion Demonstration

The Winchester Woman's Club juniors opened their new season recently at the home of Mrs. Joanne Bucci with a business meeting called to order by president, Mrs. Barbara Tomasone.

A demonstration by "Casual Corner" of the Meadowbrook Mall entitled "Investment in Fashion" followed.

The Winchester Woman's Club juniors, members of the Mass. State Federation of Women's Clubs, who are members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, headquarters in Washington, D.C., are a volunteer organization involved locally and on the state and national levels.

Club members are involved in preparations for "Hospice Awareness Night" to be held in Winchester in early November. An informative panel discussion is planned.

Joanne Foley is International Chairman for the Winchester Juniors and is looking into a worthwhile project for this year. Dorothy Buehler is the club's Homelife Chairman and is involved in various projects, one of which will include assisting in the scoliosis screening in the schools.

The club members are now planning their next meeting to be held Monday evening, Oct. 4, at the home of Carmen Gibbs. A program on the "Medical Aspects of Hypnosis" will be featured.

For information, please call Susann Wyler, membership chairman.

PET CARE
Our Managers, Sarah & Wendy

Like humans, dogs are susceptible to tooth and gum disease. When a gummy substance, known as plaque, adheres to teeth, bacteria produce acids that eat away at enamel. Persistant plaque buildup can lead to decay, gum disease and tooth loss. Especially harmful to dogs are prepared, soft foods. They help contribute to sticky plaque buildup and feed bacteria with their high carbohydrate content. Chewing on bones will remove plaque only from chewing surfaces. As a result, to really clean your dog's teeth, have them professionally brushed and scaled as part of its overall health maintenance routine.

Proper diet is necessary for an animal's dental considerations as it is for humans. In addition, through sound nutritional planning your animal's health and appearance can be enhanced. At BREEDERS PRIDE PET CARE CENTER, 665 Mass. Ave., Arlington, we offer the advice and products that are important mainstay of any pet's diet as well as those supplements that are important additions. For nutrition, for enjoyment, for health, come to BREEDERS PRIDE PET CARE CENTER for your pet's needs. Tel. 643-0195. Open 9-6 Mon., Tues., Wed. & Fri.; til 8 Thurs.; 9-5 Sat. VISA & MasterCard accepted.

P.S.: Only the dental technique known as scaling will eliminate built-up tartar on your dog's teeth.

Only Lake Lovers Can Save Polluted Mystic From Death

POLLUTED MYSTIC LAKE — Winchester residents will have to cut through some legislative red tape before they can swim and fish in a clean Mystic Lake.
(Staff Photo by Noreen Murphy)

By DAVE LEECO

The only people who can save the Upper Mystic Lake from a slow death due to pollution are the people who love it.

That was the consensus by lakeside dwellers and water lovers after hearing the results of the federally funded pollution study of the Lake last Thursday at the Winchester Town Hall.

"This is our lake, our river, our land," said Dr. Herbert Meyer, head of the Mystic River Watershed Assn. "If we want it, we have to work for it. And we can do it."

But not without fighting to stop the sources of pollution, and to get state assistance for a clean-up of the lake.

The study showed such action is badly needed, according to Nancy Fratoni of the State Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE), who supervised the study done with the help of the watershed association.

"I don't think you can ever get the lake back to its supposedly pristine condition," concluded Fratoni.

The problems in the Upper Mystic, Fratoni explained to 50 citizens packed into the Winchester Board of Health room, stemmed from a variety of sources.

Sewer spills from the Stoneham sewer system into Sweetwater Brook, which leads to the Aberjona River and thence to the Upper Mystic, brought bacteria, metals and chemicals into the lake.

Sewer problems in Winchester and with the MDC sewer lines also contributed to the sewage pollution, Fratoni said.

"Sewage overflows and surcharges cause high levels of nutrients and bacteria in the lake," Fratoni explained. "And when a lake is high in nutrients, it causes a lot of plant growth.

"The natural process of a lake begins with clear water, with very little plant growth, then as the lake gets more nutrients, it begins to fill in." Fratoni said. "That process has been accelerated by man."

Other activities of man — from chemical dumping to littering to not tuning automobiles — has added to the pollution problem in the lake, Fratoni said.

Ammonia from a chemical dump in Wilmington has seeped into the lake, said Fratoni, and the groundwater carries in a host of other metals, probably from past chemical dumping.

And urban runoff — litter, the residues left from auto emissions and phosphorous from fertilizer — is carried into the rivers through storm drains and is another source of the pollution, Fratoni explained.

Some of the problems leading to the pollution of the lake are being solved, Fratoni pointed out. Winchester and Stoneham, for example, are planning to rehabilitate their sewer systems. And the chemical dumps in Woburn and Wilmington have been discovered and are being cleaned.

But the problems in the lake remain. High levels of metals in the water, especially lead, have made the fish from the lake dangerous to eat, Fratoni said. And the high level of nutrients has caused a tremendous growth of weeds in the Upper Mystic.

There is hope for the lake, however. Fratoni pointed out a number of things could be done to stop pollutants from coming into the lake.

One option would be to use the upper forebay of the lake — the part of the lake overlooked by the Sandy Beach parking lot — as a containment area for metals and other pollutants. That area could then be regularly cleaned and harvested for weeds, she said.

There is even money available for a lake clean-up project, Fratoni said, through a $3 million Environmental Protection Agency water improvement program.

"But, she said, "the state isn't going to pick up on our study and say, "Gee, we should fill out an application for the Mystic Lake!"

"People have to go to them, show they have a reasonable plan for cleaning the lake, and show they have the support behind the clean-up," Fratoni said.

Alfred Ferullo, the director of environmental quality for the MDC which controls the Upper Mystic, said his agency would be glad to consider a clean-up of the lake.

The MDC, he noted, had already begun a similar project for the Lower Mystic.

"We'll take this report, look it over and see what money we can pick up," he said. "We would like to do the project, we were just waiting for the report."

But, Ferullo added, the MDC would need citizen support. For one thing, he said, the EPA program requires matching funds from the public body doing the clean-up.

The MDC would match the funds, he said, but it would need to get the money from the state. And to get the state to approve that money, he said, citizens would have to get on their legislators.

"Write your legislator, and let him know you don't like the situation in the lake," urged Ferullo.

Residents seemed ready to do just that.

"I've lived around the lake for 18 years, I grew up around it and now I live on it," said John Johnson of 10 Niles ln. in Winchester. "We have to make a decision now.

"The lake can deteriorate and everyone can sit around and say 'That's too bad - or we can do something about it," said Johnson. "And if that means contacting the MDC, or state representatives, let's do it."

Selectmen Close Warrant For Town Meeting

The Board of Selectmen Monday night officially closed the warrant for fall Town Meeting articles. No more articles will be accepted for the November session of Town Meeting.

The 16 articles scheduled to be debated at Town Meeting are varied. Town Meeting members will decide whether or not to change the date for opening future fall Town Meetings and whether or not to appropriate funds for sewer studies.

Members will be asked to petition the President of the United States for a nuclear arms freeze. They will also be asked to appropriate money for data processing equipment and services for Town Hall and for the installation of an elevator in Town Hall.

Several zoning issues will be discussed. Among them is the rezoning of Main st. between the Rotary and Elmwood ave. to allow business construction there.

The town will be asked to appropriate $8,100 which will be matched by $5,400 in state funds, to purchase mechanized parking machines for the downtown parking lots.

Town Meeting will also determine how to deal with the issue of allowing video games in the town.

Pay Parking 1 Step Closer To Downtown Lots

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Town Meeting approval is now all Economic Development Coordinator John Connery needs before he can implement computerized pay parking in the lots downtown next spring.

Connery will no longer have to take on the Board of Selectmen this November when he asks Town Meeting for $8,100 to buy mechanized parking machines. The state will fund the rest of that $27,000 project.

The selectmen unanimously backed a compromise plan Monday night to clean up the parking siutation in Winchester's business center. Most of the board had been opposed to Connery's original plan to charge long-term parkers 10 cents an hour at all three parking lots downtown.

The new plan, which will go to Town Meeting for approval this fall, will only charge for parking in two of the three downtown lots.

Connery's article calls for installation of the machines at the lots on Waterfield rd. and at the Post Office. The third machine, intended for the Town Hall parking lot, will not be purchased unless the selectmen decide that machine is needed to make the parking program work. Senior citizens will be exempt from all parking fees at the three lots.

The machines are an integral part of Connery's plan to maximize the use of the parking spaces in front of stores by ensuring that they are not taken up by long-term parkers like merchants and commuters. Revenues collected from the machines will be used to revitalize Winchester's business center.

Connery's parking plan calls for the collection machines to be installed in all three downtown parking lots. Selectman Chairman Alan Macdonald has said he favored that strategy, but the other selectmen are opposed to charging residents to park at the Town Hall lot.

Connery maintains that parkers will flood the Town Hall lot if it is the only free lot downtown. Most of the Selectmen believe that commuters will park in the pay lots to avoid the extra walk from Town Hall to the train station.

The article Connery drafted for Town Meeting compromises both positions. That article was unanimously supported by the selectmen at their Monday night meeting.

If Town Meeting members also approve of the compromise, the two mechanized machines will be installed downtown in April. That will enable Connery to experiment with a parking meter holiday to determine whether or not one-hour parking on the central streets downtown should be controlled by meters or by posted signs.

"The timing of this (mechanized parking) is good because we'll know 30 days from their installation whether or not we'll go to posted parking or continue with metered parking and we can then make the correct decision on the sidewalk grant," Connery told the selectmen.

The state has awarded $31,000 to Winchester which will be used to buy new sidewalks and trees.

Connery told the selectmen that while he still believes all three machines are necessary to properly implement his downtown parking plan, he would rather have the system work improperly for awhile and have money appropriated to fix it, than be forced to wait until next Town Meeting to clean up the problem.

"I wanted three lots to be controlled by three parking machines and I believe the board believes two machines may be appropriate," Connery said. "I can't honestly agree with you. I take my position from numbers and analyses, but I can't factor in the experience of the town officials who have lived here all their lives.

"I'd like you (selectmen) to consider a compromise position," he continued. "I'd like the board to submit a warrant to fund three machines with a caveat that two be installed unless the board feels it's necessary to install the third. It's a fallback I can live with."

The selectmen said they could also live with the compromise.

"I'm amenable to the compromise," said Selectman Ed O'Connell. "I remain unconvinced for the need to install mechanized parking at the Town Hall lot. I'm convinced people will not walk 600 yards to save 10 cents or 80 cents over an eight-hour day.

"But I'm allowing the possibility of being proven wrong," he continued. "I'm not afraid to acknowledge that the team I selected may not win.

O'Connell also noted that very quickly after the two machines were installed, it would be apparent whether or not the third one should be installed.

"Should that happen, we'd have the funds ready," he said. "I support a reserve action on the third lot until experience says we need it."

"I'm not sure of the need for the third machine, but I'm certainly amenable for the funding of the three," Selectman John Williams said. "I don't think it'll take long to find out. We'll let experience judge."

"I'm convinced we need all three machines, but I'm glad to hear we can go forward at least with the funding for the three," Macdonald said.

Lombardi said he supported the compromise and noted that if the town ever decided to build a garage on the Waterfield lot, the same mechanized parking machine could be used to control the parking.

"I'm not afraid it (the new machine) will go to waste, so I'm in favor of the two machines," he said.

"I'm not opposed to trying out two mechanized meters on a try-out basis, but I'm opposed to having one at Town Hall," said Selectman Michael Saraco. "Residents come in to Town Hall to complain about something and they're irate as it is without having to pay a dime for parking too."

Those dimes will be used to pay for downtown improvements such as park benches, street lights and bicycle racks as part of Connery's overall downtown revitalization plan.

"We're very very close to creating an infrastructure for revitalizing the downtown and the parking is crucial to its foundation," Connery said.

The selectmen were commended for their decision to support the compromise by merchants who attended the meeting and by other residents with an active interest in town affairs.

"The parking situation downtown is ludicrous," said Dick Malcolm of Winchester Jewelers Ltd., who came to the meeting to represent the retail group of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce. "In order to have development of new activity downtown, this program should go forward. You (selectmen) showed fair judgment on your part."

"I feel your (selectmen's) comments were excellent, agreed Charlie Tseckares, chairman of the Winchester Center Beautification Committee, and a former Planning Board member.

School Committee Votes To Crack Down On Excessive Class Absences At High School

Because of the controversy this summer concerning a school administration plan to change the attendance policy at Winchester High School, high school Principal Vincent Larocco has outlined the present attendance policy for his school.

The School Committee has considered changing the attendance policy to allow for grade cuts in cases of repeated, unexcused absences.

Instead, the School Committee voted to strictly enforce the present attendance policy, explained here by Larocco. The attendance rules and others are also published in the high school's Student Handbook which each student receives the first day of school as follows:

I. Attendance in the public school is governed by State Law:

Reasonable excuses for non-attendance are as follows:

A. Illness
B. Religious holiday
C. Death in the family
D. Emergency medical and dental treatment
E. Others if approved by the principal prior to the absence.

II. Procedures:

A. If the absence is known in advance, the parent shall write a note to the principal stating the reason for the absence and requesting approval for the absence.

B. Day-to-day absence (illness as an example) the parent shall call the school the day of the absence - 729-9303 - briefly giving the student's name, grade and reason for the absence. If a reason is not given the school will not excuse the absence. (The school may call the home to verify the original call and reason for the absence.)

C. No calls will be accepted for an absence 24 hours after the absence has occurred. To insure proper record keeping the call for an absence should be made the day of the absence, preferably by 10:30 a.m.

III. Other regulations that apply:

A. Extracurricular activities (sports and non-sports)

No student shall be allowed to participate in a practice or event if the student has missed the whole day of school or any given part of the school day. If the student has missed school on a Friday and the event is to be held on the weekend the student must present a note to the supervisor of the event stating the reason for the Friday absence and giving the parent's approval for the student to participate in a weekend event.

B. Make-up of work due to absence:

1. Absence of one or two days - one school day upon return for make-up.

2. Absence of three to five days - one week of school upon return for make-up.

4. If a student is absent the day of an exam or when a major paper is due, the student shall be prepared to meet that obligation immediately upon return to school.

IV. Disciplinary actions which may apply due to specific non-authorized absences: (See handbook for specific applications).

1. Dentention
2. Grade reduction in accordance to the rules set forth in the Student Handbook
3. Internal suspension
4. External suspension
5. Non-involvement in extracurricular activities for the day of the absence and-or removal from the activity in its entirety.

Please be reminded that the above is only an outline of the attendance regulations that apply. Please read your student's handbook to become familiar with all the regulations.

Sachem Woods Condo Developers Move Ahead With Project And Ready For TM Showdown

The developers of the 110-unit Sachem Woods condominium project are moving ahead with their plans while keeping an eye on their November Town Meeting showdown.

Chub Whitten, who is working on the development along with brother Robinson and sister Amy, presented the Board of Health with the sewer and water plans for the Carriage Hill-area project Monday.

The Board of Health has been loath to allow additions onto the west side sewer lines because of recurring sewage problems in that part of town.

Board of Health member N. Bruce Hanes noted that when a single-family proposal for the same land now planned to be developed as Sachem Woods came before the board, it would not allow the project to be built all at once.

The board instead allowed a gradual development of single family homes, so it could gauge the effect of the building on the sewer problems.

The line could probably hold a greater flow of sewage, Hanes noted, now that the Star Market complex in Woburn has been removed from the Winchester sewer system.

And, he continued, the Town Meeting vote to appropriate $108,000 to repair the west side sewer line would go a long way toward solving the problem.

The fact that the town's sewer work was due to begin in the spring of next year, while the Sachem Woods development would not be completed until fall was in the Whittens' favor, Hanes said.

Chub Whitten noted that only 23 of the condominiums would be built next year, provided Town Meeting approved a zoning change this fall.

Those 23 units would put less of a strain on the town's water and sewer facilities than the single-family homes originally planned for the site, the project's engineer, Robert Lacourse noted, because the units would be less likely to be filled with families with children.

The 23 Sachem Woods units would consume 5,150 gallons of water and dispose of 4,400 gallons of sewage each day, compared with 6,500 gallons of water and 5,800 of sewage for a single family home.

With the development of the 23 units would come the construction of a water loop from Margaret Mahoney's Heritage development to the Carriage Hill development. That loop, said Lacourse, would solve water pressure problems on Carriage Hill.

Sewer lines would be connected through the Mahoney property to Johnson rd., Lacourse said. All but a few units would have the sewage fed out by gravity.

Whitten added that an eight-inch sewer line would be connected to lines coming from Olde Lyme rd., eliminating a town pumping station.

Hanes noted that "it looked like some problems were being solved — the looping and the eight-inch main to help the town in particular" because of the Whittens' plans.

Task Force Names Criteria For Closing Schools

No decision has been made yet on closing schools, moving grades into different school buildings, or changing the mix of grades in the Winchester schools.

But the Task Force on Declining Enrollment has settled on the criteria it will use to make those kinds of decisions.

The Task Force, set up by the School Committee last spring, gave its preliminary report to the committee last week.

That report, according to Task Force Chairman Vincent O'Reilly, was put together not as the final word on the declining enrollments, but "to communicate the types of things we are doing, the reactions that are going into the report, and the planning assumptions we are making."

There is still some information the Task Force must gather before coming to any decision, O'Reilly said — information on population trends, school capacities, the way grades could be arranged, and the costs of running the various school buildings.

Population, the heart of the problem of declining enrollment, is also "the trickiest of all' the variables to predict, noted O'Reilly.

"The variables are very squishy," said O'Reilly. "They are impacted by the way the houses turn over and housing costs. We also tried to think through what would happen in the town with future development."

The committee will try a new approach to figuring school capacity, O'Reilly noted. Rather than base capacity solely on square footage, he said, the committee will look at the uses space in a building could be put to.

"We feel two classes per grade, with rooms for special subjects such as art and music, is the most desirable," he explained.

School configuration — whether kindergarten through sixth grade should go to one school, seventh and eighth grades in another and ninth through twelfth grades in another building — will also play a part in the Task Force's decisions, O'Reilly said.

"We feel the structure we have — elementary, middle and high schools — is best from the point of view of education and social growth," said O'Reilly. "But you can find successful examples of any configuration anywhere in Massachusetts."

Finally, the cost of operating each of Winchester's schools must be considered, O'Reilly said.

The Task Force interviewed school principals, administration officials, the heads of the school parent organizations, members of the Community School Association, and the head of the town's Capital Planning Committee on the way to making the preliminary report, O'Reilly said.

Also interviewed were Curriculum Director David Ackerman, Town Manager Thomas Groux, DPW head Dom Serratore and the president of the Winchester Education Association, Joanne Martignette, according to O'Reilly.

After discussing the consequences of declining enrollments with all interested parties, O'Reilly continued, his committee came up with a set of goals the school officials should try to meet in making any decision.

"We needed a set of standards against which the alternatives for dealing with declining enrollment could be measured," explained O'Reilly. "They represent the foundation upon which the rest of our recommendations will be based."

The premier goal in rearranging the school system to deal with declining enrollment, O'Reilly said, is to "maintain the quality of education in our schools."

The Task Force will also recommend continuing the concept of neighborhood schools in Winchester, O'Reilly continued. But, he added, "we had difficulty finding a definition of 'What is a neighborhood school?' that everyone could accept."

O'Reilly said that even though there may be changes in the school system because of the Task Force's final recommendations, the school system "should accommodate the progress of students through a program of education."

And any changes, he added, should come gradually.

"Whatever changes come out of this should be evolutionary rather than revolutionary," said O'Reilly. "There have been a lot of changes in the past — schools built, schools sold, schools converted.

"Any future changes should be preplanned and implemented as gradually as possible," he said.

Those changes shouldn't be set in concrete, O'Reilly noted. Because of the difficulties in predicting the future populations in the schools, the school administration "should maintain sufficient flexibility" to deal with any population booms in a grade or two.

If schools are to be closed, or grades combined, continued O'Reilly, the size of the schools and the classes remaining should be considered.

"Schools which are too large frustrate a sense of community," he said. "But schools which are too small create educational inefficiency."

Any school, he said, should have sufficient facilities to offer a variety of topics to interested students. "Children with different fields of interest should be accommodated," O'Reilly put it.

The Task Force, O'Reilly said, would take care in combining grades — one suggestion for dealing with declining enrollment was to combine elementary classes with junior high grades, or put junior high schoolers in the Winchester High School.

"You have to be cognizant of the maturation process and the social development of the students," O'Reilly said.

Finally, any decision must take into account cost, O'Reilly said.

"Any recommendations should be implemented in a cost-effective manner, and in the case of the sale of a school, with an eye toward the opportunity to increase revenues," O'Reilly said.

"But," O'Reilly warned, "I don't think our recommendations should come to be driven by the financial impact alone."

Scholarship Foundation Reports Record Year

Highlighting the recent annual meeting of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation was a report by Scholarship Committee Chairperson Berta Swanson who reported that 1982 had proven to be an exceptionally rewarding year.

The committee received a total of 120 requests for aid, she said. Fifty-nine of those were requests for initial aid, three of which were from students who had graduated prior to 1982, and 61 were for further aid. A record $70,950 in grants was awarded, $41,650 to 43 students starting further education and $29,300 to 35 continuing their studies.

Swanson pointed out that "due to the ever-soaring costs of a college education today, the needs have been greater than at any previous period. No longer can the smaller gift help to relieve the cost burden.

"The main goal of the committee," she said," was to relieve the heavy work-study loans with which the students had burdened themselves."

She stated that the record amount the committee had been able to award had been made possible by several developments. One was the designation of a portion of income from the Harold F. and Winnifred Meyer Trust for the Scholarship Foundation. The Meyers, longtime residents of Winchester, had no children of their own and left a portion of their estate to be used by the foundation for deserving young students wishing to continue their education.

Swanson later commented on the fact that in 1933 when the groundwork for the present Scholarship Foundation was being laid by the town's Mothers' Association, the first and only award was for $100. It was made to Richard Barksdale who attended Bowdoin College and later became a professor at North Carolina University.

At the conclusion of the committee reports the meeting was turned over to newly elected president David Donahue who expressed the appreciation of all the members for work done by outgoing president Elaine Delaney and longtime treasurer Robert Ingraham, as well as secretary Connie Locashio.

A Salute To Those Who Serve

ABC Program, Continues To Provide Minority Students With A Secondary School Education

When "Bill" left his home in a poor, black section of Cleveland for Winchester, it seemed like the perfect opportunity for him to obtain a strong, quality education.

Yet Bill's first days in Winchester under the auspices of the ABC (A Better Chance) program did not turn out to be easy. "He was miserable when he first came here," says Sandy Thompson, Community Relations Chairperson for ABC, a national, non-profit organization which provides academically talented minority students with an outstanding secondary school away from their home district.

"He had a hard time adjusting to rules and regulations," Thompson says. "He had a rough first year." A drop in grades did not help. To complicate matters Bill broke his leg while playing basketball which, in some respects, may have been a turning point. "It helped to open his eyes to see how much caring there was," Thompson says.

"By the time he left Winchester he had a tremendous sense of appreciation for the school, for the town, and for the people who had been involved with him. He had matured tremendously and is now doing well in his second year at college. Our experience with this student was enough to keep us going with ABC for another 10 years.

ABC was started in 1963 at Dartmouth by a group of independent school headmasters interested in increasing minority enrollments at their campuses. Minority students, generally black and hispanic, who apply to participate in the program must be in the top 10 percent of their classes, have good references, and be highly motivated, according to Thompson.

In addition to providing minority students with a solid secondary school education, ABC hopes that the students will continue their education in college and eventually assume positions of leadership wherever they settle. According to the National office of ABC in Boston, the record of achievement is impressive.

Although the students must be of high academic caliber within their home district, a different environment can contribute to advancing their education.

Winchester High School is one of 25 public schools with ABC programs, but the total number of member schools has reached 165, including independent boarding schools, independent day schools and public schools. The system, which began with only 23 schools, now receives more than 1900 applications for 500 openings each year.

The program in Winchester began in 1970. Local resident Bonnie Holmes heard a presentation on ABC while attending a summer program at Dartmouth. She brought the idea to the Ecumenical Association. "Within a breathtakingly short time," she recounted, "people from all parts of the community were working together to make it happen."

In the intervening 12 years, 34 students have graduated from Winchester High School. Colleges they have attended include Dartmouth, Harvard, Swarthmore, Haverford, University of Pennsylvania, Wesleyan, Manhattanville, Vanderbilt, University of Wisconsin, Knox and Antioch.

The young men in the Winchester program live together during the school year at 2 Dix st. under the supervision of a resident director. This year there are 10: two freshmen, three sophomores, three juniors and two seniors. Although the Winchester program is all male, there are ABC programs for young women in other areas.

Resident Director Mary Jo Nealon is just starting her fifth year. She oversees the running of the house, communicates with the students' parents, works closely with the board of directors and "fills a multitude of other roles," says Thompson. "She has been an invaluable asset to our program."

Why are the students required to live at the house instead of with local families? "It has been felt that they need to be together as a support group for each other, first and foremost," Thompson says. "They need the structure of a house setting, but what is really important is that they provide support and leadership for each other.

"There are big adjustments involved in coming from a black or Hispanic community and then going to a predominantly white school. Most of them are away from home for the first time too, and have to deal with a different academic atmosphere as well."

Each student has a host family. Thompson says, "these volunteer families provide a sort of haven or refuge for the student when he wants to get away from the pressures of school or the house. I think it is really hard for these kids who come from such varied and different backgrounds to blend and cooperate — to live together. It takes a lot of effort, but they make it work."

The students usually go to the host family's home once a week, often for Sunday dinner, and generally spend one weekend each month there. The host parents try to represent the student's own family at sporting events, awards ceremonies, and school open house.

"You try hard even though you can't really be the parent," Thompson says. 'It can be a very rewarding experience, and many families who have been host parents are still playing a role in the student's life as he goes through college and makes important decisions. You just try to 'be there' for him as you would for your own son or daughter."

Students take a regular course load at the high school where the administration and faculty have been very supportive, according to Thompson. "The students are here to get a good education," she says." They take as challenging a schedule as they can cope with."

A board of directors governs every aspect of the local program including fundraising and student admissions. Funds are raised to pay for operating expenses including housing, food, transportation and maintenance. The current $44,000 budget comes solely from the Winchester community, according to Thompson.

Major fundraising revolves around the spring concert and fall yard sale as well as solicitations of individuals and organizations. This year the fall event (scheduled for Oct. 16) is called A Better Celebration and will feature an auction of an Apple computere as well as antiques and household goods.

"ABC is able to function in Winchester strictly because of local backing," Thompson says. "It is quite heartwarming to see the broad base of support in the town for this program. There are hundreds of people who help out and keep it going from year to year. There are people who give hundreds of dollars and those who give their time — people who may devote hours and hours to helping maintain the house and many who may be called just once or twice to drive a student to the airport or train station."

Thompson believes the need for the ABC program in Winchester is as great today as when it started. "ABC needs Winchester," she says, "and Winchester needs ABC. The students contribute to the community in a special way, but more importantly, everyone who supports the program is really helping to give someone a better chance.

"We all share in a commitment to try to give deserving young minority students an opportunity to achieve their goals and I don't see any point in the near future when this will not be necessary and important."

LIBRARY HOOKED — The Winchester Public Library is now hooked into Winchester's institutional cable television loop which connects all municipal buildings. Winchester Library Director Matthew Sperber (l) accepts a 25-inch console television and videotape recorder from Continental Cablevision Manager William Powell. The TV equipment was donated to the town library as part of Continental Cable's franchise agreement.

FREE CAMERAS AVAILABLE — In addition to lending books, engraving pencils, art prints, films and museum passes, the Winchester Library will now loan Polaroid instant cameras. If there is a demand for the cameras, the library will add them to their permanent collection. Library Director Matthew Sperber (l) and James W. Blackham Jr. of Wedgemere ave., the Chairman of the Library Trustees, accept Sun 640 Polaroid cameras from Washington st. resident Robert Zeiberg, (c) a Polaroid employee.

Library Now Lends Polaroid Instant Cameras To Patrons

There are plenty of reasons for going going to the Winchester Public Library: great novels, obscure journals, expensive reference books and six Polaroid instant cameras that can be borrowed free of charge.

What are cameras doing in the public library?

"This is an experiement to see if our patrons would want to borrow an instant camera like they borrow a book or art print," said Library Director G. Matthew Sperber. "If there is a demand for them, the cameras will become part of our collection."

In a brief ceremony held at the main library, Polaroid employee Robert Zeibig, a resident of Washington st., presented Sperber with the Sun 640 cameras, donated by the Customer Service Division of the Cambridge-based Polaroid Corporation.

Victoria Carr, Check This Out program manager for Polaroid, said the idea of borrowing a camera from a library isn't as foreign as it may seem.

"Libraries offer all kinds of services to attract patrons," she said. "The Winchester Library loans movie projectors, engraving pencils, films, art prints — even museum passes."

Call the library for more information about this new service.

Junior Library Registers For Fall Preschool Hours

Once again the Winchester Junior Library has opened registration for the fall preschool story hours.

The current series will begin Oct. 8 and continue for seven weeks. The groups meet once a week on Tuesday mornings from 10:15 to 11 or on Thursday mornings from 10:15 to 11. Children 4-year-old or those who will turn 4 by Jan. 1 may be registerd in the Junior Library.

Jean Twitchell, Children's Services Librarian, will conduct the programs which consist of story telling, games, finger plays, crafts and films as the youngsters share in a group learning experience.

Mystery Writer To Open Author Series

Renowned detective writer, Robert B. Parker will be the featured speaker at the Winchester Public Library on Wednesday, Sept. 29. Parker is the first speaker in the literary lecture series sponsored by the Friends of the Winchester Library to benefit the library.

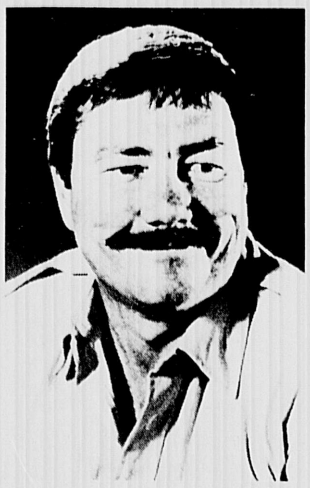
The Edgar Allan Poe Award was presented to Parker by the Mystery Writers of America for his novel, "Mortal Stakes." Two of Parker's previous books, "Looking for Rachel Wallace" and "Wilderness" will soon be films released by Columbia and universal studios, respectively. "Ceremony" is Parker's thriller.

Parker's novels have been translated into French, German, Dutch, Italian, Norwegian, Japanese, Portuguese and Slovak.

The series will continue on Oct. 21 with the appearance of Medford resident, Alonzo Fields. Fields, author of "My 21 Years at the White House" was the White House chief butler for over 20 years and served in the administrations of Presidents Hoover, Roosevelt, Truman, and Eisenhower. Fields was portrayed in the television dramatization of Lillian Parks' book entitled "Backstairs at the White House."

Harvard Business School faculty member and Managing Editor of the Harvard Business Review, David Ewing, will be the guest speaker on Tuesday evening, Nov. 16. Ewing is a Winchester resident and a prominent expert on civil liberties in industry and author of "Do It My Way or You're Fired" (to be published in January 1983).

All lectures will be held at the Winchester Public Library and will begin promptly at 7:30 p.m. The price for the series is $5. Proceeds benefit the Winchester Public Library. Tickets are available at the library or may be purchased through the mail by contacting Diana Obbard, 4 Ridgefield rd.



MYSTERY WRITER — Robert B. Parker, author of "A Savage Place," will be the featured speaker Sept. 29 at the Winchester Public Library starting off the benefit library lecture series sponsored by the Friends of the Winchester Public Library.

Music Society Plans Community Sing Oct. 3 At Church

The Winchester Music Society will sponsor the second annual Community Sing to be held on Sunday, Oct. 3 at 3 p.m. at the Unitarian Church in Winchester center.

The piece to be sung is the Faure Requiem which will be conducted by John Duffy and accompanied by Jonathan Barnhardt on the organ. The performance should last about two hours.

The sing is open to the public and will be followed by refreshments.

A Loaf Of Bread, A Jug Of Wine, And Thou Beside Me...

By TERRY MAROTTA

I read somewhere recently that power struggles between mothers and small children are apt to erupt on the average of three times in the 25 minutes it takes for that mother to do her foodshopping.

We've all seen these squabbles break out. Before I had children of my own, in fact, I looked upon supermarkets as places chosen by some unknown but universal accord as backdrops for the exercising of a parent's most sadistic impulses.

I'd seen toddlers getting whisked down the aisle six inches off the ground, pulled along by one stiff arm, dislocation a mere whisper away. I'd seen tantrums enacted in the dairy section; children dragged squealing by the hoods of their snowsuits along the linoleum as they lay on their backs and bellowed.

And I was always appalled by what I saw, virtuously and sanctimoniously shocked by such excesses of ill temper. Some people just shouldn't HAVE children, I'd primly observe, as I floated childlessly among the frozen foods, serenely checking off the items on my short list. What bestial folk they must be at heart, I'd say to myself, what revolting barbarians.

Now, of course, I understand. Having lived for six years in the world of the diaper-man; the world of many small mittens lost in the snow; the world where scoops of ice cream plop from cones; where balloons explode two minutes after purchase. Having lived for all this time in this kingdom of sudden grief and high drama, I've emerged with a greater understanding for the poor doomed parent whose task it is to shop for groceries in the presence of the little people.

The whole idea behind the supermarket, of course, is to overwhelm you with choices. I recall reading a study done somewhere in which it was discovered that people's pupils actually dilate when they enter stores like this. Well, if adults react this way at the sight of all these products, imagine their effect on our kids.

Imagine, nothing. Take a stroll down toward the breakfast foods and you'll see for youself what I mean.

Little children go crazy when they see all these cereals — cereals with names like Flips and Yux, Candyman and Boasties, cereals whose boxes are decorated with the cartoon figures made familiar by many a television ad, boxes illustrated with photographs of the extravagant forms these foods have come to take.

What 3-year-old wouldn't start salivating at cereals dyed purple and orange, cereals sprinkled with bits of marshmallow, cereals shaped, lord help us, like teensy bite-sized cookies? Even my kids start to drool, and they've never even tasted the stuff. They've cut their teeth in the grey world of oatmeal, the ho-hum dominion of cornflakes. I mean, their idea of a treat is a tin cup full of Cheerios. And yet, like every other child, they turn wild at the sight of these products. They drool like Bavlov's dogs and set up a bleating antiphony of requests for purchase.

So there's the Big Choice Tussle to be endured at every turn.

And then there's each child's peculiar style of behavior during the food-gathering process.

Understand, I'm talking about real little guys here, the ones you put in the cart with the broccoli, either squeezed into the seat up front or stashed down under in the hold, more or less. They behave in any number of ways:

One child might specialize in the Lunge, perhaps, reaching out to snatch the pretty Comet can from its place on the bottom of the stack. Another might go in for the Hangover, half standing in the carriage when your back is turned, and then lowering herself, head downward, over the side, presumably for a better view of all those cute puppies pictured on the dog-chow sacks down by the floor. You know your Hangover specialist is at work when the stock boy blanches and customers as far away as 50 feet begin gesticulating in mute alarm.

My own preschooler goes in for the Foot Drag herself. From her place on the floor of the cart, especially it seems when I'm rushing, she amuses herself by extending one small sneaker and letting it scuff in rubbery slow-motion along the ground. This trick requires a subtle touch: anything too obvious and I'd catch right on. She does it quite lightly at first, almost imperceptibly, and then gradually increases the braking motion until I think I'm pushing a couple of 200-pound men along with my week's worth of provisions.

Finally, I think every parent must be familiar with the infamous Can't Wait Syndrome. Whatever time of day I shop, even if we've come directly from a lunch hour spent stuffing ourselves beneath the Golden Arches, my kids turn ravenous when we hit the food store. The older pries into a bag of cookies, while her sister pinches mouthfuls of dough off the ample hips of the Greek bread. One squeezes a full meal of appetizers out of an aerosol cheese can, while tne baby licks insecticide gravely off an apple.

Now I'm pretty tough about these infractions, you should know, but still I seem to arrive shame-facedly at the register with my miserable collection: gnawed carrots, empty Nabs wrappers, and violated tubs of margarine. I mean, it's embarrassing! How can you weigh a bunch of bananas if a banana-and-a-half is taking its final repose in the tummy of your toddler?

No matter. By the time I reach the check-out I'm exhausted. At this point there's little more they can do to me in the way of vexation. Oh sure, they see the candy display, but by then I'm impervious. I usually grab a magazine and pretend I don't know them. They yammer for chocolate and wheedle for gum. They dance maniacal jigs of gluttony before the whole selection. They beg for TUMS, for M&Ms, for Rolaids, for whatever catches their eye. . . .

It doesn't bother me though. By this time I'm lost in an article on UFOs. I glance up coolly with a look that seems to say: "Who are these unmannerly infants? And where is their parent? Some people just shouldn't HAVE children!"

Congratulations To Town For Winning Dalton Trophy

EDIOTR OF THE STAR:

This week official notice came that Winchester had won the Ernest Dalton Memorial Trophy, the most prestigious honor for athletics offered in Eastern Massachusetts. As the member of the Winchester School Committee whose special assignment has been sports, I would like to publicly commend the following people;

Mr. William Colella, our athletic director, who in his years supervising sports, has moved Winchester from a town dominated by a very few key sports toward a very broadly based program the most significant new direction being many outstanding girls' sports.

Mr. Vincent Larocco, Mr. Thomas Budrewicz, Mr. Evander French, the three high school principals whose personal support and appreciation for our young student athletes is without equal.

The many coaches whose influence impacted not just a season, but often the entire lifetime of their players.

Most important are the athletes themselves. As one who has been privileged to observe many games, contests, meets, I can attest to the energy, the effort, the enthusiasm, the excitement generated by our boys and girls. If you are a Winchester resident who hasn't taken the opportunity to be a spectator, you have missed one of the finest parts of life in our town.

Many of the stars of these events have received publicity in our papers; their pictures are seen often. The Dalton Trophy was captured this year by Winchester, not just because of these talented youth, but particularly by the second and third string players who scrimmaged, practiced, pushed and challenged their teammates into top form. Some of them never won a letter, but their being a part of the team made the Dalton Trophy ours.

Winchester can indeed be proud to have won this outstanding honor. In the sports arena, as in the academic, our high school has areas that contain flaws, that need improvement. We must continue to work to make our high school more ideal. Each one of us could and should make constructive suggestions in this direction.

But for today, it is that time for the entire town to stand up and honor the many talented and dedicated student athletes who have made our town, Number One.

More On MSPCA And Macomber Farm

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The writer of the letter in the Winchester Story (Sept. 2), who attempted to criticize my letter of Aug. 19 about the MSPCA's Macomber Farm, apparently misread and misunderstood what I said, and actually agreed with my most important points!

I said that John Macomber, a genuine animal lover, had left his Framingham estate, "Raceland," to the MSCPCA, "lock, stock and barrel," for their purposes — in other words, with no restrictions, just, as she said.

My family and I are well acquainted with Mr. Macomber's will, having studied it carefully during the years that we have researched the MSPCA in conjunction with our volunteer work at the State House on humane legislation, since 1973.

We have a copy of it, and anyone can get one by going to the old Probate Court House in East Cambridge, second floor, and asking for it by number, 329261.

The will didn't set up Macomber Farm as it stands today, because it was offered to the MSPCA "for carrying out its functions" to use the will's terminology.

Dr. Eric H. Hansen of Wellesley, one of the trustees designated by Mr. Macomber, was then president of the MSPCA.

People who knew Mr. Macomber and his love and concern for animals, felt that he would have expected his place in Framingham Centre would be used directly for the care of animals in need of help, but it is impossible, of course, to speak for those who have died, only to think of what they would havenwished, knowing what kind of people they were.

The assessed value I gave for Macomber Farm is correct, having been obtained in person at the Framingham Town Hall in April. Anyone may get that at the Assessors office.

It is listed as "unfinished" because new things are being done, or planned for the future.

As for the New England (not "Boston" as the writer called it) Aquarium, my family and I are charter members and know it well. It was not established as a humane society, as was the MSPCA, but the N.E. Aquarium certainly advocates humane treatment of aquatic animals, and more than does its share to help any in need.

The Children's Museum and Benson's Wild Animal Farm were not established as humane societies either (the writer mentioned all three as charging admission), and none of them have the millions of dollars and huge bequests that the MSPCA has, nor officers with the large salaries and expense accounts such as those now heading the MSPCA.

If you want to check out the latter, go to the State Office Building on Ashburton place, Beacon Hill, and the Division of Public charities, Attorney General's office — You'll get an eyefull.

As for the amount of time that Mr. Macomber spent at his beloved "Raceland," my late husband merely mentioned that, in his own reminiscences of the place and Mr. Macomber, because, as a teenager in the 30s and later, in the early 40s, he lived at his own family's estate, at 333 Lee st., in Brookline, and they knew Mr. Macomber, socially, having many of the same interests — dogs, in particular.

Coincidentally, Lothrop Withington, the well-known attorney whose office drew up Mr. Macomber's will, and whom Mr. Macomber designated a trustee, along with the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston and Eric Hansen, lived with his family on Clyde st., Brookline, near the home of my husband's aunt, uncle and their children, that estate abuting my husband's family's estate. The young people played football or tennis together, visiting back and forth all the time.

Thus, I have personal reasons for knowing about many details that Ms. Wilson, listed among 11 past and present business associates, and at that time living in Reading, Mass., on the list of legatees, would not have.

My remarks about the animals at Macomber Farm and their origin, were based on a Boston Herald article that said, "one area that MSPCA will not become involved in is breeding. We do not want to add any animals to the food chain. We don't want to raise them just to get rid of them, says Johnson (Farm Director Robert Johnson).

"Instead, the center will borrow pregnant animals from cooperating farms to illustrate the birth and raising of piglets, kids, foals, and other baby farm animals.

"The sole exception will be, by necessity, the dairy cows." End of quote.

As for the animals at Macomber Farm, I didn't say that they went back to the farms where they were obtained in the first place — I suggested that visitors to the Farm ask what happened to them, when the season ends for visitors to the Farm.

Members of the Massachusetts legislature (and there are many fine, hardworking people at the State House), know that in the years that my husband, son and I have worked, voluntarily, for animal welfare legislation, we've had the facts and often photographs, to back up what we say.

We are never inaccurate.

Housing Policy Should Look To Future

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It was good to hear at the meeting of the Selectmen on Sept. 13, that they plan to prepare a housing policy for Winchester. This policy must be more than an account of housing growth in the town.

A housing policy should state goals for future housing development. It should be based on a review of housing needs and indicate ways in which the town agencies and residents will work to accomplish the goals.

In Winchester the Selectmen, Planning Board and Housing Authority cooperated in a survey of housing needs in 1981. This survey can be useful in developing a housing policy for the future. The survey showed that the majority of Winchester residents do not want to change their housing, but it also showed that many people want new kinds of housing and that a substantial number need housing susidies. We must balance in the new housing policy ways to meet the needs both of those who want no change and those who want change.

The survey showed that about a fifth of the town households want to move to new housing in the next five years. These people want a much higher proportion of rental units and condominiums than the present residents. Whereas only four percent of present residents live in apartments today, 29 percent of those wanting to move would like apartments. While only three percent of the present residents live in condominiums today, about 19 percent of those wanting to move, want condos. We have certainly increased condominiums, but we have failed to provide increasing apartments.

To provide added apartments, the town could change zoning to allow more two-family areas, more areas where four-plexes could be built, and could allow a limited number of accessory apartments in large single family houses.

The 1981 housing survey also showed that about 300 households with two or more people with the head under 65 years of age need subsidized housing. There were probably about 200 households of three or more persons with incomes under $15,000 and another 100 two-person households under 65 years with such low incomes. In addition there are about 400 older households that need subsidized housing, in addition to those now living at Palmer st. or Westley st.

The state has programs to assist the local Housing Authority in building or buying subidized houses for families and for older people. The town could buy existing two-family houses that would qualify for state assistance. The town could also require developers of new housing to provide some for purchase by the Housing Authority at a price that meets state limits. The developer might skew other costs to reduce the price of units sold to the Housing Authority.

The town could also give land for the construction of new units that would be eligible for assistance. In Concord the town housing authority has bought over 100 single and two-family housing units for low-income families. If Winchester decides that it wants to help provide housing for low-income families, I think it could share with the state in providing financial contributions, in the form of land contribution.

I hope the Selectmen and the Planning Board, who were represented at the Sept. 13 meeting, will state clearly what they consider to be the housing needs of Winchester for the future, and what steps they propose to take, or to bring before Town Meeting, or to ask the Housing Authority to take, to meet these needs.

Kraus Thanks Voters In Senate District

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

To the voters of Winchester:

Please accept my deepest thanks for the many kindnesses you extended to me and my family during the primary campaign. My wife Adele, son Karl, and I will long remember the graciousness with which we were received as we went door-to-door through the district in the spring and summer.

Even greater thanks must of course go to the hundreds of people who worked so hard and so long and who contributed so much to make this campaign a success. Given the narrowness of the victory, I hope you all realize that everyone who helped and everything you did was essential to the success of the campaign. Thanks to each of you, I was elected.

Thanks too must go to the thousands of voters who voted for me. I shall do everything I can to justify your act of faith and the confidence you have shown in me.

I also want to recognize my fellow candidates. All six campaigned hard — it was a hard-fought but clean campaign. I want to thank each of you for the effort it took to keep it that way. Everyone involved should be proud of how the campaigns were conducted.

Finally, as the Democratic nominee and senator-elect, I want to renew my pledge to the voters of this town and of this district. In the coming years, I will do my very best to provide you the hardworking, fair and effective representation you deserve. Thanks again.

Sincerely,
Dick Kraus

Kraus, Lyons Demand District Wide Recount In Senate Race

James J. Lyons Jr., defeated in the Democratic primary election by 161 votes, has filed for a district wide recount in the 4th Middlesex State Senate race.

Richard Kraus, who won the seven-candidate race, also filed district wide recount papers "on the advice of legal counsel," he said.

Lyons filed 11 pages of signatures with Arlington Town Clerk Christine Callahan at 4:45 p.m. on Friday, just before the initial deadline for beginning the recount process.

Lyons' campaign manager, Joe Tortelli, said they filed two pages of signatures with the Woburn City Clerk's office earlier that same day.

"Many people who have worked for Jim for the last six or seven months asked him to request a recount," Tortelli said. The petition is based solely on the narrowness of the margin of victory, Tortelli indicated.

Kraus' campaign manager, Ellen Carno, said they also circulated about 13 pages of petitions in the four communities in the district. "We submitted at least two pages of signatures in each town," she estimated.

Winchester Town Clerk Carolyn Ward said the Kraus campaign submitted two pages of signatures for certification. Arlington's clerk reported seven pages of Kraus petitions submitted to her office.

Only 75 signatures of registered Democrats are required for a candidate to request a districtwide recount. The signers must have been registered Democrats as of Aug. 17, the last day to register for the primary. They must also remain Democrats as of the date of the recount petition. Both candidates got well over the required number of signatures.

Candidates must submit petitions for a recount on the third day after the primary to local registrars, for certification of the required signatures.

Then the petitions must be submitted by the candidate, on or before the sixth day following the election to the Secretary of State's election office.

Signers can come from any part of the district. The petitions may be restricted to one community, or may request a recount of the entire district. Whatever the petition requests is what the recount is limited to, according to David Sullivan, legal counsel to Secretary of State Michael J. Connelly.

Kraus said he sought legal counsel when he was informed Lyons planned to request a recount. His counsel advised him to file his own petition to protect his legal standing during the recount, he said.

Carno explained that the limitation rules mean that, for example, if Lyons' petitions did not request the affidavits that accompany absentee ballots, and Kraus did not file for that information, neither candidate would be allowed to request an examination of those affidavits during the recount.

This is the only district wide recount that had been filed in the state by Tuesday, according to the Secretary of State's office.

To be eligible for a district wide recount, the vote margin must be within one-half of one percent of the total vote in that race.

The 161 vote difference, measured against the total of 38,574 votes in that race, is .4174 percent.

As of Monday afternoon, the Secretary of State's office of elections had informed Callahan and the other local election officials that a recount would be held.

Arlington Town Clerk Callahan said the notice came only hours after the Lyons petition left her office to be carried to Boston by Lyons campaign officials.

Each community's official must give each of the seven senatorial candidates three days' written notice of the time and place of the recount.

The recounts have been tentatively scheduled as follows: tomorrow at 9 a.m. in the Woburn City Hall; Saturday at 9 a.m., at the nine polling places used in Lexington. (Lexington's voting machines must be read individually.)

Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Selectmen's office at Winchester Town Hall.

The printer packs from each of the Winchester voting machines will be examined, and absentee ballots recounted. Town Clerk Carolyn Ward says the town will pay overtime to two employees from her office, and hire two election officers to record, tabulate, and observe the recount which will be open to the public.

Arlington's recount will be held Monday, the last day it legally can be, said clerk Callahan, because of other events in town.

"Saturday is Town Day, and everything will be confusion in Town Hall that day," she noted. "So Monday night is the only time my people will be free to do this."

Arlington's recount will be held in the auditorium of the Town Hall, beginning at 7 p.m. It will be open to the public and press, but Callahan says observers will only be permitted in the balcony.

Part of the reason is that it will take 18 teams of two tellers each to tabulate the 16,216 paper ballots used in the Democratic primary.

Callahan says that each of the seven candidates may have representatives observing the tables where the tallying is done. In addition, there will be election wardens, runners and the Board of Registrars members on the floor.

Callahan and Fred Pitcher, executive secretary to the Selectmen, estimate that the cost of the recount, divided between the Town Clerk's and Selectmen's budgets, would be about $1,000. That doesn't include overtime for custodians, or any extra costs of keeping Town Hall open.

Carolyn Ward in Winchester couldn't give an estimate for the costs of that recount, although she expected it to be substantially less.

Part of the cost will go to overtime salaries, but she agreed with Callahan that it would be nearly impossible to conduct the recounts during normal business hours. "Life does go on around here," she noted.

The only large expense Winchester could encounter would be overtime pay for school custodians, if the candidates should choose to inspect the actual machines.

"It's really not necessary, but the candidates are entitled to request an inspection in writing before or after the recount," Ward noted.

One reason to inspect the machines could be to examine the seals on them. Machines are sealed, and paper ballots are retained, for 30 days after every election. When a recount petition has been filed, they are retained for 60 days following the election.

All costs of the recounts are borne by the communities, not the state or the candidates themselves.

Winchester High Offers Weekly Preschool Lab

Mothers, do you ever feel like you need a little time to yourself to do a few errands or just simply relax? If you do, Winchester High School may have an answer for you.

Winchester High School Home Economics Department is starting a child study lab on Thursday mornings, beginning Oct. 7 from 9:30 - 11. The lab is designed to give high school students first-hand experience in caring for and observation of preschool aged children.

Students enrolled in the Early Childhood course will care for your children under the supervision of a certified teacher. Class size will be limited to 12 children all of whom should be between the ages 3-4½. An effort will be made to balance the group based on age, sex, and cultural background.

No fee will be charged for the program, but parents will be asked to spend at least one lecture class period sharing their parenting expertise with the high school students.

Enrollment for the program will be Tuesday, Sept. 28, from 9:30 - 10:30 a.m. in the Winchester High School Home Economics Department - Room B101.

The class is seeking donations of any used or outgrown preschool toys and equipment.

Great Atmosphere, Service, And Terrific Food Is Just The Beginning...

Villa Capri

A pleasant atmosphere, great service and, most importantly, terrific food await the discerning diner at the Villa Capri, located at 1336 Broadway in Somerville.

The Villa can offer terrific food primarily because of its chef, Robert Ivanoskos, who has 25 years of experience in the cooking field, including 17 with the Villa. Ivanoskos' wealth of experience allows the Villa to give its customers a choice: the restaurant features American and New England specialties as well as Northern Italian cuisine.

The main attractions at the Villa are prime rib and lobster, according to owner William Salari. Diners can get "a good serving" of prime rib for only $9.95 and twin lobsters for just $10.95. As an added special, the lobster dinner is only $8.95 all day Monday through Thursday. The Villa also offers diners a selection of barbeque dishes such as sausages, lamb and steak and pork tips.

Some of the restaurant's special Italian dishes include: Veal Bracciolettini (veal rolled with ham and cheese and spices, broiled and topped with a butter, wine and mushroom sauce); Chicken Margarita (chicken dipped in an egg and cheese batter, pan-fried and topped with provolone cheese and served with a lemon, butter and wine sauce); and Shrimp Lemonata (shrimp dipped in egg and cheese batter and served with lemon sauce).

Furthermore, the Villa also offers a pseudo-Italian meal: Steak Mafia (a one-pound sirloin broiled or barbecued with a highly seasoned mushroom, onion and pepper sauce). The giant salad bar is available with all dinners, and the Villa also has a full service liquor bar.

"We're not too far to get to, and once people get here they will be very glad they came," Salari said. The quality of the food will make sure of that.

POSTERS DISPLAY — Saturday's INTERACT Flea Market and Fair Sept. 25 will feature original turn-of-the-century poster art and graphics. Items will include vintage French music hall and travel posters from the 1890s, World War I broadsheets, a large selection of decorative sheet music and original Art Deco lithographs from the 1920s. The sale was organized by the Winchester-based Kezar Gallery. The Art Nouveau poster above was done by French artist Jean de Paleologue, who signed his posters "PAL" for the French bicycle manufacturing company La Francaise.

Flea Market Stops Parking At Jenks

There will be no parking allowed on the Town Hall Parking Lot (across the street from the Town Hall) from midnight, Friday, Sept. 24 until 4 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 25, because of the Winchester INTERACT Flea Market.

EXPLORERS — The Winchester Explorers are getting ready for another season. The scouts journeyed to Ohio last fall for a week to participate in the annual National Law Enforcement Explorers Convention. Winchester Police Sgt. James Pierce (l) headed the Explorers at the convention. Some of the participants were (l to r) Demetra Tseckares, Tom Struthers, Christine Dixon, Dan Perrineck, Jane Nadeau, Steven Brown and Mike Landry.

Law Enforcement Explorer Plans Tuesday Open House

The Winchester Police Law Enforcement Explorer Post will hold an open house meeting in the guard room of the police station on Tuesday, Sept. 27 at 7 p.m.

The Explorer Post is a co-ed group from 14 to 21 years of age who are interested in learning law enforcement and other related fields. Members are privileged to "hands on" training and experience in the areas of fingerprinting, photography, accident investigation, first aid, crime scene search and firearms.

Last year, the post attended the first National Law Enforcement Explorers Convention at Ohio State University. The Winchester group competed in several events and was awarded many commendations for their achievements.

Since their inception in 1976, the Explorers have provided assistance to the Police Department on several occasions. They helped with traffic control during the blizzard of 1978, helped monitor bike-a-thons for retarded citizens and conducted several street light surveys throughout the town.

Police officers assigned to work with the Explorers are Sgt. James R. Pierce, Officer John McKinley, Officer Paul DeLuca and Officer Eric Benson.

The Winchester Police Department invites all interested persons to attend the open house meeting. Parents are welcome. For further information, please contact Sgt. Pierce at the police station.

"It's our duty to bring the article before Town Meeting since the citizens came before us with at least 10 signatures.

"Placing an article on the warrant does not necessarily mean we are or are not in favor of it," he added.

The three members of the Winchester Citizens For A Mutual Weapons Freeze who came before the Board Monday night were convinced that the issue is a legitimate one for the town to consider for several reasons.

"During my lifetime in Winchester, no issue has affected me as much as the nuclear weapons freeze," said Richard Carr of Hillcrest pkwy. "I'm not really scared that my savings will be devalued due to inflation. I'm annoyed about crime, but I'm scared to death about a nuclear war.

"I'm terrified to know that at this very moment a Soviet missile is aimed to completely obliterate life on this planet," he continued. "It could well mean annihilation of humanity."

In addition to the seriousness and immediacy of the nuclear arms issue, the advocates of the article also noted that over 5,000 signatures were gathered on a freeze petition in Winchester and that 135 towns in the state including Belmont, Lexington and Lincoln, have adopted resolutions endorsing the freeze.

"Each of us must do what we can to stop and end the building of nuclear weapons," Carr said. "We must all let our leaders know that the stakes are too high to continue the arms race.

"We ask the selectmen to aid in whatever way you can to help bring about this article to Town Meeting," he concluded.

Although the selectmen did not strike the article from the warrant as they have the power to do to articles they feel should not be debated at Town Meeting, they were uncomfortable about keeping it there.

"This is an unusual article in that this does not relate to the immediate town affairs," Alan Macdonald said. "Town Meeting articles can be brought by 10 or more citizens, but we do have some discretion to see that the subjects pertain to Winchester."

Turning to Town Counsel Douglas Randall, he asked, "Is this a normal action for Town Meeting to consider?"

Randall pointed out that Town Meeting members usually only debate articles that have a direct impact on Winchester's municipal affairs.

"There is a basic requirement that Town Meeting action be concerned with matters within its jurisdiction," he said. "I'm at a loss to anticipate some action Town Meeting can effectively take on this. The subject doesn't lend itself easily to municipal affairs, but I suppose that it could be stated that any subject could be a subject of resolution.

Randall also noted that during the Viet Nam war, an article was placed on the warrant concerning American involvement in the war. Although the article was allowed to remain on the warrant, Harrison Chadwick, the moderator at that time, did not allow the article to be debated.

"If the Board of Selectmen place the article on the warrant, they sort of give an indication to the town that there is something the town can effectvely do about it," Randall said.

The selectmen noted that debate of the article would be precedent-setting for Winchester despite the fact that many surrounding communities have adopted resolutions endorsing a freeze.

"We must see whether we want to set precedent for debates about handguns, abortions, etc." Macdonald commented. "We must decide whether or not the issue is appropriate and if we want to bring this to Town Meeting where we could easily debate it for an evening without being able to bring about any effective action."

O'Connell said he thought a ballot vote would reflect the feeling of Winchester citizens more accurately than a Town Meeting endorsement.

"The voice of the community is more clearly obtained by the ballot, not at Town Meeting," he said. "Many times, a Town Meeting decision is overwhelmingly reversed by a ballot vote."

Saraco agreed that a ballot vote might be a better method of handling the issue and said he would back a communication to Washington advocating a freeze.

"If the people of Winchester want to send an official message to Washington, I as a selectmen would support it," he said.

Selectman John Williams said he felt the freeze issue might be appropriate for a debate on the floor of Town Meeting but he was afraid it might provoke debates about other topics that were not as important.

"I think it has to be brought to the attention of our national leaders and what better way than through the local forum," Williams said. "But there could be less important issues that could be brought through the same channel and we could have 10 other articles at Town Meeting."

Selectman Mark Lombardi said that he felt the issue could get out of hand.

"Last year, I asked for an article to be put on the warrant and the selectmen said no," Lombardi said. "It was important to me though. What's important to one person isn't important to others. If this article goes on, then my article should go on. And you can go on and on. I can see this going on a couple of nights."

Michael Sorgi of Squire rd., a member of the Winchester Citizens For A Mutual Weapons Freeze, stressed the uniqueness and importance of the arms issue. "I'd like to restate the seriousness of this issue," Sorgi said. "Not that Winchester should copycat other towns, but 135 towns thought this was so important an issue that they gave it their endorsement. We have a very unique issue."

"I am persuaded that other towns took action, but it's like our mothers always told us," Macdonald answered. "Just because every other kid goes to the party doesn't mean we have to. I'm concerned with debating an issue we have no authority over. But we could have a test case, I suppose."

★Fill

Health had already followed two of Hynes' suggestions — comparing the amount of fill brought in and removed, and visually inspecting the Amberwood sites.

And on Monday, the board voted to follow Hynes' third suggestion — to test the fill for its chemical content.

Quigley explained he had contacted the Weston Health Dept. and the town's executive secretary to the selectmen, and asked that they give Winchester an estimate of how much fill had been brought to the Weston landfill.

Weston's town engineer then counted and measured the piles of gray fill in his town, and estimated that 1,200 to 1,400 cubic yards of the gray clay had been brought from Winchester, according to Quigley.

The engineer noted, Quigley said, that less than 10 percent of the fill brought to Weston by Pittorino was material other than the gray clay.

Comparing the amount of fill taken out of Amberwood to the fill which was brought in was difficult, health officials noted, because no one kept track of the amount of fill which left the MBTA Alewife transit station construction site.

Quigley said that William St. Hilaire, regional environmental engineer for the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, estimated that 2,000 cubic yards of the gray clay had been brought to Winchester.

However, Quigley noted estimates of the amount of fill brought to Winchester ranged from 1,000 cubic yards to 2,000 cubic yards.

To further check if any clay fill remained at Amberwood, Weinstein said, he, Board of Health member Jeanne Thomas, Building Inspector Arthur Gallagher, Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia and Health Inspector Joanne Scott visited the site.

There, the town officials asked developer Pittorino to dig six trenches, varying in depth from 6 to 15 feet, with his company's backhoe.

"We didn't observe any of the gray clay in any of the trenches," Weinstein reported.

On Monday, Weinstein continued, he and Ed Palowski of DEQE went to Amberwood drive for a second check.

"Ed Palowski did a further test, which he called a sniff test," explained Weinstein. "He was actually smelling for naphthalene, one of the chmicals present in the contaminated fill.

"And indeed," Weinstein said, "he couldn't detect any odor."

Under pressure from the Amberwood residents, the Board of Health agreed to make one further test to see if the fill on Amberwood dr. is free of the gray clay.

The board will take three test borings on the Amberwood lots, and test those borings to see if they contain any of the EPA's 129 "priority pollutants."

A similar test of the clay fill in June led to the Board of Health's order to Pittorino to remove the fill. The test showed the fill contained traces of 16 chemicals on the "priority pollutants" list, many of which were known or suspected carcinogens.

However, Weinstein noted that the tests may prove inconclusive, because drillingout the test samples may pollute the fill.

Since many of the chemicals found in the original test of the fill were present in diesel oil, Weinstein explained, the drilling with heavy machinery may put those chemicals in the fill.

The testing of the fill will be done by Erco Labs in Cambridge, the same firm which analysed the clay fill in June, according to Quigley.

★Tests

when it first came in, Board of Health Chairman Lawrence Quigley began trying to shout him down, claiming his board acted as quickly as it could, and kept the health of the public as its top priority.

"If you keep talking, people are going to continue to be frustrated," Lovins shouted at Quigley. "These people want to hear what I have to say."

Quigley yielded to Lovins during the applause that followed the attorney's final statement.

"People think the only reason you're acting is because of this group," Lovins said, gesturing at the neighbors. "The only way you are going to end the frustration is to make this group privy to everything you know.

"What's happened is you do something, and they aren't aware of what you are doing," said Lovins. "Then you come back and tell the residents things they don't know whether to believe. Then there is going to be more frustration."

The frustration Monday night stemmed from the Board of Health's assurances that all the chemically contaminated fill had been removed from Amberwood dr. (see related story).

Residents wondered how the board could be so sure, when developer Felix Pittorino had brought in dozens of truckloads of fill and dumped it over the suspect gray clay.

Health officials said they had ordered Pittorino to dig trenches in the soil on the Amberwood lots, and could see no traces of the chemically contaminated gray clay.

But residents said that wasn't enough.

"If you saw the number of trucks that came in every day carrying the fill, and compared the amount of time they spent bringing it in and the time they took it out in, it's inconceivable that all the fill is out of there," said Edward Esposito of Johnson rd.

"We're telling you nowhere near the amount was going out that came in," said Esposito. "I'd want to think the Board of Health would do some chemical tests — not because of a public outcry, but because it's part of their job."

Board of Health member Jeanne Thomas said she felt the checks already used by the Board of Health to see if the fill was gone were enough.

Thomas, explaining her vote against further testing, said, "I was involved in all the visits to the site, all the labs, all the anxiety. And I find it unfortunate that what we have done as a board is not satisfying to you.

We didn't see any gray clay material," she said. "Mr. Pittorino took out enough of the gray clay that when we dug out the fill, we didn't see any gray clay.

"I feel my job was to see that there was no gray clay left on the site," she said. "I didn't see any gray clay. You people just don't want to believe there is no gray clay there."

But Cynthia Kazanjian, an Amberwood property owner, said it was not stubbornness on the part of the neighbors that made them disbelieve the board.

"You must realize we're here because we're scared," she said. "I don't want to sit in a hospital some day and see my neighbors' children die because all the fill was not removed.

"I don't feel your eyes are like microscopes — I don't think you can see gray clay buried under tons of other fill," she said. "You need to use a more scientific method.

"And you should say that 'Even though I feel there is nothing to worry about, we have to dispel those fears out there,'" concluded Kazanjian.

And that's what the Board of Health decided to do. Taking Lovins', Esposito's and Kazanjian's suggestions, they voted to run three tests of the fill remaining at Amberwood, and consult with the residents on the location of those tests.

Board Delays Adoption Of Fill Regs To Give Citizens Time For Review

The Board of Health has delayed adopting fill regulations designed, in part, to prevent material from hazardous waste dumps from ever coming into town again.

The board discussed its draft of fill regulations at its Monday meeting, but decided to wait on voting to adopt the regulations until residents could review the rules and suggest changes.

Under the regulations, which can be adopted by a vote of the Board of Health without a public hearing, anyone wishing to bring fill to town must obtain a permit.

If, when he receives the application for that permit, the health director discovers the fill is coming from near a hazardous waste dump, he can ban the fill, or require that it be tested at the applicant's expense.

One section of the proposed regulations, according to Health Director Steven Weinstein, excludes any fill from a hazardous waste site "from ground zero." Any fill coming from near a hazardous waste site may be banned and must be checked, he said.

Attorney Nelson Lovins of Thornberry rd. objected that the paragraph concerning fill from a hazardous waste site "makes no sense. It's not good English."

The paragraph reads, "No fill, as proposed by these regulations, shall consist of material including but not limited to any waste material from sanitary land fills, hazardous waste, land fills, dumps or industries generating hazardous waste, including areas distance from such sites as determined by the Board of Health."

Residents also questioned why the regulation did not ban fill from a specific distance around a site. Earlier drafts of the regulations, they noted, contained provision banning fill taken from within 100 yards of a hazardous waste site.

Board of Health Chairman Lawrence Quigley explained that "depending on the topography of the land, this is something we want to decide on an individual basis.

"It could be we want to ban fill for a quarter-mile around some areas, and we may desire, or need, to increase that up to a mile in other areas," said Quigley.

By leaving the distance open, the board would have to check out each hazardous waste site near a fill source, Quigley said.

"We would be in the position where we would have to go out and check," he said. "And it's important that we be in the position to say 'No' to any fill, regardless of the distance."

Residents also questioned the section of the regulations allowing the board to vary any provision of the regulation.

"I'm concerned this leaves a loophole for developers," said Kathy Winterer of Thornberry rd. "Is there any scenario where hardship would override public health?"

Quigley answered with a definite "No," and added the section was included to allow extensions to developers and give the board the flexibility to change the regulations later, if they were inadequate.

PLANNING BOARD
NOTICE OF
PUBLIC HEARING REGARDING ZONING BY-LAW AND MAP AMENDMENT

Notice is hereby given that the Winchester Planning Board will hold a public hearing on

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1982
at 7:30 P.M.

in the Board of Health Meeting Room, Basement, Town Hall, upon the proposal to amend the Zoning By-law and the Map incorporated therein as follows:

ARTICLE To see if the Town will vote to amend the Zoning By-law and map incorporated therein by changing land that is located between Main Street, Park Street, Elmwood Avenue and Vine Street, from an "Apartment House Residential District B (RB-20)" To a "Center Business District (CBD-2.0)", said parcels of land comprising about 1.5 acres and bounded and described substantially as follows:

EASTERLY by Main Street 368' plus or minus

SOUTHEASTERLY by the intersection of Main and Park Streets by a curve 35' plus or minus

SOUTHWESTERLY by Park Street 224' plus or minus

NORTHWESTERLY by Elmwood Avenue 277' plus or minus

NORTHERLY by Elmwood Avenue 94' plus or minus

and parcels of land bounded as follows:

EASTERLY by Main Street 131' plus or minus

SOUTHERLY by Elmwood Avenue 100' plus or minus

WESTERLY by land now or formerly Fells Realty Inc. 60' plus or minus

NORTHERLY by Vine Street 105' plus or minus

This amendment would change land that under present zoning only permits Group, Garden, Town House and Mid-rise apartments. Proposal would permit retail business and consumer service uses, as well as Multi-family and commercial uses in combination if secured under a special permit by the Board of Appeals.

ARTICLE To see if the Town will vote to change the Zoning By-Law by amending Section 6.28 Multiple Development Use (MD) Special Permit as follows:

A. Amend Subsection 6.284 (d) Submission of Final Plans by deleting the reference to subsection 1.2 and s.2 and substituting in place thereof 6.284 (c) and 6.28) (b). Section 6.284 (d) to now read as follows:

6.284 (d) Within thirty-five days of the receipt of the final plan from the Town Clerk, the Planning Board shall submit to the Board accompanied by the written recommendations noted in subsection 6.284 (c) a report discussing the feasibility of the project and its consistency with the purposes in 6.281 (b).

Purpose of this amendment is to correct the reference to sections that were remnants of earlier drafts of the by-law.

B. Amend Section 6.287 Permitted Uses by deleting in its entirety subsection A. 1. and 2. which presntly reads

A. Residential

1. Apartments, only on floors above the ground floor.

2. Condominiums, only on floors above the ground floor.

and substituting in place thereof the following:

A. Residential

1. Apartments, only on floors above the ground floor. However, in areas where the multi use project abuts a residential zone, apartments are allowed on all floors on the side of the parcel facing the residential zone.

2. Condominiums, only on floors above the ground floor. However, in cases where the multi use project abuts a residential zone, condominiums are allowed on all floors on the side of the parcel facing the residential zone.

Intent of the mixed use development is to allow for residential development on all floors in cases where the project abutted a residentail district. Purpose of this amendment is to correct the existing language so as to now allow the construction of an all residential facade.

Prior to the hearing plans and information may be viewed at the Planning Board-Engineering Office, Basement, Town Hall, 71 Mt. Vernon Street, Winchester, MA.

By order of the Winchester Planning Board this 13th day of September, 1982.

Sachem Pride!

WHS Wins Dalton Trophy For Best Div. 1 Overall Athletic Performance

Those who followed the fortunes of the Sachems and Sachemettes last season knew Winchester was Number One.

The girls' soccer team and the football team won Middlesex League championships. The boys' soccer team shared the EMass title.

The lacrosse team, both the boys' and girls' tennis squads, and the baseball team all made strong showings in state playoffs.

And the wrestlers, girl swimmers, and runners through all seasons fought to finish high in the league standings.

Everyone in Winchester knew the Sachems were number one — and now the rest of the state knows it too.

The Boston Globe awarded the Winchester High School teams the Ernest Dalton Memorial Trophy for Division 1, in recognition of the combined effort of all Winchester High teams.

In awarding the trophy, The Boston Globe weighs the combined win-loss records of every team in a school, along with the position each team finished in its league.

So without the effort of every one of Winchester High's athletes and coaches, who came up with a combined record of 201-96-12, Winchester wouldn't have taken the award.

"When you win a state championship, that's great," commented Athletic Director William Colella. "But this is for the whole program — everyone has a piece of it.

"This is a great thing for the community, all our people at the school, the School Committee, the coaching staff, the kids — everybody," Colella continued. "It's a combination of a terrific effort from everyone."

"All the coaches are ecstatic, the whole school is tremendously excited," added the athletic director. "It's a great thing for the school."

Colella noted that Winchester took the trophy this year despite the Prop. 2.5-inspired cuts to the athletic budget.

"When we made the decision a year ago last spring to make certain cuts in the programs, we didn't say 'It's too bad we have all those cuts, we don't have an athletic program left," said Colella. "We came back in September and did our job."

And that job finally brought the Dalton trophy to Winchester, after the award had eluded the Sachems since its inception in 1973.

Winchester had been in the top 15 finishers in the Dalton formula since 1973, and in the top 10 for the past few years. Last year, Winchester finished fourth.

Colella said that consistently high showing was due to support for athletes from the School Committee and the town.

"In my eight years here, the town has given me tremendous support, and allowed me to set some goals," said Colella. "I've always felt we had an outstanding program, but this caps it off."

In particular, Colella said, the town has been behind the move to bring more girls' sports to the playing fields of Winchester. And that paid off.

Coach Chris Scanlon, whose girls' soccer team boosted Winchester in the Dalton standings with its 15-0-0 record

Fall Tennis Tournament Champions Crowned

Neil Hurley and Diane Intravia both had to go the distance, but the results were the same.

These two oustanding players won the men's and women's singles titles for 1982 in the 53rd Fall Tennis Tournament.

Their matches were entirely different affairs. With both players coming up with brilliant shots under pressure.

Hurley started off dominating former singles champ Tom Dunn by pounding his short top spin strokes deep and finishing off points with tough volleys and crisp overheads.

Hurley breezed through the first set 6-1 and was up 5-1, 15-40 on Dunn's serve, when Tom came to life.

Holding off a couple of match points inspired Dunn to flawless tennis for the next five games.

Dunn started blasting his forehand strokes deep and pulled into a tie-breaker which he won 7-5.

After the match Hurley confessed he was upset with the turn of events. But decided to forget about the second set and go all out in the third.

This is what he did, taking the final set 6-2.

Dunn stated, "I really tried in the last set and couldn't keep up the pace."

Hurley, a semi-finalist the last two years, really wanted this title and proved worthy of his number one seeding.

In the women's singles final, Intravia found herself down 6-1, 5-2 with last year's champ, Calista Force, holding a match point.

"I just wanted to get it back and hope for the best," Intravia stated afterwards.

She not only held off the point but went on a roll to win the second set 7-5 and then flow through the third set 6-1.

Intravia started the match trying to blast winners from all over, which on a clay court is not the best tactic.

Once she settled down the match was a completely different story.

However, credit must be given to Calista who played outstanding tennis on both weekends and extended this high school junior to the limit before she bowed out.

The Women's Doubles found that the family that hits "rockets" forehands together also wins together.

Vicky and Lynn Robinson successfully defended their title with a tough 6-2, 3-6, 7-5 win over Mary Golden and Joan Byrne.

Golden and Byrne, who had a successful summer on the "Nelta Circuit" fought all the way, but when Lynn started finding the range with her powerful forehands, the championship went out of reach.

The Mixed Doubles found Vicky Robinson teaming up with Leo Lauretano to defend their 1981 title.

This they did with a 6-4, 7-5 victory over Dee-Dee and Bill Cunningham.

Asked what keyed the win, Lauretano replied, "I stay out of Vicky's way."

Leo may be Mr. Humble, but anyone who saw the match realized he more than held his own. This guy has one of the best crosscourt backhands in town.

Robinson and Lauretano reached the finals with a 4-6, 6-2, 6-1 win over Karen and Ted Martin.

The Cunninghams won their semifinal match, with a 7-5, 2-6, 6-3 win over

Soccer Team Goes Undefeated But Two Lost To Injuries

By DAVE LEECO

The Sachem soccer team was staggered this week by a season-ending injury to forward and tri-captain Chip Triglione, who suffered a broken leg in a collision with the Stoneham net minder Thursday.

But the team withstood the shock of Triglione's loss to begin an early season streak of three wins with victories over Stoneham and Watertown.

The two wins — a 5-0 shutout of Stoneham and a 4-1 drubbing of Watertown — pushed Winchester to the top of the Middlesex League as the only unbeaten team in the division.

But it wasn't a week for celebration.

Triglione was virtually the only experienced player on this year's Sachem squad. Last year, coach Gene Bouley used him off the bench with effectiveness. This year, Triglione was the player that coordinated his teammates efforts on the field.

And not only did the Sachems lose Triglione in the game against Stoneham, but they also saw Tom Funk knocked out for the season with a broken ankle.

The following Monday, during the Sachem's contest against Watertown, saw Bouley desperately shuffling players, hoping to find a combination that would make up for the loss of Triglione.

"We tried a couple of things," explained Bouley. "The one that seemed to work was to put Mark Herlihy back at center halfback and bring Kevin Skully up to the line."

Did it ever work. Skully scored three of the four Sachem goals in the game.

Neither the Stoneham or the Watertown showdown were tough contests for the Sachems — "In both games, we outmanned them," said Bouley. "We had more talent, so they were not extremely difficult games."

Winchester went wild against Stoneham after the injury to Triglione, which occurred early in the first quarter when he and the Stoneham goalie were both going for the ball. Triglione, the goalie and the ball all met at the same point, and Triglione ended up with both bones in his right leg broken.

Winchester scored twice in that first quarter after the injury to Triglione, with wingers Bob Anderson and Mike Driscoll putting the ball in the net.

It took until the third period for Winchester to tally again, with Driscoll picking up his second goal. Herlihy and Skully rounded out the scoring in the fourth quarter with one apiece.

Against Watertown on Monday, the Sachems were leading from beginning to end. Skully, relishing his opportunity to play forward, lead off the scoring in the first period, and picked up two more in the third and the fourth quarters.

Kevin Driscoll had the only other Sachem goal in the 4-1 rout, taking a pass from his brother, Mike, in the second quarter and booting it home.

But the scoring alone doesn't really tell the story of the two games. Anytime a team shuts out one opponent and lets in only one goal against another, it's the defense that deserves the credit for the wins.

And Bouley feels the heart of that defense over the last week has been

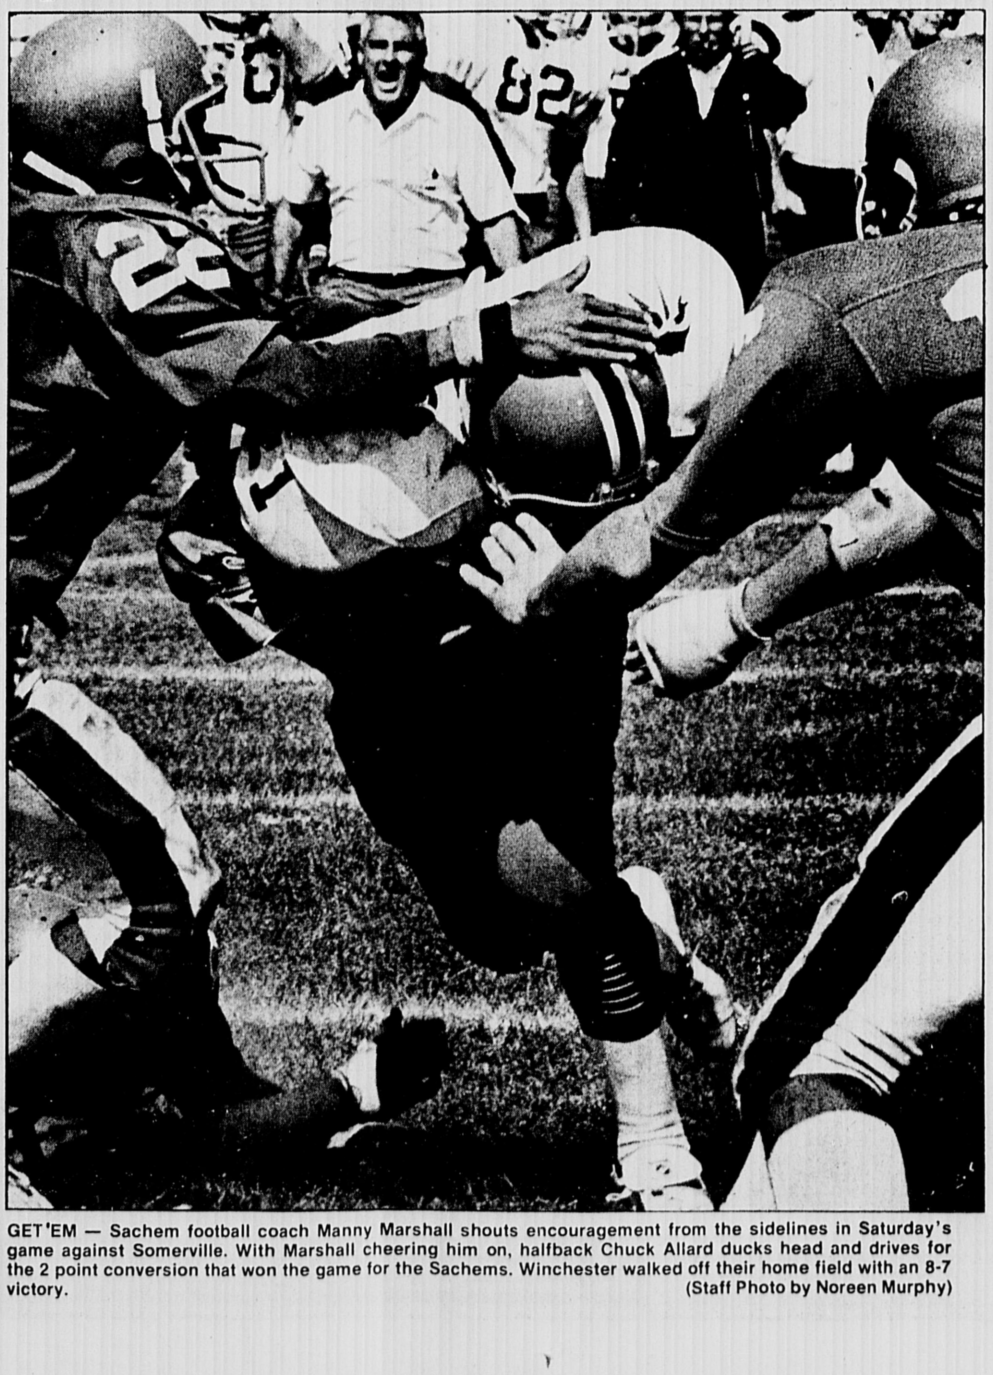
Squeaker



GET'EM — Sachem football coach Manny Marshall shouts encouragement from the sidelines in Saturday's game against Somerville. With Marshall cheering him on, halfback Chuck Allard ducks head and drives for the 2 point conversion that won the game for the Sachems. Winchester walked off their home field with an 8-7 victory.

Sachems Take 8-7 Squeaker

By DAVE LEECO

You could say the Sachems showed a lot of poise in their opening game against Somerville — enough poise to put together a game-winning touchdown drive with only four minutes left in the game.

You could say the Sachems executed their plays with a minimum number of errors — only one fumble and three penalties in the course of the game.

But you couldn't say the Sachems played a particularly good game.

Somerville may have looked inferior to the Sachems on paper, but on the field they out-hustled, out-defensed and out-thought last year's Middlesex League co-champs.

For three-and-a-half quarters, the Somerville defense stymied the Winchester running game, preventing the Winchester backs from getting outside on the "Sachem right-left" offense.

Winchester only threatened once in the first three quarters, just as the second half opened.

Winchester started the drive on its own 20. Chuck Allard and Chris Rogers combined to bring the Sachems up to their 41, and then Chris Cahill gave the pitch to Allard.

Allard took the ball up the right sidelines, barely outdistanced a half dozen Somerville backs, and was finally brought down at the Somerville 8-yard line.

Allard got the call again, and followed Tom Porell off the right tackle to the 3.

But when Allard got the call the third time, he fumbled the ball going through the middle to kill the Sachem drive.

Somerville didn't do too badly against the Sachem defense either, although they only hand one touchdown to show for it.

That touchdown came at the beginning of the fourth quarter, on a drive that started at the 3-yard line when Somerville recovered Allard's fumble.

Winchester almost stopped that drive in its infancy, as Somerville quarterback Peter Casparillo fumbled the ball. But the play was called back when tackle Tom Porell was called off-side.

A long pass put Somerville on Winchester's 34, and QB Casparillo brought the ball to the Winchester two-yard-line with a sweep up the left sideline. The touchdown came through the middle, and a successful kick (even though the Somerville holder bobbled the ball) put

Fall Sports Previews:

Most Of Championship Girls Soccer Team Returns For Shot At Fifth Straight Crown

The Sachemette soccer team players will be the ones to watch this fall.

"This is our fifth year, and in my feeling, it's the strongest team we've ever had," said coach Chris Scanlon. "I want your readers to know if they come out to see us play, they will see a brand of soccer they have rarely seen before.

"They are going to be entertained," said Scanlon. "They will see the type of passing and coordination of skills you don't see too often.

"It will be like soccer made in Germany," he added.

Now generally, this kind of pre-season hype can be easily dismissed as the rabid cheerleading of an overly enthusiastic coach. But not in this case.

Last year, the Sachemettes took the Middlesex League soccer championship for the fourth year in a row with an unblemished, undefeated and untied season.

And this year, most of that same invincible team is back to make it five years in a row.

"With all that experience coming back, it is very exciting to coach this team and anticipate the type of season that will be starting Friday," said Scanlon.

The starting line-up for the Sachemettes is full of names sure to send shudders up the spines of opponents. Seven of the 11 starters are returning veterans, and the rest are no slouches either.

Starting in goal will be Amy Peluso, one of the few players who didn't start regularly last year. She started half of the games, alternating with last year's captain Julie Sullivan.

At sweeper back will be Camille Ducharme, who must step into the shoes of all-scholastic Ann Hitchcock, a 1981 graduate. But, Scanlon said, Ducharme is doing "an excellent job" filling those shoes.

At the two fullback positions will be tri-captain Karen Rahmeier on the left and on the right, Kristen MacNamara, a player with "outstanding skill and speed," according to Scanlon.

The defense will be rounded out by stopperback Sarah Richardson, who didn't start last year because of a knee injury, but "looks to be in fine form" in the eyes of her coach.

Richardson will be the key to a new wrinkle in the Sachemette defense this year. The defensive ranks were increased from three players last year to four, with stopperback "plugging up the middle" when Scanlon's halfbacks are on offense.

The extra defensive player came from robbing the halfback ranks, but Scanlon isn't worried that two halfbacks, rather than three, will be too few.

"This year we have two halfbacks that can do the job of any three players — Maria Montouri, an all-scholastic the past two years, and Paula Russo," explained Scanlon.

"Paula and Maria can share the duties of three players easily," said Scanlon. "Maria is strength and finesse together, and Paula exhibits speed and finesse. They're quite a combination to watch."

"Those girls are as fast a pair of wings as you can probably find," said Scanlon. "They're just like two jets (jet wings?), and that's how we're going to use them.

"They'll tire out a lot of fullbacks this year," added Scanlon.

For the strikers, the real scoring position, Scanlon has two of the best. Mich Powers led the league in scoring (including assists) last season, and Kim Donlon led the league in goals.

Behind those starters will be the smallest squad Scanlon has had in five years. Curiously, it is also the deepest.

"This year I made an effort to find two girls for every position, so the backup would be just as strong as the starter," said Scanlon. "It's been my goal for five years, and this year I came about as close as I can.

"I'll have no fear of substituting this year," continued Scanlon. "We'll be able to run people into the ground."

Nearly every one of his backups, asserted Scanlon, would be starters on any other team in the league.

Kathy Leonard will be the alternative in goal, while sweeperbacks Christine Franchi and Karen Twichell, fullbacks Julie Conley and Patty Taylor, and stopperback, Paula Riccardelli will spell the defense.

Backing up Montouri and Russo will be Liz Rowley and Theresa Ducharme.

The backup wings will be Terry MacDonald and Patty Riccardelli, one of the team's tri-captains. Completing the offensive second unit will be strikers Laurie Schwerin and Laura Accardo.

With a strong second squad ready to sub for an even stronger starting line-up, Scanlon will be able to run opponents ragged and keep control of the games.

"We're going to play possession soccer — we're going to possess the ball a lot longer than any other team," said Scanlon. "And the result will be a lot of scores, and a lot of fun."

Sounds like the best show in town, and free at Leonard Field.

The only hitch is, the Sachemettes won't be playing at home until Oct. 7, when they take on Burlington at 3:30. That will be followed by a 10:30 a.m. Saturday home game against Newton North.

Sachemette Swimmers' Talent Balance Will Help Against Rough Competition

The Winchester High girls swimmers will be facing another tough season this year in their super-competitive division.

Lexington and Belmont are always difficult opponents, and Acton-Boxboro is a virtual powerhouse, coming off an undefeated season last year.

But coach Vin Palumbo thinks he has a squad which can win in the division, with a well-rounded team that can compete in the distance events, the sprints and the middle distances.

"The only team we probably can't compete with is Acton-Boxboro, commented Palumbo. "But our swimmers can probably win against any other team.

"We're not as large in numbers as some teams (the girls' squad has 19 swimmers this year), but the quality is there, continued Palumbo. "We're going to make a serious effort."

Palumbo feels he's got strong swimmers in every event — "We've got distance swimmers, we've got butterflyers. It's a fairly well-rounded squad," he said.

Leading the pack will be junior tri-captain Ann McCann swimming the breast stroke. "She'll probably be the best in the league this year," Noted Palumbo.

One of the other tri-captains, Sheryl Powers, will also anchor the team in the backstroke and the distance events.

"Sheryl can swim anything — the backstroke, the distance — and she'll be very competitive," said Palumbo.

Palumbo was also glad to see sprinter Debbie Twitchell back on his squad. Twitchell left the Sachemette swimmers halfway through the season last year to concentrate on her school work.

"This year she's going to make a serious effort, explained Palumbo. "She has a lot of potential — she'll be a sprinter in the 50 and 100 freestyle."

Junior Gail Minutoli and sophomore Hannah Riley will also help out the Sachemette squad, swimming the middle distances.

One questionable event will be the diving, as last year's diver Michelle Patti, who came in third in the sectionals, will be out after surgery this summer.

But Patti has been coaching the Sachemette's new diver, Cindy Sizemore, and Palumbo said Sizemore has shown a great improvement.

Rounding out the Sachemette swimmers will be senior tri-captain Tracy Caulfield and senior Alison Webster; juniors Martha Coakley, Greta Rosenberger and Caroline Hackett; sophomores Mary Pursell, Lisa Greco, Jane Ward and Daru Fitzgerald; and freshmen Mary Ward, Kathy McGee and Maura Dobbins.

Winchester got a late start on practice this season — while other teams were in the water by Aug. 30, the Winchester swimmers couldn't get into their home pool at Northeast Voke until Sept. 14.

But the Sachemette schedule will allow the girls to be peaking by the time they meet Acton-Boxboro Oct. 19 just when Palumbo wants them to be at their best.

"We'll have a very effective team by then, commented Palumbo, "I told the girls that as long as they give me 100 percent, that's all I can ask for."

Cross Country Team Has Talent At Top But Depth Questions Remain

By DAVE LEECO

Cross country coach Joe Cantillon has no fear that a Winchester High runner won't finish first in the pack at any meet this season.

After all, Cantillon has some of the top runners in the state racing for both his girls' and boys squads this year.

The girls' squad can count on the inestimable Laurie Glynn to bring them a first place, while the boys have sure winners in Barry Sirchis and Bill Derry.

But coming in first in a cross country race doesn't necessarily mean winning the meet. Cross country meets are scored by the positions of the top five finishers on each team, so Cantillon must have five good runners going for each squad.

"That's why you need five solid runners," explained Cantillon. "You can take the top two places in a meet and still lose it."

With the cross country season beginning tomorrow, when the harriers take on arch-rival Reading, Cantillon is still wondering who on his squads will fill out the top five spots.

Both the girls' and the boys' squads are made up primarily of underclassmen, as several senior runners on both teams decided not to run this fall.

"That leaves a lot of the responsibility and the pressure on a group of younger runners," said Cantillon. "Basically the outlook for both teams is that when we're healthy, we have some really good people up front, and the question is whether we can develop the depth behind them."

The girls' squad is in a slightly better position than the boys coming in.

"We have a group of four girls who have done a great deal of running in the past year, and I think they have improved significantly," said Cantillon.

Leading the girls' pack is, of course, Laurie Glynn. "Anytime she steps on the line, you know you have the best in the state up there," commented Cantillon.

Unfortunately, Glynn won't be stepping up to the line for the first few meets. Cantillon explained that Glynn is suffering from a recurring knee injury, caused by too much stress and overwork.

But Cantillon added, with a couple of weeks' rest and relaxation, the knee and Glynn should be back in form.

Behind Glynn are junior Barbara Ahern and three sophomores — Beth Nowell, Laura Miller and Diane Aronson.

"They are the core of the team, they have done the most running and are in the best shape," said Cantillon. "All five runners are very much into running, and have done a lot in the past year."

But those five runners — Glynn, Ahern, Nowell, Miller and Aronson — won't be enough to get the Sachemettes through the season. Especially with Glynn hurt, and Aronson slowed down with a slight injury.

"The problems we are facing is trying to develop a little more depth, trying to get the other girls in shape, and trying to avoid injuries," explained Cantillon.

Cantillon has his eye on two other Sachemette harriers to fill out the six and seven spots on the team — senior Laura Carlson and freshman Heather Innes.

And there are another seven girls on the squad who Cantillon said "we hope will develop as the season goes on" — Marilyn Mueller, Michelle Dixon, Kathy Ferry, Maryanne Murray, Debbie Brown, Alison Hagge and Maria Doocey.

"It's a matter of time, patience and a lot of running," commented Cantillon on building those newer runners.

On the boys' squad, said Cantillon, "we're in sort of a similar situation as with the girls.

"We have two juniors who are among the best in the league — Barry Sirchis and Bell Derry," he explained. "both are sub-9:40 two-milers, which is a very, very good time.

"Unfortunately, behind them we have some real problems, the coach added. We're dealing with a lot of really young people. A couple of seniors who we expected to run didn't and that really threw a monkey wrench into our depth charts.

But things aren't quite that bad, Cantillon added. "As it is, we have a couple of seniors who hopefully will be able to step in and keep up the pace," he said.

Peter Quine and Terry Skahan will probably follow Sirchis and Derry on the depth charts, as will Steve Meyers if he can recover from a knee injury.

Cantillon is also looking for good times from a couple of juniors — Gary Ducharme and Tim Conley.

And having a large group of freshmen on the team isn't all bad, Cantillon pointed out.

"Probably one of the good things as far as the guys are concerned is the number of freshmen who came out for the team, he said. "It's the largest group I've seen in a long time — I don't mean millions, but we have eight.

"If they can really get involved and continue their enthusiasm over the next couple of years, we can really develop a good core of runners," he explained.

Freshmen David Bonner, Dave Della Grotte, Alan Doumit, John Jordan, Hank Lynch, Peter Mulvaney, Scott Oliveri and Dave Salvatelli will all be watched closely by Cantillon this season to see how they progress.

Whether that group can start their high school cross country career with a winning season will depend on healed knees, an injury-free season, and on an outstanding effort from those younger runners.

SCORE — Sachem Chuck Allard was a hero in Saturday's close battle against Somerville. Allard's 2-point conversion gave Winchester the winning points with only a minute and one half remaining in the game. After Allard's close points, the Sachem's took the victory, 8-7.

Sachemette Field Hockey Team Drops To Stoneham And Ties Watertown

The Sachemette field hockey team came just shy of two wins this week, dropping their second of the year to Stoneham, 1-0, last Thursday and coming up with a 1-1 tie against Watertown Tuesday.

The Sachemettes just missed getting their first win of the young season against Watertown.

The Winchester squad led the contest 1-0 through three-quarters of the game, after Karen Brown scored in the first five minutes of the contest.

But halfway through the second half, Watertown tied it. And the Sachemette offense, gutted by the loss of tri-captain Beth Miara, couldn't come up with another score.

Lacking Miara, who missed the game due to illness, coach Patti Ryser was forced to go with a less experienced player. "That kind of hurt us," Ryser commented.

Brown kept the ball moving in front of the Watertown net, but the Sachemettes couldn't seem to find the handle. Neither could Watertown, for that matter.

Kim Pierce, playing halfback, rarely let the ball into Sachemette territory, keeping the play in the middle of the field. And goalie Lisa Wiley kicked out six shots before being fooled in the waning minutes of the game.

The Sachemettes were less impressive against Stoneham. The aggressive offense that characterized the Watertown game just wasn't there.

Some of the Sachemettes' aggressiveness was beaten out of them by a very aggressive and very physical Stoneham team. "We got batted," said Ryser. "It was a very physical game."

It was not a shooting game. The Sachemettes and the Spartans had only six shots each. Unfortunately, one of those Stoneham shots counted.

"There really weren't that many shots one way or the other," noted Ryser. "When two teams are pretty much the same, the play tends to go back and forth, back and forth."

If that's the case, the two teams were pretty much the same. Most of the game was played at midfield.

Ryser is hoping for her first win this week when the Sachemettes take on Melrose.

She'll be drilling her girls on their passes and their movement in preparation for the game, hoping the aggressiveness the girls displayed Monday will bring in some goals.

Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council To Enter Third Phase Of Property Plan

Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council has entered the third phase in the implementation of its Comprehensive Property Plan. The purpose of the plan is to redistrubute assets of the organization in order to meet the changing needs of the girls it serves.

Over the past year, the council through a board-appointed Implementation Task Force has been working toward disposal of the sites which were not retained in the plan, including Camp Joy on South Border rd.

In its charge to the task force, the board committed itself to the following property sale process:

First: determine the effect property disposition will have on the community in which it is located; second, evaluate the marketability of each piece of property; third: balance all factors (budgets, price and time; to assure that the Girl Scout community and community-at-large realize as much benefit as possible from property disposition.

The council has been contacted by interested neighborhood as well as environmental and community organizations, expressing their interest and concern in the future disposition of the proeprty.

The Patriots' Trail Council has taken a leadership role in working with these community groups with a view towards achieving an equitable solution before considering a broader marketing of the property.

All revenues from the property sales will be used to develop and expand program sites which have been retained. For information contact the council at 6 St. James ave., Boston.

last year, agreed that "having girls' sports is behind us being as strong as we are".

"One of the strengths Winchester has is the girls teams," said Scanlon. "That's not to put down the boys — they've performed. But the girls have done an excellent job.

"The participation and skill level of the girls is very high, and in many sports the girls, in particular, do very, very well," Scanlon said. "This is where we rise to the occasion."

Colella also noted that the Winchester teams had managed to cop the Dalton trophy despite the school's small size in comparison to other Division 1 schools.

"We're probably down in the bottom tenth in enrollment, but we've been at the top of the Dalton standings year after year," said Colella.

Coach Gene Bouley, whose lacrosse and soccer squads came up with winning seasons to push the Sachems up in the Dalton standings, noted that cooperation between the coaches kept participation in athletics high.

"My feeling is that part of the reason we were able to win it is because we kind of share the athletes," said Bouley. "Instead of saying, 'You can't play any other sport,' we like to see our athletes playing every season.

"There are only so many athletes to go around, and that means they always have to be playing," continued Bouley. "If you had one-sport athletes at this school, you could never take the trophy. But most of the players go out for three or four sports."

All the coaches were bursting with the news they had helped win the trophy. And all agreed the citizens of Winchester should take pride in the award.

"Not only do I coach here, I once taught here and I live in this town," said Scanlon. "I feel very proud, and every citizen of Winchester should feel proud.

"Winchester High School represented the town as well as it could do athletically."

Sue Cowen and Tom Dunn.

Although the Men's Doubles Final was a rout, with defending champs Chris Scanlon and Vandy French blitzing Parker Gray and Neil Hurley 6-2, 6-2, the Men's Doubles had some wild moments.

In one of the wildest matches ever, Marco Cosentino and Ralph Bates stretched Scanlon and French 6-4, 4-6, 7-5 before bowing out in the quarters.

Not too many teams show up for the warm-ups with matching shirts and pipes, but if you know Ralph Bates, anything goes.

Bates and Cosentino then proceeded to use more formations than the Dallas Cowboys, including one with Cosentino ducking while Bates served over his head!

Using lobs and dinks, they disrupted the rhythm of the super-agressive French and Scanlon, right up to the last two games.

The defending champs would not be denied, and down the stretch proved too tough.

Vandy and Chris bested Peter Svahn and Steve Powers in the semi-finals 4-6, 6-1, 6-4 to reach the finals.

The other semi-final found last year's finalist Hurley and Gray, beating Bill Wolfe and Alex Popp 6-2, 7-6.

Wolfe and Popp reached the semi-finals for the second straight year, but still came up three bricks shy of a load in the tie-breaker, losing 7 points to 4.

The match did feature the best shot of the tourney, a 180-degree, behind-the-back, turnaround by Wolfe off an overhead, for a winner.

The finals found French and Scanlon cruising to an easy win.

Parker Gray said it all, "We just couldn't get into the match."

For Chris and Vandy, this was their third title in the last four years. Saying that these guys are tough is an understatement.

Hurley and Gray are certainly a better team than the score indicated, but a combination of the champions' outstanding play and sub-par shotmaking undid them.

In the Senior Men's Final, Charlie Watson, after a three-year hiatus, came back to win the title with a 7-6, 6-4 win over Jack Corf, who won it last year.

Corf, exhausted by outlasting Hank Skehan, the day before, just couldn't play the big points that well.

The tournament hosts, Lynn and Don Robinson, wish to give special thanks to the umpires who officiated the finals for their outstanding effort.

The umpiring team consisted of USTA official Larry Smith, Cynthia Daley, Dick Kadesch, Bob Pritchard and Roberta McNamara.

Special thanks to Maureen and Richie Rowe for handling the trophies and awards. To Pat Bonnell for her photography and excellent photo collage on display during the matches. Also a thank-you to Linda and Alex Popp for handling the publicity and finally, to Whit Gray, a big thank-you for another great summer of tennis. Long may you run.

Badminton Club 50th Year

The Winchester Badminton Club will officially begin its golden anniversary year when it opens its 1982-83 season on Tuesday, Oct. 5.

President E.W. Gray invites the general public to drop by the McCall Junior High School gymnasium any Tuesday or Thursday night between 7:30 and 10 and join in this exciting indoor racquet sport. For a nominal fee, players can enjoy two-and-a-half hours of helpful exercise and good fellowship.

For those who are not familiar with the game, indoor badminton is totally unlike the summertime backyard version of the sport. The equipment is different and the play is far more challenging. Players of all levels of experience are encouraged to participate.

For further information, call Whit Gray, Kenwin rd., Al Kajander, Symmes rd., Bob Gallant, Laurel Hill ln., Tom Dunn, Washington st., or Mark Totman, Lorena rd., all of whom are members of the year's governing board.

Somerville up 7-0.

Even though the rest of Somerville's offensive efforts didn't bring them any points, Somerville QB Casparillo mixed up his play with awesome effectiveness, running tailback Warren Chaille when the Sachem D expected a pass, and passing when they were expecting Chaille.

And most importantly, Somerville was able to shut down the key to Winchester's defense — tackle and co-captain Tom Porell. For most of the game, Somerville's Sal Pino kept Porell out of the action.

But neither the Somerville offense or the Somerville defense could stop Winchester for the entire game.

With 4:49 left in the contest, and Winchester behind 7-0, a Chris Cahill punt left Somerville on their own 2-yard line. The Sachem D hunkered down and allowed Somerville only five yards before forcing the punt.

With under four minutes to play, Winchester set up on its 46.

On first down, the Sachems tried something fancy. Cahill, at quarterback, flipped the ball to Chuckie Allard, who fired a 20-yard pass to end Steve Macdonald.

The play failed — the ball bounced out of the Somerville cornerback's hands, into MacDonald's hands and out again, and to the ground.

But it did confuse the Somerville defense, which had been reading Winchester's offense like a first-grade primer all day. The Somerville D didn't know what to expect next.

What they got was another pass, this time from Chris Cahill, and this time complete. Robbie MacDonald, hustling down the sideline, caught the ball on the Somerville 36 for the first down.

On first and 10, Cahill flipped the ball back to Chris Rogers, coming across the backfield from right to left. Rogers, a 6-foot, 185-pounder, powered up the left sideline to the 18, putting the Sachems within reach of the goal and the win.

The Sachems didn't let up. Coach Manny Marshall sent in Pat Murray at halfback, and Murray responded with a 15-yard scramble down the right sideline, leaving the Sachems just 15 feet from the goal line.

Chuckie Allard made the first stab at getting the Sachem's first touchdown of the season, but he was stopped in the middle at the line of scrimmage.

But on the next play, with only 1:49 left to go, Cahill took the ball in over the middle to put the Sachems within one, 7-6.

With the Winchester fans (who outnumbered their Somerville counterparts) screaming in the stands, Allard ran the ball right, broke a tackle just feet from the goal line, and went in for the two-point play.

That was it for Somerville. With only 1:32 left to play, Casparillo tried to run a wide-open offense. He got to the Winchester 42 with a 12-yard-pass, but saw his next three throws broken up.

And on fourth down, Porell proved you couldn't keep him out of a game entirely. He ended Somerville's chances with a sack on the 22-yard line.

center fullback Chris Guarnotta.

"Chris has been exceptionally good," said Bouley. "He's held that defense together, and he's so consistant at taking the balls away from the opponents."

Netminder John Shirley also earned a plaudit from Bouley.

"John is doing a very solid job in goal," the coach commented. "Other than that mistake on the first goal of the season, he hasn't made any errors."

Despite the winning streak, Bouley is not quite satisfied with the way his charges have been playing. The Watertown game, he said, was played sloppily by Winchester, with a few missed passes and opportunities.

"We're working on trying to move the ball to the opposite side of the field where there are scoring opportunities — we're keeping it too much in one area," said Bouley. "And we've got to work on better communication on the field between players."

If the Sachems can take the crest of the Middlesex League without communicating, the rest of the league can hang it up when they do begin talking.

Board Of Health Sponsors Free Clinics For Vaccinations

The Winchester Board of Health is sponsoring free influenza and pneumococcal vaccinations at clinics being held on Wednesday, Sept. 29, from 9:30 a.m. to noon and Thursday, Oct. 28, from 9:30 a.m. to noon at the Jenks Senior Center.

Influenza virus infections occur every year in the United States but vary greatly in incidence and geographic distribution. Infections may be asymptomatic, or they may produce a spectrum of manifestations ranging from mild upper-respiratory infection to pneumonia and death.

Annual vaccination is strongly recommended for all persons (children and adults) who are at increased risk of adverse consequences from infections of the lower respiratory tract because of a pre-existing medical condition.

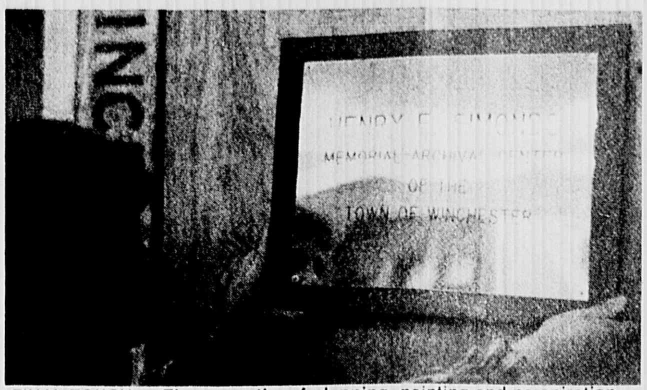
Conditions predisposing to such increased risk include: Acquired or congenital heart disease with actual or potentially altered circulatory dynamics (e. g. mitral stenosis, congestive heart failure, or pulmonary vascular overload); any chronic disorder or condition that compromises pulmonary function (e.g. chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, bronchiectasis, heavy smoking, tuberculosis, severe asthma, cystic fibrosis, neuromuscular and orthopedic disorders with impaired ventilation, residual pulmonary dysplasia following the neonatal respiratory distress syndrome);

Also, chronic renal disease with azotemia or nephrotic syndrome; diabetes renal disease with azotemia or nephrotic syndrome; diabetes mellitus or other metabolic diseases that increase the risk that infections will be more severe than for persons without such conditions; chronic, severe anemia, such as sickle cell disease; conditions that compromise the immune mechanism, including malignancies and immunosuppressive therapy;

Vaccination is also recommended for all older persons particularly those 65 years old, because risk of death during influenza outbreaks generally increase with age.

Pneumococcal infection is a leading cause of death throughout the world and a major cause of pneumonia, meningitis, and otitis media. It is estimated that there are annually 200,000 to 1,000,000 cases of pneumoccal pneumonia in the United States and between 13,200 and 66,000 deaths resulting there from. A relatively new vaccine is available which offers substantial protection and lasts at least five years.

Pneumonia vaccine should be given to all person 55 years of age or older or in the following categories: Persons having chronic physical conditions such as chronic heart disease, chronic disease of the lungs and bronchi (air passages), chronic kidney failure, or diabetes mellitus; Persons who have had a splenectomy; Persons in chronic care facilities; Persons convalescing from severe diseases.



FINAL TOUCH — Three months of planning, painting and perspiration have made the re-opening of Winchester's Archival Center possible. Now called the Henry E. Simonds Archival Center in honor of the late town historian, the center has been remodeled and is ready for the open house scheduled for Sept. 30. Gail Crosby, the daughter of Henry Simonds and a member of the Historical Commission hung up the final touch to the new center — a plaque bearing the name of the Archives in honor of Henry Simonds.

Henry E. Simonds Archival Center To Reopen Sept. 30

Residents may join the Winchester Historical Commission and the Winchester Historical Society Sept. 30 in reopening the Henry E. Simonds Archival Center of the town of Winchester at the Carriage House, 15 High st.

Following a design originated by Phyllis Cree of the Historical Society, members of the society, the commission and friends of the archives applied paint, moved furniture, built shelves, and gave the archives a much needed facelift.

Interested historians, genealogists, lovers of folklore , and the curious may see the results on Sept. 30 from 7-9 p.m. during an open house to reopen the Simonds Archival Center to the citizens of Winchester.

Under the auspices of the town of Winchester and the Historical Commission an Historical Serives Coordinator will be available to help people utilize the materials in the archives. The coordinator will be helped by volunteers from the Historical Society and the commission and will have the responsibility for helping the public use the archives to the fullest.

Old friends of the archives can come to see the new look, and those new to the archives, may see the wealth of material available.

Research the age of your house, look at genealogies, see old copies of The Winchester Star and other newspapers, enjoy artifacts, view pictures of Winchester's past, and enjoy the comaraderie of kindred spirits. After Sept. 30, the center will be open on Wednesday from 1-4 p.m. and on Thursday evenings from 7-9.

59 Youths Volunteer At Hospital This Summer

Fifty-nine young people from Winchester were among the 114 youths from area towns who contributed their time and services to Winchester Hospital as Junior Volunteers this past summer.

"Practically every department in the hospital benefitted from the services of these dependable volunteers," said Phyllis Hollinshead, director of volunteer services at the hospital.

During the summer, tasks performed by Junior Volunteers included stocking carts with hospital supplies and delivering the supplies to the nursing units, serving coffee to patients, working in the hospital's coffee shop and staffing the registration desk in the Patients' Lobby.

"The work that these Juniors did for the hospital was invaluable," Hollinshead said. "The experience was also rewarding to them, as they learned valuable traits of dependability and cooperation."

Winchester residents who served as Junior Volunteers at Winchester Hospital during the summer are:

Alicia Angeles, Chris Abrams, Melissa Barger, Cory Barger, Christine Cortina, Cheryl Dewar, Lisa Dewar, Natalie Dickson, Alexa Dulchinos, Debbie Daugherty, Pam Dizio, Tricia Farrell, Kathleen Ferry, Kenise Finneran, Joan Fiore;

Kim Grano, Michelle Gibson, Melissa Grigorieff, Caryn Guarino, D'Este Hanson, Patty Holloran, Marianne Hoffman, Tracy Johnson, Kate Johnson, Holly Johansen, Stephanie Kelley, Anne Keyes, Tina Lane, Zoe Layden, Mary Ellen McCarthy;

Suzzanne Mahoney, Margaret Mathson, Heather McCleery, Melanie Maher, Linda McCall Bart Mallio, Anne Milburn, Laura Miller, Patty O'Brien, Sarah Parker;

Leann Papas, JoAnn Perritano, Sheryl Powers, Suzanne Quill, John Riley, Linda Rossettos, Carol Reinhardt, Holly Shepard, Karen Selvitelli, Melissa Shaw, Janice Sacca;

And, Diane Struthers, Diane Turcotte, Jennifer Ulwick, Annmarie Venuti, Marie Ward, Elizabeth Wechsler, Sharon White, Debbie Wright.

CONGRATULATIONS — Bringing flowers and good cheer, Winchester residents Carol Reinhardt (l), D'Este Hanson (c) and Cory Barger (r) congratulate Gail Murphy of Haverhill for the birth of her son. The three girls were junior volunteers at Winchester Hospital this summer.

SHERIFF'S SALE
The Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Middlesex, ss., December 4, A.D. 1981

Taken on execution and will be sold by public auction, on Wednesday, the thirteenth day of October A.D., 1982 at three o'clock P.M., at my office, 99 First Street in Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, all the right, title and interest that Robert J. Piazza and Marilyn F. Piazza of Winchester in said County of Middlesex, had (not exempt by law from attachment or levy on execution) on the ninth day of October A.D. 1981, at ten o'clock and fifty minutes, a.m., being the time when the same was taken on execution in and to the following described real estate, to wit:

Parcel 1

The land in said Winchester, being shown as Lot 2 on "Plan of Land in Winchester, Massachuetts, owned by C. B. Westgate and C. A. Prest," dated September 14, 1963, Albert A. Miller and Wilbur C. Nylander, Civil Engineers and Surveyors, recorded with Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds in Book 10687, Page 390.

Lot 2 is bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHERLY by the curve of Fox Hunt Lane, fifty (50) feet;

SOUTHWESTERLY by Lot 1 as shown on said plan, one hundred seventy-two and 56-100 (172.56) feet;

NORTHWESTERLY by land of Edward Nahigian, seventy-eight (78) feet and by land of Winchester Country Club Trust, thirty-five and 84-100 (35.84) feet, as shown on said plan;

NORTHEASTERLY by land of said Winchester Country Club Trust, sixty-two and 48-100 (62.48) feet;

NORTHWESTERLY again by said land of Winchester Country Club Trust, seventy-nine and 23.100 (79.23) feet;

EASTERLY by Lot 3 as shown on said plan, one hundred ninety-one and 18-100 (191.18) feet.

Containing 22,274 square feet of land, according to said plan.

Together with the right to use said Fox Hunt Lane in common with others entitled thereto for all purposes for which streets and ways are commonly used in said Town of Winchester and also subject to a right to use the municipal services under said Fox Hunt Lane.

Said premises are conveyed subject to a taking by the Town of Winchester dated May 28, 1974, recorded with Middlesex South Deeds Book 12638, Page 566.

Said premises are also conveyed subject to restrictions and easements of record, if any there be, insofar as the same are now in force and applicable, to the taxes assessed for the current year, and to the building laws and zoning laws of the Town of Winchester.

Parcel 2

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated in Winchester, said Middlesex County, Massachusetts and designated as Lot No. 3, Fox Hunt Lane as shown on a plan drawn by Albert A. Miller and Wilbur C. Nylander, Civil Engineers and Surveyors, being plan number 1350 of 1964 recorded with Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds in Book 10687, page 390, and bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHWESTERLY by Fox Hunt Lane, fifty (50 feet;

WESTERLY by Lot 2 as shown on said plan, one hundred ninety-one and 18-100 (191.18) feet;

NORTHWESTERLY by land of Winchester Country Club Trust as shown on said plan, one hundred (100) feet;

NORTHEASTERLY by said land of Winchester Country Club Trust, one hundred fifty-six and 74-100 (156.74) feet;

EASTERLY by said land of Winchester Country Club Trust, twenty-six and 80-100 (26.80) feet;

NORTHEASTERLY again by land of said Winchester Country Club Trust, forty-one and 31-100 (41.31) feet;

SOUTHEASTERLY by Lot 4 as shown on said plan, two hundred thirty and 61-100 (230.61) feet.

Containing 38,014 square feet of land, according to said plan.

Together with the right to use said Fox Hunt Lane in common with others entitled thereto for all purposes for which streets and ways are commonly used in said Town of Winchester and also subject to a right to use the municipal services under said Fox Hunt Lane. Said premises are also conveyed subject to restrictions and easements of record, if any there be, insofar as the same are now in force and applicable, to the taxes assessed for the current year, and to the zoning laws and building laws of the Town of Winchester.

PLANNING BOARD
NOTICE OF
PUBLIC HEARING REGARDING ZONING MAP
AMENDMENT

Notice is hereby given that the Winchester Planning Board will hold a public hearing on

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1982
at 7:30 P.M.

at the Vinson-Owen School, 75 Johnson Road, Winchester, MA. upon the petition to amend the Zoning By-law and the Map incorporated therein as follows:

ARTICLE

To see if the Town will vote to amend its zoning by-law and zoning map which is incorporated therein (which was adopted by vote of the Town Meeting on October 29, 1973, and became effective on June 28, 1974, as amended) by establishing a Planned Residential District as defined in said zoning by-law at the parcel of land hereinafter described and amending said map accordingly, or take any other action relative thereto, said land being bounded and described as follows:

EASTERLY by Wainwright Road 323' plus or minus;

SOUTHERLY by land now or formerly Stavros & Ekaterini Natsis 246' plus or minus;

EASTERLY and SOUTHERLY in several courses by land now or formerly said Natsis, Michael & Donna Nicolaro and Willliam B. and Kate R. Latta 649' plus or minus;

EASTERLY by Wainright Road 97' plus or minus;

SOUTHERLY, EASTERLY, and NORTHERLY in several courses by land now or formerly William J. and Martha R. Fuller 459' plus or minus;

NORTHEASTERLY and NORTHWESTERLY by Wainwright Road 42' plus or minus and 50' plus or minus respectively;

NORTHEASTERLY, EASTERLY and SOUTHEASTERLY by the center line of Wainwright Road 780' plus or minus;

WESTERLY 207' plus or minus, SOUTHERLY 404' plus or minus, WESTERLY 161' plus or minus, SOUTHERLY 551' plus or minus, EASTERLY 145' plus or minus SOUTHERLY 532' plus or minus and SOUTHEASTERLY 123' plus or minus, by land now or formerly Margaret M. Mahoney, Paul J. and Charles A. Mahoney;

WESTERLY and NORTHWESTERLY by Town of Winchester Conservation Land 801' plus or minus and 360' plus or minus respectively;

WESTERLY by said land of Town of Winchester and now or formerly Lois A. Barbuti 600' plus or minus;

NORTHERLY by Winchester — Woburn boundary line 1442' plus or minus;

SOUTHEASTERLY and NORTHERLY by land now or formerly Joseph A. and Louise A. Arigo 223' plus or minus and 491' plus or minus respectively.

Containing 65 acres, more or less.

(The area involved is undeveloped land located Westerly of Wainwright Road, Red Coach Lane and Surrey Road, Northerly of Plato Terrace, Easterly of Conservation Land and Southerly of the Winchester - Woburn boundary line.)

This amendment if adopted would permit land that is presently zoned for RDA-20 single family residence use to be rezoned to a PRD (Planned Residential Development) subject to Site Plan approval.

Prior to the hearing plans and information may be viewed at the Planning Board-Engineering Office, Basement, Town Hall, 71 Mt. Vernon Street, Winchester, MA.

By order of the Winchester Planning Board this thirteenth day of September, 1982.

EASEMENTS

The matter of easements often comes up in negotiations involving real estate and land. In its simplest terms, it concerns the privilege or right of a person to use someone else's property for some reason. If you have an electric utility pole on your land, power company employees have the right to climb it in order to make any necessary repairs. This is one type of easement, called a public utility easement.

The concept of easements goes back many years to the time of homesteading and land grants when the West was opened up for settlement. Roads and property lines were often determined carelessly, and in many instances a person had to go over another man's land to get to a main road.

Easements are important; prospective property owners should be aware of any that may be part of the property being considered. We, of course, check into them carefully and can advise you regarding any effect they may have on your future investment — another reason you need a Realtor when buying real estate.

CIVIL WAR Unit looking for members: The 5th Massachusetts Battery is made up of people in the Greater Boston area interested in the Civil War. There are two divisions: (1) competition shooting divisions which is a North-South Skirmish Association unit that competes in team matches with a full-sized muzzleloading cannon as well as with muskets, carbines and revolvers of the pre-1865 era. And (2) the "chowder and marching division" which takes part in parades, battle re-enactments, and authentic living history demonstrations. You can join either or both depending on your interests. The musket and carbine shooting events involve team shooting at breakable targets with the shortest elapsed time determining the winning team. It's fun if you're interested in black powder shooting. For further information contact 5th Mass. Battery, John Humphrey, 495 West st., Reading, or Al Goscinak, 27 Washington st., Charlestown, by phone or mail. 3.19TF

St. Mary's Parish Opens Final Year Of Preparation For Class Of 1983

The Confirmation class of 1983 at St. Mary's Parish will open their final year of preparation on Sunday, Sept. 26 at 7 in the parish hall.

Students, parents and advisers will meet with Rev. Mark S. Sheehan, the moderator of the program. The young people will then form the groups which will work and pray together until they receive the Sacrament next spring.

Informal classes and service for the needy are among the projects planned for this most important year.

Crawford Church Schoolers Will Sponsor A Toy Sale

The children of the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church School are sponsoring a Toy Sale on Saturday, Oct. 2, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the church parking lot.

In case of rain, the sale will take place inside the church in Gifford Hall.

Included in the sale will be used toys, books, records bicycles, and baby furniture. All items will be in good condition. The members of the junior and senior high will sponsor a bake table and lemonade stand.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to buy a new slide screen for church use.

Mystic Valley Council For Children Holds Annual Meeting At First Congo

In these times of funding cutbacks due to national policy changes in taxation and spending for social services, children's services and other programs are in jeopardy. Children do not vote and cannot advocate for themselves.

The Mystic Valley Council for Children invites residents to its annual meeting on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the First Congregational Church, 21 Church st., in Winchester Center.

At the start of the annual meeting the council will discuss its activities. Residents are also invited to the board of directors.

At board meetings the council usually begins with a short business agenda. The committees share information and make group decisions about their findings.

Following this brief business agenda, there are community education presentations on a variety of children's and family issues. These presentations are always open to the public. The annual meeting presentation on Tuesday will be "The Single Parent Experience" given by Jeffrey L. Arbetter, Ed.D., and Karen Bachman, MSW, of the Melrose Psychological Center.

This presentation will focus on the dilemmas in single parent family. Some of the issues to be discussed are coping with family grieving over the loss or separation of a parent, making discipline decisions alone, and maintaining self esteem as a single parent. The presentation will enhance parenting skills and teach new coping strategies.

The Council for Children is one of 42 local councils across the commonwealth. Councils are part of the Office for Children, a state agency responsible for coordinating existing services to children up to age 22, licensing categories of children's services and documenting the need for services.

Although the council consists of citizen volunteers, specific council activities are mandated by the state. Additionally, the council chooses involvement in activities and issues relevant to its communities and membership.

Several positions are available on the board of directors for local residents. Especially for local "consumer" representation. "Consumers" are individuals who may have children and who are not employed in children's services. Teachers, day care professionals, and social workers are examples of "providers." Several slots on the board are also open for providers.

No experience is necessary to join the board. The Office for Children staff will provide all new members with an orientation to council responsibilities and on-going training for skills needed to do committee work.

Feel free to call the community representative, Matty Bloom, at the Mystic Valley Council for Children office in Winchester for more information about membership, activities and the annual meeting program.

Welcome Wagon Bridal Show

On Tuesday evening, Oct. 5, Welcome Wagon will hold its fall bridal show for all engaged women in the area, including Winchester. It will be held at Joe Binette's Chalet, Rte. 114 and 62 in Middleton, at 7:30 p.m.

The bridal fashion show will include the latest wedding gowns, attendants' and mother-of-the bride gowns featured by Annette's Bridal Boutique in Newburyport. Formal wear for the bridegroom and ushers by Mr. Tux of Lawrence.

Live entertainment will be provided by A.F.A Entertainment Agency of Middleton featuring the "Windsor Players." Refreshments will be served including wedding cakes by "California Sweet" of Everett.

Each engaged girl attending will receive a canvas tote bag filled with gifts and gift certificates from the sponsors and a corsage from The Village Flower Shoppe of Reading.

The cost is free to the bride and two guests. There will be many door prizes during the evening for the bride and also the guests.

There is no charge or obligation, but call for reservations today as space is limited. Contact Bobbie Botticelli, 114 Grove st., Reading.

Alcohol Hotline

Massachusetts residents needing help or information about alcohol can dial 1-800-ALCOHOL on a new 24-hour hotline based at Doctors Hospital in Worcester. Callers can get information on alcohol and other drugs, and referrals to treatment centers. All calls are toll-free and confidential.

Soil Tests

The Middlesex County Extension Service reminds gardeners that fall is the time to prepare their soil for next year's crops. Home gardeners can bring a one cup sample of soil to the office in Concord for a free test to determine the pH and fertilizer requirements for the crops they plan to grow. Bring or mail the sample to 105 Everett st., Concord, 01742.

Blood Pressure

Sancta Maria Hospital and the Belmont Council on Aging will hold a series of educational meetings on blood pressure in September and October at the hospital. The first session Sept. 10 is titled "Are You a Pressure Cooker?"

Second Congo Church Offers Celebration And Activities

The Second Congregational Church of Winchester is a member of the National Association of Congregational Christian Churches. The present minister is Laurie Braaten.

The church is located at the corner of Kenwin rd. and Washington st. and holds services every Sunday at 10. Following the worship service there is a chance to meet people over a cup of coffee. Sunday school classes for preschoolers through elementary school are held during church services at 10. Junior and senior high classes are held at 11:30.

Special services and celebrations are held during the year. The church sponsors a Junior and Senior High Youth Group that meets weekly on Sunday afternoons or Sunday evenings.

In addition there are three other adult groups that meet monthly. The Merry Marthas meet the second Wednesday of each month and have varied programs geared for women who cannot meet during the day. The Bethany Society meet the first Thursday afternoon of each month and encompass all women.

The Wednesday Niters meet the third Wednesday evening of each month and is for men and women. The programs of these groups change from month to month and all are welcome to attend. All church functions are open to the public.

For more information on any questions concerning the church please call the minister, Rev. Laurie Bratten, or come and visit.

Robert Goldsmith To Be Ordained

The Rev. Robert S. Goldsmith, assistant rector at The Parish of the Epiphany, will be ordained to the priesthood Sept. 21 at 8 p.m. by the Rt. Rev. A. Heath Light, Episcopal Bishop of Southwestern Virginia.

Participating in the service will be family and friends of Mr. Goldsmith. The Rev. Thomas Shaw and Brother James Madden, members of the Society of St. John the Evangelist in Cambridge, will be the preacher and the litanist, respectively.

The Rev. John Smylie of Hope, N.J., will serve as deacon.

Readers will be Rev. Priscilla Dreyman of Columbia Falls, Maine, and Anne Gosling-Goldsmith, the wife of the ordinand. His parents, Robert and Isabel Goldsmith and the Rev. John J. Bishop, rector of The Parish of the Epiphany, will the presentors.

Goldsmith, who graduated from Hampden Syndey College and the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge, joined the staff of the parish last November.

Guild Of Infant Saviour Opens Season With Memorial Mass

The Winchester Chapter of the Guild of the infant Saviour will open its 1982-83 season with a Memorial Mass for deceased members at St. Mary's Church on Tuesday, Sept. 28 at 11 a.m.

Mrs. Richard Keating, president, will welcome Guild members and guests.

The mass will be celebrated by Monsignor Eugene McNamara, MSW, spiritual director of the Guild. Monsignor McNamara is head of the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston.

Rev. Mark Sheehan will be the guest soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Martha Daschbach, a Guild member, as organist. Ushering honors at the church will be shared by past presidents Mrs. James Marchant, Mrs. Jeremiah McCarron, Miss Alice O'Leary, and Mrs. Frederick Connor.

Following the mass, luncheon will be served at the Winchester Country Club.

Mrs. J. Raymond Murphy and Mrs. Edward Conners are co-chairpersons of the affair.

'Christian Moral Vision' Is Epiphany Series Topic

The Rev. Don F. Colenback leads the second in a series of programs on "Christian Moral Vision" this Sunday morning at The Parish of the Epiphany. His subject will be "Issues in Medicine and Health Care." Dr. Colenback is Professor of Christian Ethics at the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambrdige.

The series of programs marks the beginning of the adult education ministry for the 1982-83 season.

Next week, the Rev. John B. Snow, Professor of Pastoral Theology at EDS, will speak on "Ethics in the Economic Sphere."

On October 10, a panel of parishioners will lead a program on the "Moral Aspects of Political Life" and participate in a discussion of the referendum questions that will appear in the November election.

The Rev. David B. Weden of the Boston University Counselling Center offers a final program on "Marriage and Family Life" on Oct. 17.

The series is base on a new book in the Episcopal Church's Teaching Series, "The Christian Moral Vision" by the Rev. Earl Brill of the College of Preachers in Washington. The guest leader each week will preach at the 10 a.m. service and then will make a presentation that follows in the adult class.

Animals To Be Blessed

The Church of St. Eulalia in Winchester will be holding a special Blessing of the Animals outdoor service in honor of St. Francis of Assissi on Oct. 3 at 3 p.m. All children are invited to bring their pets and participate in this special service.

The story of St. Francis and the Wolf will be retold to show his love for animals, and to thank God for the gift of all creation.

This will be the commencement of the Franciscan Festival. Father Alexander Wyse, OFM will be conducting a Trudium on Oct. 4, 5 and 6 at 8:15 p.m. The themes for each night will be St. Francis - Fool for Christ; Francis and poverty; and Francis, man of peace.

Obituaries

Keith Bartlett

Keith Bartlett, 13, of Burlington died Sept. 17 after suffering heart failure.

He was a seventh grader at the Marshall Simonds Middle School in Burlington, where he collapsed during school Friday.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bartlett of Burlington; two sisters, Kimberly and Kristen Bartlett of Burlington; and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Magliozzi of Washington st. and Alice Bartlett of Rhode Island.

Funeral services were held Tuesday from the Robert J. Costello Funeral Home, followed by a funeral mass at St. Margaret's Church, Burlington.

J. Edward Noonan

J. Edward Noonan, 80, of Reading, a retired Captain in the Winchester Fire Dept., died at the Winchester Nursing Home Sept. 19 following a brief illness.

Capt. Noonan was a member of the Winchester Fire Dept. for 30 years before he retired in 1955. He lived in Winchester for 78 years before moving to Reading two years ago.

Born and educated in Winchester, Mr. Noonan was appointed to the Winchester Fire Dept. as a firefighter July 26, 1925. He was appointed to Captain on Aug. 26, 1947. He retired a year after he had a heart attack which he suffered after fighting a fire in September 1954.

Capt. Noonan served under Winchester Fire Chiefs David Decourcy and James Callahan. He was a member of the Retired Fire and Police Relief Association, a social member of the Christopher Columbus Club in Winchester and a member of the Cedar Glen Social Club in Reading.

Capt. Noonan was the husband of the late Gertrude R. (Kelley) Noonan. He is survived by his two sons, Edward F. of Florida and Paul V. of Maryland and two daughters, Claire Cromwell of Wyoming and Marcia E. Surette of Reading. He is also survived by 20 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held from the Lane Funeral Home on Sept. 22 followed by a funeral mass at St. Mary's Church.

Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery. Memorial donations may be made to the Winchester Hospital Oncology Dept. in care of Dr. Alan Edelstein.

Agnes Sullivan

Agnes V. Sullivan, 84, of Washington st. died Sept. 17 at her home after suffering a heart attack.

The lifelong resident of Winchester was a graduate of the Winchester school system. She was a longtime member of St. Mary's Church and of the church's Ladies Sodality.

She was the wife of the late John F. Sullivan, and the sister of the late Ellen V. Connors, Charles Haggerty, Mary A. Haggerty and Margaret C. King.

Mrs. Sullivan is survived by four children, Timothy J. Sullivan of New York, William P. Sullivan of California, M. Lois Hosmer of Holliston and Marcia R. Sullivan of Washington st.; two sisters, Rose E. Haggerty and Christine M. Haggerty, both of Winchester; and seven grandchildren.

Funeral services were held from the Lane Funeral Home on Sept. 20, followed by a funeral mass in St. Mary's Church.

Burial was in Calvary Cemetery. Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Memorial donations may be made to the Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation, 300 Longwood ave., Boston.

Management Courses Available To Small Businesses, Retailers

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce announces the availability of seminars beginning Nov. 1 for retailers and other small business owners interested in improving their businesses.

The "Main Street Needs Small Businesses" seminars are being offered through funding from the U.S. Economic Development Administration to the Massachusetts Main Street program within the Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD). The EOCD has invited chamber members to participate in the seminars.

Seminars will run over three evenings. During that time, participants may take part in: "Cost Effective Marketing," "Merchandising For Results," "Realities of Business Planning," "Microcomputers on Main Street," "Your Staff and the Bottom Line," and "Managing Money for Greatest Benefit."

The topics discussed include the subject of identifying customers and properly directing advertising and promotional activities.

Speakers will also discuss the following issues: how window displays, signs, store layout, etc. effects store image; how to quickly develop an operating plan to help run a successful business; how the microcomputer might reasonably assist merchants in retail or small businesses; how best to find, compensate and motivate employees, and how to better control cash flow and determine customers' credit worthiness.

Seminar leaders are all small business owners themselves or management consultants to small business people.

Winchester Chamber Executive Vice President Rita Spence noted that the courses are highly recommended and very inexpensive. "It's very difficult for a retailer or a small business owner to be knowledgeable in all the fields that have such an impact on their ability to succeed and thrive," she commented. "These courses could give them some new ideas, some shortcuts, and more confidence in their management techniques — all at nominal cost and minimal time."

Courses will be held in the five commonwealth communities within the Main Street program. The nearest community to Winchester is Amesbury. Seminars will start there Nov. 1. Interested persons who want more information can contact the Winchester Chamber of Commerce office. The chamber's retail-center advisory group will consider car-pooling to assist interested business people or those thinking about starting a business who would like to attend the seminars.

ABC House Welcomes Five New Students

There are five new faces at the ABC house this year.

Ivan Calaff, Jose Calero, Maurice Godfrey, Anthony Mercardo, and Neville McKenzie are all new to Winchester and to Winchester High School. Having applied to National ABC (A Better Chance) last spring and then accepted by the Winchester committee, they are, literally, here for a better chance for a challenging education.

Calaff, Calero, Mercardo and McKenzie all come from the New York area while Godfrey's home in in Philadelphia. Calaff and Mercardo are entering the high school as freshmen; the others are starting with ABC as sophomores.

All the new students arrived in Winchester Sept. 7, the day before school started. How did they find the town and the high school? "Quiet" says Calaff of the town. After living in New York he can't get used to not having street noise and lots of hustle and bustle. "Small" commented Mercardo of the town and the school. "Big" said another who found the high school imposing.

Everyone has visited his host family already and begun to feel at home. "I feel as though I fit right in," said Calero. I can't describe it but that's how it was." Acting as host families for these newcomers are the Rolls, the Kessels, the Clarkes, the Sayeres and the Ewalds.

Resident Director Mary Jo Nealon was asked about opening day for the students. "It was beautiful" she said. "Several of the parents came up with their sons and I met with them while the upperclassmen helped the new guys get settled. They all did a great job."

ABC seniors this year are Sean Barnave and Courtney DeShong from the New York area. The juniors are Jesse Lee Fox from Nashville, Tenn.; Ronald Conolly from Los Angeles, Calif.; and Brian Perry from Columbus, Ohio.

Winchester is one of 25 public school ABC programs. There are more than 110 independent day and boarding schools that are part of the system. The local program is totally community supported and is now entering its 12th year.

Residents Can Donate Blood In K Of C Drive

By ROBERT GERRITY

Ann Landers said it best in a recent column: "Be glad you are giving blood, not getting it."

Its your turn to be glad again at the September Winchester Community Blood Drive at the Knights of Columbus Hall., Mt. Vernon st. Co-sponsored by Immaculate Conception and St. Mary's Churches, the drive will be held Monday, Sept. 27 from 2 to 8 p.m.

All Winchester residents between 17 and 66 years old, weighing over 110 pounds, and in good health on the day of the drive can join the bloodline of caring donors by presenting themselves on that date. If you have any questions about your eligibility, please call the Winchester Red Cross. (Sorry, pregnant people can't donate. You need all your blood for the both of you.

In a recent column, Ann Landers replied to a frustrated Red Cross worker who had written her about the rudeness and lack of caring she encountered daily in asking people to donate. Landers put the essentials of how to do this "heroic effort" to her readers simply:

"OK, you folks out there, anyone in good health, between 17 and 66, please get on the phone and call your local chapter of the American Red Cross. The number is in the phone book. Make an appointment NOW. I just made mine."

That is all it really takes. You don't need an emergency to make you get up, get out and donate blood. The need for blood in our area hospitals is constant — just ask the lab at Winchester Hospital which doesn't use anywhere near what a major Boston teaching hospital consumes in several days. The Red Cross in Massachusetts collects and distributes about a 1000 pints of blood a day.

There are eight major types of blood, and O positive can be used in emergency situations as a short term substitute for the correct type. But nothing can really really substitute for the correct type over the long term, especially in cases of chemo-radiation therapy for cancers. If the Red Cross is out of that specific type of blood when it is needed, then it might as well be out of all types.

The Red Cross cannot manufacture whole blood, or plasma, or white cells, or the blood clotting factor used by hemophiliacs. Blood is a renewable resource that can be obtained from only one source: people. The blood you give will save a life. It is being used because there is no other effective therapy.

But not enough of you are giving enough pints often enough to avoid summer shortages and long holiday weekend crises. Here in Winchester, the number of people showing up at community dirves has dropped greatly over the past several years; from around 600 to just over 400.

If the blood collected in Winchester was shipped only to Winchester Hospital (it's actually shipped where needed), such a drop would have meant the loss of 600 usable units (each donation can produce three units, one each of packed red cells, plasma, and white cells).

Come on, Winchester. It's time to do your duty this month. If you haven't given blood in the last eight weeks, then you've got no good excuse to miss this community drive on Monday, Sept 27, at the K of C Hall. As Ann Landers has urged: "Make your appointment NOW."

INTERACT Flea Market Offers Bargains, Gifts, Antiques, Etc. On Sat.

Winchester INTERACT's 14th Annual Flea Market will offer almost anything the bargain hunter's heart desires — birthday and baby gifts, Christmas presents, something special for themselves or treasures for their houses.

Buyers may choose from quilts, belts and buckles, T-shirts, baby items, pinecone wreaths, antiques, collectibles, stationery designed by the kids at Kids' Corner, ceramics, jewelry, new and used housewares, toys for the kids and much more.

At the Flea Market, to be held at the Winchester Town Hall parking lot on Saturday, Sept. 25, residents can browse and buy while enjoying hot dogs, Syrian salad, doughnuts, chips, coffee, soda, homemade baked goods, cotton candy and penny candy.

In case of rain, the Flea Market will be held on Sunday, Sept. 26.

Late Fall Tax Bills Will Cost Town $100,000

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Fall tax bills will not be mailed out on time and the delay will cost the town about $100,000 in interest payments and lost investment earnings.

That dismal news was announced by Comptroller Alphonse Faggiano at the Board of Selectmen's Monday night meeting.

"It now looks like the figure will be about $100,000," Faggiano said. "By the time we go through the entire process required to mail out the tax bills, it looks like they (bills) won't be ready until Nov. 1, so we'll probably be about six weeks late in our investments."

The town's financial woes are blamed on the magnitude of work that has flooded the assessors' office since the revaluation program began.

"It's all part of the fallout from the revaluation," said Town Manager Tom Groux. "The assessors had to devote a substantial amount of time to evaluate the values for last year and they couldn't tackle the (current) 1982 values until they had the 1981 values on the books."

"The board here not only has to work on revaluation and new values, but we also have excise taxes and all the other work the assessors' office has to complete," said Board of Assessors Chairman Werner Carlson.

The assessors' workload made it impossible for the town to mail out tax bills in mid-September as it usually does. As a result, town officials will be forced to borrow between $1 million and $2 million in November for about a month, according to Faggiano. That money will be borrowed at about a six percent interest rate which will cost Winchester about $10,000.

"The greatest loss to the town is the loss of investment return," Faggiano noted.

Winchester usually collects $6 million to $7 million from property taxes by November, according to Faggiano. That money would be invested in accounts yielding about 11 percent interest.

New classification laws drafted in July 1982 have also slowed down the completion of fall tax bills. Last year, the selectmen and the assessors voted to adopt classification, which taxes commercial property at a higher rate than residential property. Commercial property was taxed at a rate of $26.92 per $1,000 and residential property at $23.04 per $1,000.

According to the new legislation, the selectmen vote every year on classification. Their vote must reflect the recommendations of the assessors as well as the wishes of the residents. A public hearing is required before the vote.

Winchester's classification hearing is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 12. The selectmen had a hearing on classification Aug. 23, but they did not have information from the assessors at that time about the impact of classification options. That information must be available at the hearing, according to the legislation.

After the selectmen vote on classification, the tax rate must be certified by the State Department of Revenue.

The selectmen Monday stressed the importance of quick results from the assessors to avoid further delays in obtaining state certification on the new tax bills.

"We must move expeditiously on this," said Selectman John J. Williams.

"The question is whether the assessors can accomplish what they are supposed to by Oct. 12," said Selectman Ed O'Connell.

Winchester is not the only town suffering financially by late tax bills. Carlson noted that Winchester's problem, therefore, cannot be solely blamed on Patten Appraisal Associates of Maine for failing to complete the revaluation process on time.

"We are no different than 110 other communities which have found themselves in the same revaluation situation," Carlson said.

"So it can't be all Patten's fault. "We are all in the same position because of all the abatement applications that have come into the office, the fact that we have had to set new values and the additional state requirements in setting the hearing on classification.

"This problem is not unique to Winchester," he concluded.

Contaminated Fill Problems Continue To Plague Town

Remaining Surrey Rd. Fill Has Nowhere To Go

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Only about five truckloads of chemically contaminated fill remain at 81 Surrey rd., but there is no place to put it.

Half of the gray fill was carted out of town Tuesday and health officials were confident the Oct. 18 fill removal deadline would be met.

But Wednesday morning fill removal was halted when Weston town officials told the truck contractor they would not accept any more fill into their sanitary landfill area.

That decision was made by the Weston Board of Selectmen Wednesday after test results of the fill were completed, according to Winchester Health Director Steven Weinstein.

"They've temporarily stopped the fill from coming in and they estimate they'll make a decision on its fate in a week or so after they've had time to review the test results with the Environmental Protection Agency," Weinstein said.

"It's unfortunate that we only have approximately five loads or 150 cubic yards — a relatively small amount — left there and it may have to stay there for a while until determinations are made," he continued.

"They can virtually remove it in one day if there were a place to take it to. Now, we have to wait for Weston's decision as to the fate of the fill and simultaneously communicate with the DEQE (Department of Environmental Quality Engineering) to find alternative sites.

In the meantime, Weinstein said he has ordered immediate construction of a snow fence to temporarily isolate the clay. Weinstein said Wednesday afternoon that he expects to be in contact with Harry Chehames of Cambridge, the owner of the Surrey rd. lot, by the evening.

"We will study the results and positive testing may mean additional excavations, but that has not yet been considered at this point," Weinstein said.

The test results ordered by Weston officials and completed by Cambridge Analytics were not totally consistent with the tests done by Engineering Resources Co. Inc. (ERCO) in August for Winchester.

"Some of the chemicals were consistent with what we found in the tests, some of their concentrations were lower than we had found and they found some chemicals we didn't find," Weinstein said.

"Some of the results were optimistic," he continued. "Benzo(a)pyrene, a chemical we considered most dangerous, was not detected by them and their sensitivity ranged at 10 parts per billion.

"That's interesting news because it

Lack of Fill Regs Force Town To Eat $400 Bill

By SUSAN SCHNECK

If Winchester had adopted a set of regulations governing landfill before the Surrey rd. fill was tested, the $400 testing cost would have been charged to the landowner. Instead, the town has to foot the bill.

Since the town has not yet adopted fill regulations, the town must pay for all chemical tests of suspicious landfill. To date, Winchester has paid Energy Resources Co., Inc. (ERCO) $3,560 for three Amberwood dr. soil sample tests this summer.

The new tests on Amberwood dr. ordered by the Board of Health Sept. 20, will cost the town about $2,300. The Surrey rd. tests conducted in August cost Winchester about $400.

But health officials are determined to correct the situation and adopt a set of fill regulations as quickly as possible. The town could have a set of fill regulations on the books after the board's Oct. 12 meeting, depending on townwide reaction to their latest draft of rules.

The board has maintained that it will not adopt regulations until they meet with town approval. After listening to residents' reactions to the first draft of regulations Sept. 20, the board drew up a new proposal. The newest draft was originally scheduled to be voted on at an Oct. 18 meeting, but health officials moved up that date to speed up the process.

"The quicker we can adopt a set of regulations, the better it will be for the town," said board of Health Chairman Lawrence Quigley. "We can actually save the town some money with the regulations by insisting that tests be done at the expense of the owner.

"The board was reluctant to delay adopting the regulations at our last meeting, but since some people criticized

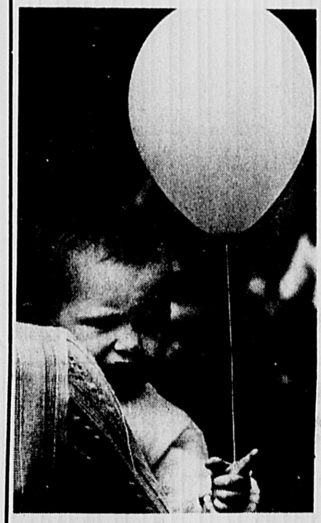
Games, Giggling, Fun, And Food



The V-O School Picnic

PICNIC — Laughter and merriment filled the air Sunday as parents, children and faculty enjoyed the annual get-acquainted picnic at the Vinson-Owen School. The picnic, organized each year by the Parents Association, included an array of games, activities and a lunch. Each family packed their favorite picnic and enjoyed popcorn and orange drink provided by the Parents Association. The games included tug-of-war (right), water balloon toss, potato sack races and three-legged races. Ashley Black of Amberwood dr., catches an unbroken balloon. The games delighted the children for hours while parents renewed old friendships and made new acquaintances. A clown added to the festive air, passing out brightly colored helium balloons and candy. Lauren Keane, of Nassau dr., (above) was one lucky recipient.

Test Results Of The Amberwood Road Lots At Least Three Weeks Away

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Health officials have tried everything possible to speed up the chemical testing of two undeveloped lots on Amberwood dr., but it appears that it will take about 26 days until residents there know for sure that the chemically contaminated fill is gone.

The testing company of Energy Resources Co., Inc (ERCO) has informed the Board of Health that Oct. 5 is the earliest date they can get the equipment needed for testing. The entire process takes about 21 days.

"We have tried to get them (ERCO) to start earlier, but the earliest they can hire someone to take the borings there is Oct. 5," said Board of Health Chairman Lawrence Quigley. He said the soil test must not contain oil and contamination from trucks and bulldozers.

At the urging of Amberwood dr. residents, the Board of Health voted Sept. 20 to conduct the tests which will cost the town about $2,300. The land being tested belongs to developer Felix Pitterino of the Acton-based Pitt Construction Co.

Last May, Pitterino brought in fill from the MBTA's Alewife construction site in Cambridge, a former chemical dumping site for the W.R. Grace Co.

After ERCO lab tests found traces of 16 priority pollutants in the fill, the board ordered it removed. Pitterino filed a suit in Middlesex Superior Court to overturn that order, but after meetings with health officials withdrew his case.

Pitterino completed the fill removal process earlier this month, but residents remained unconvinced that all the contaminated clay is out of the area. While health officials conducted tests which found the area to be safe, they ordered additional testing so there would not be any doubt that all the contaminated fill was out.

Although health officials can not speed up the testing process, they will do everything possible to accommodate the wishes of residents once the testing begins.

"We will ask the Amberwood residents to tell us where they would like to see the testing done and we're perfectly willing to take samples of those areas," Quigley said.

"You can be sure that if there is anything found in those tests of a positive nature, we'll make sure Mr. Pitterino removes it," he added. "And if the tests come out negative, we'll all breathe a great deal easier."

Arts Lottery Council Gives $520 Grant To Local Artist

Constance E. Morrill

Constance E. Morrill of Birch ln. has been awarded the Massachusetts Arts Lottery grant by the Winchester Arts Lottery Council. The grant for $520.00 is to be used to produce videotapes of the various visual and performing arts in Winchester. The series of tapes will be aired on cable television's local channel and will be entitled "Art to Art Talks."

The award was made after much deliberation by Winchester Arts Lottery Council members Kathleen Indigaro, Noreen Murphy, Edward Goodwin, Paulett Taggart, and Ann Franciose-Perrault.

Ms. Morrill, a longtime Winchester resident, has been instrumental in promoting community arts. She has worked as a professional actress on radio and on the stage and has directed numerous theater groups. Her background includes positions on various boards of directors such as art councils, music foundation, community theater, speech fraternity, church and family service.

She is the director-teacher of the Studio of Speech in Winchester and author of a soon-to-be-published book called "How To Speak Good American." She taught "Effective Speaking" at Phillips Exeter Academy this summer. Her videotape project is due to be completed by July.

The Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council was established to promote the arts in the commonwealth. The State Lottery Commission is in the process of designing a new lottery ticket specifically to benefit the arts to be available sometime in November.

Winchester Arts Lottery Council members were chosen two years ago by the Board of Selectmen as mandated by the State Lottery Council.

Its responsibilities include publicity for the lottery, dispersal of applications, and selection of candidates for grants according to specific guidelines. The members have two-year terms and should have an interest in promoting the arts in Winchester. The board is presently seeking new members. All that is required is a letter of intent to the Board of Selectmen at Town Hall.

About Town

Slattery Graduates

Barbara Slattery of Dunster ln. recently graduated from the Katharine Gibbs School in Boston. Slattery completed the Entree Program, which is an intensive 11-week course designed to prepare college graduates for careers in business. Slattery is a 1978 graduate of Winchester High School and she received a B.A. from Emmanuel College.

Samoiloff Enrolls

Caroline Samoiloff, 8 Lockeland rd., has enrolled at Dean Junior College in Franklin.

Keenan Hospitalized

Former Hillcrest pkwy. resident Francis "Chub" Keenan is hospitalized at the Mary Hitchcock Hospital in Hanover, N.H., if anyone would like to drop him a card. Keenan, who used to own the F.H. Keenan Service Station on Swanton st., required back surgery after hurting himself in a fall at his Bridgewater, N.H., home.

Barone Elected

Mrs. William D. Barone of School st. was recently elected vice president of the United Associations, a 600-member organization made up of many individual associations located around the lower part of Lake Winnipesaukee. Barone has served as secretary and public relations chairman for the organization during the past six years.

Two Accepted

Associated Technical Institute in Woburn has accepted two Winchester students. Kevin Byrne of Hinds rd. will be in the electronics technician-digital—computer program. Robert Della Grotto of Spruce st. is in the cobol programming-analyst program.

Polcari Graduates

Gerard Polcari of Middlesex st. received a master's degree in public administration during Pennsylvania State University's summer term commencement exercises .

O'Connell To Run

Selectman Ed O'Connell will be among the runners in this Saturday's road race from the New England Rehabilitation Hospital in Woburn, through Woburn and Winchester.

The race, which starts at 11, is sponsored by the employees' organization, Ours After Hours. Former heart patients, doctors, volunteers and families of heart patients will run,.

British Study Year

John Brosnan of 18 Thornberry rd., and Cheryl Banks of 176 Forest st. are among 209 students from 78 different colleges and universities enrolled in The British University Year sponsored by Beaver College in cooperation with 11 British universities and colleges.

The students will spend five days of orientation and excursions in and around London, including lectures by British leaders of government, and by members of the communications media and businessmen. In addition to the orientation period, each student participated in Homestay — living with a British family for a week sharing daily experiences as a member of the family. Homestay is made by arrangement with the British Experiment in International Living.

Students participating in the British University Year are integrated with the British students in the regular degree programs of the cooperating institutions. Each university offers a wide range of opportunities for extra-curricular participation in music, art, drama and sports.

An English major, Brosnan is a student at Middlebury College and is enrolled at Edinburgh University. Banks is a political science major at Wheaton college, enrolled at the London School of Economics.

Karen Twichell

WHS's Twichell Awarded 14 Medals At Latin Convention

Karen Twichell, a Winchester High School student who lives on Swan rd., returned from the New England Junior Classical League Convention recently with 14 medals. According to WHS Latin teacher Linda Ciccariello, Twichell was the star of the convention.

Proving that the old Roman proverb, "Mens sana in corpore sano" (A sound mind in a sound body), still holds true, Twichell "raced" and "thought" her way to success.

Cutting her summer vacation a bit short, Twichell traveled to Westfield State College to attend the three-day convention where she participated in an array of academic, athletic and artistic competitions — all in the name of the classics.

The convention was made up of many events for team and individual competition. On the first day of the convention, Karen captured two first place ribbons in the swimming events — the 50-yard back stroke and the 50-yard freestyle.

Day two saw Karen sweep first place in all the academic competitions — Latin grammar, mythology and Roman history. In the running events, she placed first in the 200-yard and second in the 100-yard, long jump, and the relay. Her poster of a scene from the ancient myth of Baucis and Philemon won her second place in the artistic competition. The convention, however, was not all hard work. During the evening students donned their togas for the Roman banquet and the farewell dance.

The convention drew to a close at the awards assembly where students received their ribbons. Karen was awarded the highly-coveted first place ribbon for accumulating the highest number of total points at the convention.

When the third-year Latin student was asked how she had reacted to such an honor, she said that she was very pleased. Was she surprised? "When I looked at all those ribbons in my hand, I thought I might have a chance at it," Karen smiled.

Karen will continue her work this year as the historian of the Massachusetts Junior Classical League.

Road Race

To celebrate the Cambridge YWCA's 91st birthday, the Y will hold a 5k and 10k road race, beginning at 10 a.m. Oct. 31. Saucony shoes will offer prizes and tote bags to the first 150 entrants. There is a free swim and birthday party for the runners afterwards. For more information, contact the YWCA at 7 Temple st., Cambridge.

Hospice Care Inc. Elects New Board Members From Winchester

Recently elected to the Board of Directors of Hospice Care Inc., are the following Winchester people: Mary Ducey, Robert Graves, Rev. James Haddad, Gustav Kaufmann, M.D., and Dorothy Matheson.

The hospice organization coordinates services and support for the terminally ill and their families in Winchester, Woburn, Arlington, Burlington and Lexington.

Hospice Helps The Living Cope With Dying

By ANNE MARIE REIDY

This is a story about people who help other people to live.

It's a story about a family who were determined to care for a dying mother at home, and the people who helped them make that possible.

It's a story of a family who journeyed that last, long painful road with so much love and support that less than a month after her death, they can speak of the wife and mother they've just lost with smiles more often than tears.

Sante Fava lost his wife Nancy to cancer a little more than three weeks before he agreed to talk to The Star.

He, his daughters' Debra, Denise, Nancy and Janice, Janice's husband Michael, and her children, Amy 8, and Michael, 3, were all at Nancy's bedside to the end.

Fava credits the staff and volunteers at Hospice Care Inc., an Arlington-based team of professionals and volunteers, for making that possible.

"We always had our family," he says with obvious pride. "But it was amazing to find so many people who would go out of their way to help us.

When I called the hospice people, they told me they take over when the doctors say, 'That's it; you're going to die,'' Fava said. "You find out people are not all mercenary."

The Favas were referred to Hospice Care by a friend who is involved with a hospice group in Chelsea.

"Nancy was home. We knew she had to die," Fava recalls. "My friend told me about hospice.

"He started to give me the number to call, and then he said, 'no, let me do that for you.' That's what people in hospice do for you," Fava explains.

Hospice Care Inc. professionals and volunteers work with terminally ill patients and their families.

It opened its doors in 1981, after several years of organizational meetings to establish the independent organization. Over 40 families so far have participated in the program.

Hospice personnel coordinates home care services and medical resources for patients. They help them, and their families, make informed choices.

They help the patient manage pain and other symptoms. They offer counseling, and, most of all, support.

In medieval times, a hospice was a place for weary travelers to stay safely while on a journey.

In recent years, hospice has meant long-term care for the terminally ill. The focus is as much on facing life as it is on facing death.

"We tell families, 'We'll go on this journey with you,' because we don't know how it will go," explains Jane Hunerwadel, who coordinates the volunteers for Hospice Care.

Nancy Fava's journey began two years ago, when an operation revealed inoperable cancer.

Nancy returned home. She and her husband Sante discussed their choices, and decided she would die at home if the family could handle it.

"My wife asked me, 'How would you like to wake up at 3 in the morning and see four walls?'"

Fava shook his head to indicate there was never any other choice for them. But he and his family know they probably couldn't have kept Nancy at home without the help they got from Hospice Care.

One of the people who helped Nancy spend her last months at home is Eva Balazs, a hospice volunteer. She is also a counselor at a hospital in another community.

"Eva is a doctor (of psychology) and

'Having my mother die at home was one of the most horrible and most beautiful things I've ever been through ... we all held her hand, and kissed her goodbye. Everyone went away feeling calm.'

Fava

When Nancy made her decision to stay at home, it meant a commitment from her family to help her with daily tasks and later, to take over the home and, finally, to care for her as well.

Janice, the oldest daughter, and her husband, Michael Provenzano, moved back into her parents' home with their two children. In part, it was to be near her mother in the last two months. But it was also to help keep the rest of the family going.

"My mother needed help with everything at the end," Janice says shakily. "I was there to keep it running and organized; she was such a perfectionist with her house."

Janice also credits Hospice Care with getting her mother's oncologist and surgeon to make house calls when she was too weak to go to their offices.

"They got the doctors motivated," she says.

Mary Marth a Beaton, the caregiver coordinator at Hospice Care, interrupts gently to say the doctors were "very responsive" when they realized there was something for them to do beyond trying to cure Nancy.

Beaton says palliative care, controlling pain and other symptoms, is a role doctors are often uncomfortable or unfamiliar with.

"When they can't cure a patient, they tend to feel they can't do any more for them," Beaton says.

Part of Beaton's job is coordinating agencies and resources available to the families, including the hospice nurse who works through the Visiting Nurse Assn.

The nurse's specialty is medications. She researches the different options, and starts the communications flowing between the doctor and the families, Beaton explains.

Hospice investigated different medications to make my mother as comfortable as they could," Janice recalls with a small smile.

"The stuff Nancy was getting the last few days was pretty strong," comments Balazs. "Sante was giving her the needles as she needed them, but she was conscious to the end."

Nancy Fava's experience parallels that of many cancer patients, Beaton says.

"When someone is in pain from cancer, any other pain, even if it's unrelated, is magnified," Beaton says

Managing the increasing dosages needed to bring relief so the patient can remain conscious is something of a tightrope walk for doctors and families, she explains.

Pain control is still a new concept here, Beaton says with regret. But in England, it was one of the early focuses of the hospice movement.

"Hospice investigated different medications to make my mother as comfortable as they could," Janice recalls with a small smile.

The famous Brompton cocktail, made of heroin, cocaine, alcohol, chloroform water and syrup, was developed by a doctor involved in the hospice movement there. (In this country, morphine is substituted for the heroin.) Nancy Fava, though, was given a more traditional pain killer, Demerol

Sante didn't like giving the injections. "I knew good was coming of it," he says with a slight grimace at the memory.

A flicker of resolution wipes the grimace from his face. "Whatever had to be done, we did," he says.

Jane Hunerwadel, the coordinator of volunteers for the Hospice Care, remembers being moved by the strength and support of the family members the day of Nancy's death.

She was there for a family meeting, which would have been held in Nancy's room if she'd felt up to it. Instead, it was in the kitchen.

"Everyone was there: the girls, the grandchildren, even the doctor, who'd just shown Sante how to load the new medication into the needles," she recalls.

"We asked the hard questions then," Sante remembers. "How would she die? In a lot of pain? Could we help her with anything?

"Are we doing the right thing?" Sante shakes his head at the memory.

"Jane asked us questions we wouldn't have asked ourselves: If Nancy stayed at home to die, did we have a doctor on call to come and sign the death certificate?" Sante says.

"How does a husband even think of that?" he asks.

"My first reaction, honestly, was to ship the kids off somewhere when the end was near," admits Janice. "Hospice helped me with the kids."

"Amy and Michael did marvelously," she says with pride. Amy went to the wake and funeral, and entertained the people who came back to the house afterwards, Janice reports.

"Amy also participated a great deal in caring for her grandmother," says Balazs, with almost as much pride as Amy's mother.

Michael only 3, spent a few days checking his grandmother's room" to see if Nona is home yet." When he finally accepted it as final, he wanted to know how she got to heaven, his mother says.

Janice attributes the children's adjustment to their grandmother's death to help she got from Balazs and other people at Hospice Care, and to books they recommended to her. They were right in the Winchester Library, Janice says, still surprised.

"Having my mother die at home was one of the most horrible and one of the most beautiful things I've ever been through," says Janice, barely able to speak.

"We all held her hand, and kissed her goodbye," she says. "Everyone went away feeling calm,,' she adds, sof[illegible]

Sometimes patients' symptoms keep them from having the same sort of peaceful death at home, Beaton says, but they try to encourage the same kind of leave-taking in any case.

"We had to get it out, to say such things," struggles Fava," his eyes glistening.

"To tell them you love them," he begins again, "People are just not used to doing such things.

"The easiest things are the hardest to say," he blurts out.

Balazs attended the funeral with the family. So did others from the hospice group. They're still very much in contact with the family.

"After a person dies, hospice is still with you," Fava said. "They don't leave you alone."

Hunerwadel says the hospice volunteers sometimes follow up with a family for a year or more. Some of the biggest adjustments come after the funeral, when the family tries to find new roles, she says.

"Hospice tries to be there, to be present and supportive. The famil' members let us know what's needed and what's not," she says, with a smile.

"We've made new friends. We see them," says Fava simply. "They help you with living — afterwards."

The Favas are such believers in the hospice movement that they asked family and friends to donate to Hospice Care instead of sending flowers to Nancy's funeral.

Beaton and Hunerwadel are pleased at this. Although there are no charges for Hospice Care's services, the program does cost money, and it is totally independent of the government and its member agencies.

Hospice Care Inc. serves Winchester, Arlington, Woburn, Burlington and Lexington.

Members include the Visiting Nurse and Community Health Inc.; Minuteman Home Health Care; Mystic Valley Mental Health; Winchester, Choate and Symmes Hospitals.

A training session for volunteers will meet for 10 weeks beginning in October. Hunerwadel says men and women with some flexibility in their daytime hours are invited to apply.

Following the training, volunteers are asked to make a one-year commitment to the program as patient-family support workers, doing what Eva Balazs did with the Favas.

Beaton responds to the idea that working for hospice is depressing this way:

"It's hard and it's difficult and it's sad, and it's uplifting; but it's not depressing," she says, with a wide smile.

Hospice Care Inc. is located at 39 Hospital rd., Arlington.

Selectmen Keep Free Parking Intact At Waterfield Road Lot

By SUSAN SCHNECK

The Board of Selectmen agreed Monday night to continue to allow free parking in the Waterfield lot after 8:35 a.m. until Spring Town Meeting.

At that time, the town may purchase mechanized parking machines which will charge downtown parkers 10 cents an hour to use the 108-car lot.

The selectmen made their decision after listening to a status report on the lot presented by Economic Development Coordinator John Connery.

The lot has been in operation for about two months since the town purchased it from Richard Murphy of Dartmouth st. for about $400,000, 70 percent of which was funded by the state. Since that time, portions of the lot have been resurfaced, new signs have been installed, and brush, scrub trees and garbage have been cleared from the area.

The lot was physically combined with the adjacent Renton lot and a ramp was constructed to create a one-way circular entry and exit system.

"Until the ramp was constructed, people were playing kamikaze parking in the lot," Connery commented.

He also noted that after curb alignments are completed, the lot will be restriped to accommodate about 108 cars.

"The lot looks completely packed now when only 55 cars are there because cars are parking helter-skelter," he said. Connery expects the physical work on the lot to be completed in about two weeks.

Connery told the selectmen that since the lot was purchased, it has partly alleviated the parking problems downtown.

"Long-term parkers who were feeding the meters in the Renton lot are now parking in the Waterfield lot," he said. "Usership of the lot has increased from 20 cars a day to 55 cars a day."

Health Board Puts Finishing Touches On Lead Paint Regs

The Board of Health is working out its final draft of a proposal to restrict the use of sandblasting techniques to remove lead paint from buildings.

After the board's next meeting on Oct. 18, the proposal will go to the State Department of Environmental Quality Engineering for approval. Once approved, it will come back to the board and become town law. The process is expected to take approximately two months.

The primary goal of the new regulations, which will affect those buildings that were painted at least 10 years ago, is educational and preventative, according to Board of Health Chairman Lawrence Quigley. "We want Winchester citizens to realize the danger of lead poisoning," said Quigley.

The regulations would require anyone who plans to strip paint from the interior or exterior of his home or business to obtain a permit from the board and test the paint to be removed for lead content.

If the paint is lead-free, the regulations stop there. But if the paint is found to contain lead, the person wishing to strip it must sign an advisory which indicates he knows about the danger of poisoning that could result from improper removal of lead paint.

Lead poisoning has been blamed for a variety of psychological and physical ailments. Anemia, low attention span in children and low IQ scores have all been attributed to lead poisoning, according to Steven Guberman of Bonad rd. who brought the issue to the board last May.

It became illegal to produce lead-based paint 10 years ago, after the dangers of lead poisoning had become clear. Most paint manufacturers had already stopped making it before that, but all homes painted 15 to 20 years ago probably used the lead-based paint, according to Guberman.

Sandblasting creates a problem by spewing dust and paint chips into the air which fall to the ground, said Guberman.

He cited a study by the National Center for Health Statistics which showed that the lead paint that fell off a barn in rural Lincoln created high concentrations of lead in the ground within 200 feet of the building, and then decreased as soil samples were taken farther away.

"Plants, animals and children are especially susceptible to lead poisoning," Guberman said. "Children will eat it, or put their fingers in their mouths after playing in the dirt."

The regulations proposed by the board will require that dry abrasive sandblasting, the method considered the least safe by the board, will be completely banned in residential areas. It will, however, be allowed in manufacturing zones with protective shrouding and clean up.

Wet sandblasting will also be restricted, but further study of the technique is required before the board decides on appropriate restrictions, according to Health Inspector-Agent Joanne Scott, who drafted the original proposal.

A method to remove paint by open flame is already banned by the fire department, which also does not recommend the use of coil heating and scraping.

Whenever lead paint is removed, a complete clean up of paint chips and dust particles must be done within two hours after work is completed each day.

The "preferred method" for removing paint, according to the board's proposal, is dry scraping.

The proposal is being closely modeled after regulations already adopted in Boston and Wellesley. According to Guberman, other Massachusetts communities are beginning to consider similar regulations as well.

Police Log

Thursday, Sept. 23

—A small pipe bomb exploded between double doors at the rear of Winchester High School. A resident called police to report the noise. There was damage to the plexiglass and metal panel, but no injuries.

Monday, Sept. 27

—Officer James Gallante arrested a Wakefield man at 9 p.m. for operating under the influence. Gallante responded to an accident call near Cambridge st. and Wainwright rd. and found a '72 Mercury turned on its roof.

The driver, who also hit a curb and sign post, was not injured. He was given a field sobriety test and was booked after refusing the breathalyzer test.

—Police responded to a Charles rd. home after the occupant complained about harassment by youths.

— A Dawes rd. man was cited for leaving the scene of a motor vehicle accident which happened the day before on Russell rd., causing damage to another car.

— Police are investigating an attempt to cash a bad check at the Cambridgeport Bank on Main st. Officer James B. Gray responded to the bank after an alarm and call notified police that a suspect was inside.

Bank officials told police that a $550 check was brought in for cashing by a man who produced identification. However, while the manager was looking into the check's appearance on a list of bad checks the man fled.

He was chased and seen getting into a car driven by another man. The car headed for South Border rd. Photographs taken at the bank will be developed and given to police.

Town Awards Feasibility Study Contract

Town Manager Thomas Groux has awarded a contract to Geotechnical Engineers Inc. of Winchester to conduct a feasibility study of five sites in conjunction with a possible relocation of the police and fire station.

Geotechnical bid $3,500 to do the work, but would use town-owned equipment to take soil samples. Haley and Aldrich of Cambridge bid $5,000, using their own equipment.

Town Manager Groux said he awarded the contract to Geotechnical on the recommendations of member Robert McGillicuddy and Chairman Paul Amico of the Public Safety Building Committee.

Groux said he did not feel that the involvement of Geotechnical's president, Daniel LaGatta, in Town Meeting proceedings last May constituted a conflict of interest under state law. LaGatta was chairman of the Economic Development Committee and was spokesman in favor of establishing the committee for which the contract work will be done. He resigned from the Economic Development Committee, which he headed since its inception for about a year, last May.

If the Economic Development Committee came under the Conflict of Interest law, LaGatta's firm would be prohibited from doing business with the town for two years.

The town Counsel is empowered under the law to make determinations of conflict of interest; however, he is out of the country until October. Groux said he did not ask for an opinion because he was not in doubt as to the propriety of the bid. He said if he had been in doubt he would not have asked Geotechnical for a bid.

The issue is whether or not the Economic Development Committee — which has six town officials among its 11 members — is an official town agency, defined as "any department or office of a city or town government and any council, division, board, bureau, commission, or institution thereof or thereunder."

During the previous year, the committee was jointly responsible with the town for the hiring, supervision, policy direction and funding of the Economic Development office and the coordinator, John Connery.

Amico said the recommendation to hire Geotechnical was made on the basis of price and "over-all proposal quality."

Newly Opened Main Street Pizza And Subs Is Owner Ken Johnson's 'Old American Dream' In Winchester Center

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Many people spend a lot of time dreaming and talking about owning their own business. Two years ago, Ken Johnson of Woburn decided to do something about his dream of self-employment.

Main st. Pizza and Subs, which celebrated its grand opening earlier this month, is the embodiment of that dream.

"I always wanted my own business," Johnson explained as he took a break from his packed store on Main st. "It's the old American dream."

Although the vision of the "American Dream" may have become faded since the days of Horatio Alger, Johnson is proving that it can still come true.

For 13 years, Johnson was employed as a builder. He worked a 40-hour week and made enough money to support his family, but he was not satisfied.

Two years ago, he decided to learn about the pizza and sub business. He took part-time jobs in pizza shops and read a lot about bookkeeping and other business subjects.

Business News

Now Johnson is working an 80-hour-week, but he says he is much happier than he was before he was self-employed.

His biggest concern at the moment is spreading the word about his newly cultivated cuuinary talents. The shop has been popular for its subs, but Johnson said many people do not realize Main st Pizza and Subs now sells pizza.

"I think I make the best pizza in town, but many people are not even aware I sell pizza," he noted. In an effort to reverse that situation, Johnson gave out free T-shirts on two days to every customer who ordered a large pizza.

"I wasn't making any money on that special, but I just wanted people to try my pizza," he said. "Once they try it, I know they'll come back. It's like a long-term investment."

Johnson said his business plans for the immediate fuuure focus around building up the nighttime pizza business.

He is working on organizaing a delivery service for Thursday and Friday nights when Main street Pizza and Subs is open until 10 p.m.

But Johnson does not plan to expand his pizza business at the expense of his submarine sandwich business.

"I'm not going to change too fast," he said. "I feel I have a steady, guaranteed flow of customers all the time and I don't want to lose them by making any drastic changes.

"Now, I have a good sized menu," he continued. "We have salads, hot and cold subs, soups, sandwiches, syrians — It's a good business and I don't want to hurt it.

"I have a regular morning coffee crowd that comes in because I open at 9" he added. "But I do want to try to build up my supper business."

In addition to expanding his pizza trade, Johnson said he hopes to increase the seating capacity of his shop and replace the kitchen, and add a barbeque for half-pound hamburgers and steak tips.

"I intend to stay here," he smiles.

Friday 13th Is Lucky For Fresh Paint And Wallcovering

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Friday the 13th may be an unlucky date for some people, but the superstition did not bring any misfortune to Charlie Allen of Washington st.

Since Allen opened up Fresh Paint and Wallcovering Co. on Waterfield rd. on that date last December, his business has steadily grown.

"Business has increased each month since I've been here," commented Allen. That was not the case before Allen purchased and changed the downtown paint store.

"It was a dead issue when I bought it," he said. "The business had slipped by with the previous owners, but now, it's coming back."

Allen, a painter by trade, also owns Allen Color Inc., a Cambridge-based paint contracting company. When the Winchester store went up for sale, he took advantage of an opportunity to expand in his area of expertise.

"It seemed like a logical connection between the consumer and the construction end of the business," he explained. "I've lived in Winchester all my life so I know a lot of people in town and I draw in customers from Cambridge because I do business there."

Fresh Paint and Wallcovering Co. has seen a great deal of change since Allen purchased the business. In addition to increasing the profits generated by the store, Allen broadened the products to include a full line of wallpaper. He expanded the line of paint the store carried and remodeled the upstairs store area to include an office.

"We have hundreds of new wallpaper books in the store," he noted. "We completely changed over the wallpaper department to all the latest books." Those books may be borrowed by customers overnight. For customer convenience the store opens weekdays at 7:30 and at 8 on Saturdays.

Allen takes full advantage of his large amount of basement storage space to carry a wide variety of items for household decorating and improvements.

"We brought in the Benjamin Moore line," he said. "We carry Cabot stains, Miniwax stains and California paints made from special color charts. We have quite an inventory of custom window shades. The store has a complete line of tools and accessories for painting or wallpapering."

Although Allen changed almost everything from the name of the store to its products, he knew when he should stick with a good thing. One part of the store he kept was employee Beryl Tompkins, who has virtually run the place for eight years.

Allen credits much of the store's success to Tompkin's good taste and willingness to give each customer personalized attention.

"Beryl has a big rapport in town," Allen noted. "Without her, I'd be lost. I'm a painter by trade. Between Beryl and myself, we help people select the materials they need and help them out during the job with any painting or wallpapering problems they may run into.

"I don't say we have all the answers, but we have more than the average storeowner, because we've been in the business for such a long time," he added

Recount Shows Kraus State Senate Victor

By ANNE MARIE REIDY

Sunday night, after getting recounts results in three of the four communities in the district, James Lyons abandoned his challenge of Richard Kraus for the Democratic nomination for the 4th Middlesex senatorial seat.

After tallies in Winchester, Woburn and Lexington produced virtually no changes, Lyons submitted a letter to Arlington Town Clerk Christine Callahan declaring his intent to withdraw his recount petition in Arlington.

Lyons and Kraus each lost one vote, and one vote was switched from Gerard Donahoe of Winchester to Helen Metros of Arlington, but essentially the recounts confirmed Kraus' election as announced following the primary.

At press time, none of the other candidates for the position had objected to the discontinuance of the recount.

"We didn't turn anything around in the other three towns," Lyons said. "We picked up one vote in Winchester, and lost one in Woburn, so there really was no change at all."

Lyons told The Advocate he would also be calling the Secretary of State's office to inform them of his decision to withdraw.

Lyons told The Star he would also be calling the Secretary of State's office to inform them of his decision to withdraw.

"Basically, when we began the recount process, to have any success in the turnaround, we hoped to find an error in the transcription of the numbers from the machines," Lyons explained.

His campaign staff had been hoping for about 2,000 votes from Woburn, Lyons said. They gained only 1,700 according to the election day totals.

Lyons said he wanted the recount because the printer packs from the voting machines used in Winchester and Woburn can be easily misread, and 0's, 3's and 8's can be confused.

Lyons' campaign manager Joe Tortelli said the minimal changes in the vote totals convinced them to abandon the recount.

"With the minor changes in the three towns, the difference between Kraus and Jim came out the same (as the election results.)" Tortelli stated. "So Jim decided to spare the taxpayers of Arlington the expense of recounting all the paper ballots.

"It's not up to him entirely, but I can't imagine why the Kraus people would want to hold the Arlington recount," Tortelli finished.

Callahan said she had spoken with Kraus, and would notify all the other candidates in writing. She said they have 72 hours to respond to the cancellation of the recount if they object.

"It's good news for Arlington, because it took quite some time to count the machines in the other towns," Callahan commented.

Woburn held the first recount at 9 a.m. Friday morning. After about five hours of counting, Lyons lost one vote, apparently due to a ballot being counted twice, according to the city clerk's office.

Woburn City Clerk John J. Ryan Jr. said the candidates wanted to check each absentee vote against the application, but noted "they were very gentlemanly about it." He estimated the total cost of the recount to the city at under $100.

Lexington's recount was held Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., according to Town Clerk Mary McDonough. Town officials, election officers, the candidates, their attorneys and representatives, and a police officer had to go to each of the nine polling places to check the town's voting machines. Lexington does not have printer pack machines, so vote totals can only be read from each unit.

Neither Kraus nor Lyons had any change in their vote standings after the machines and the absentee ballots had been checked. Gerard Donahoe of Winchester lost one vote, which shifted to Helen Metros of Arlington.

McDonough estimated the costs to Lexington at about $500. That figure, though, does not include the costs of work done by town DPW employees or the custodians, she said.

In Winchester, Town Clerk Carolyn Ward said the recount took about four hours, and produced a change of only two votes.

Both Kraus and Edward Flaherty of Woburn lost a single vote. Ward said the votes represented absentee ballots that had been counted as votes for those candidates in error. On each of the two ballots, the senatorial race was left blank.

Ward said she experienced no problems with the recount, although there hasn't been one in Winchester for more than five years. It was a first for the Town Clerk and her staff. She said she was glad it went as smoothly as it did.

Ward said there were about 12 people observing the recount, including both candidates and their attorneys. "The candidates were very polite," she stated.

Ward said the Lyons campaign challenged every absentee ballot as a procedural matter.

"They had some problems with people voting so far in advance of the election, but there is no prohibition in the law," Ward explains. "As soon as the ballots are received, we can allow absentee ballots." She added that the earliest absentee ballots were filed about a month ago.

Ward said she hadn't expected any changes in the machine totals, which she termed, "usually reliable unless there's a mechanical failure."

Winchester's 34 voting machines were cleaned, overhauled, and lubricated this summer at a cost of $2,300, Ward said. It's regular maintenance that the town ought to do every five years, she explained.

When Lyons withdrew from the recount in Arlington, it was good news for the town, said Town Clerk Christine Callahan.

"It took quite some time for the towns with machines to count them," Callahan pointed out. "It would have gone way into the night or the next day with our paper ballots."

Callahan said her election officials and 18 pairs of tellers would have had to count the more than 16,000 paper ballots Monday night, because her office is just too busy to do a recount during a work day.

Arlington didn't hold its recount Saturday because of the town's annual Town Day celebration.

When the Kraus campaign staff heard of Lyons' withdrawal through the phone call from Callahan, they contacted the lawyers they had been consulting, according to Kraus campaign manager Ellen Carno.

She did not believe the Kraus campaign would have to withdraw the recount papers they had filed, as long as no protest was filed with the 72 hour limit.

"We're at a loss right now to know what's going on," said Kraus.

"During the recount in the other three communities, it looked like the Lyons people were leading up to a court battle on the absentee ballots," Kraus said.

"They challenged every single absentee ballot in the other three communities. They examined every one of them, and said something about incorrect procedures being used in accepting the absentee ballots.

"Clearly from the way the recount was going, only something of that magnitude would turn the election around for them," Kraus concluded.

The Lyons people said their challenges of the absentee ballots were because of legal restrictions on the recount procedure.

"There was an unusually high number of absentee ballots in this particular race," explained Tortelli. "The challenges were done on the advice of our attorneys.

"If we didn't make those challenges at this point, during the recounts, the information would have been closed to us forever," Tortelli said.

"We have no intention of moving the challenge into court at this time," Tortelli added.

"We hope this will be the end of this election," commented Carno. "We like the results just as they are."

"I certainly hope it's the end of this issue," Kraus said Monday. "The line they were apparently pursuing, to get the absentee ballots thrown out, is one that has not succeeded anywhere at any time according to all the lawyers I've consulted."

Kraus said he was ready to move on to the next phase of the election, the November race, although he is unopposed on the Republican side of the ticket.

Lyman Judd of Arlington, who ran an unsuccessful write-in campaign for the Republican nod, said he will not attempt a write-in campaign for the November ballot.

"There clearly is another election," Kraus insisted, when asked if the results of this primary meant, in fact, that he had won the Senate seat.

"Clearly, I need to do some fence-building and campaigning in areas where I wasn't very strong," he admitted. "And we need to do some fund-raising to cover our debts from the primary.

"It will be a different intensity than the primary, but it will certainly be a campaign," Kraus promised.

This Tuesday is the last day to register for the state Nov. 2 elections, the Town Clerk warns.

Rec. Dept. Taking Registration In Gymnastics

The Winchester Recreation Department is delaying its Pre-school-Kindergarten Gymnastics Program for one week in order to accept registrations from other interested participants who wish to enroll. First class will meet on Tuesday, Oct. 5.

Two classes are being offered for 10 weeks at the Muraco School on Tuesday mornings. Children aged 4 and-a-half to 5 years participate from 9:30 to 10:20 a.m.

Children aged 3 and-a-half to 5 and-a-half years come at 10:30 and must be accompanied by a parent who will help the child engage in simple gymnastic movements. The parant-child involvement enriches the experience for the child and the parent as well as helps the child become involved in social programs more easily.

Both classes are being instructed by Noreen Arcari. Registration takes place at the Recreation Department daily.

Hamsters and gerbils are rodents whose front (incisor) teeth constantly grow. You may find that they need trimming if they interfere with eating. Try keeping a piece of hardwood in the cage. It will give them something to gnaw on as a natural way to keep their teeth trimmed. Because hamsters and gerbils keep their coats glossy and smooth through self-grooming, you need not bathe or brush them. However, a matted or shedding, coat indicates that the animal is sick. Humidity of 50% or more, will cause a gerbil's coat to look matted. Try to keep this pet in a dry environment.

ZBA Approves Hospital Construction

Three last-minute changes in the $23 million expansion of Winchester Hospital were approved this week by the Zoning Board of Appeal.

The board's decision came less than one week after hospital president Jack Hunter requested the modifications to the original plan submitted on Sept. 15.

The decision was unusually swift for the board, which usually takes three to four weeks to issue an opinion, according to Zoning Board of Appeal Chairman Ferdinand Pacione. Pacione said that he worked to get the decision out before Sept. 30, to save the hospital from additional costs it would have to pay after that date to raise a new bond issue.

The approved changes will allow the hospital to build closer to two streets which neighborhood residents felt were becoming cramped by the hospital expansion.

The building along Valley rd. will extend another 16 inches closer to the street. The first floor of the building along Fairmount st. will extend another three and one-half feet.

The third change requested was for an outside stairwell, 16 by 13 feet, down the entire height of the building facing Maple rd. The stairwell was originally to be built inside.

The space saved by running the stairs down the outside will modernize the operating rooms and intensive care, providing the "best layout for patient care and surgical staff," according to Hunter.

Local residents who have until now felt ignored by the hospital, appear willing to accept the proposed expansion.

Daniel Chane of Forest st., a member of the neighborhood committee formed to protect residents' interests, said that the newly opened garage, a major bone of contention with residents until now, "shows that the hospital tried. The exterior brick work is excellent, which was in response to resident complaints to the originally planned concrete exterior, and the plantings and landscaping on Fairmount st., and Valley rd., almost enhance the area."

Construction of the garage throughout the summer had made life difficult for some residents, according to Chane, because of the resulting noise and traffic problems.

Pacione said that residents at last week's hearing on the three requested changes did not come out in favor of the proposals. He noted that they did not seem as adverse to hospital plans as they have been in the past. "It was generally a good meeting, smoother than others I've been involved in," he said. "There was a feeling to let the hospital enact, but only with board approval. We all listened, and there was no real gnashing of teeth."

NEW FRIENDS — Nancy Hunter (left), president of Friends of Winchester Hospital, discussed the types of services provided by the Friends with new volunteers recently including Lillian Monsen (right) of Winchester. Winchester Hospital Celebrates Garage Opening With 150 Residents, Ribbon Cutting Ceremony

GARAGE OPENING — Don Chane drives his 1925 Model T Ford through the ribbon, becoming the first car to enter Winchester Hospital's new parking garage at ceremonies held last week. Chane, who lives in the neighborhood of the hospital, is accompanied in the front seat by Sumner Andrews, vice-chairman of the hospital's board of directors. Behind Chane is Jack R. Hunter, president of the hospital. Next to Hunter in the back seat is Dr. Gustav Kaufmann, chairman of the hospital's Gift of Health Campaign, a capital campaign to raise funds for expansion and renovation of the hospital.

As a heavy rain fell outside, some 150 persons gathered inside Winchester Hospital's new parking garage last Wednesday for a threefold celebration: the grand opening of the garage, the ground-breaking for a new addition to the hospital and the kick-off for Phase II of the hospital's Gift of Health Campaign, a capital campaign to raise $7.5 million for expansion and renovation.

"It may be inclement out there, but as far as I'm concerned, the sun is shining," Winchester Hospital President Jack R. Hunter told the crowd. "This (new parking garage) is the solution to a problem we've lived with for a long time. If I could name any human quality that has been associated with this endeavor," Hunter added, "it would be patience - on the part of the neighbors, the employees, and the administration, because there have been so many delays."

Instead of the usual ribbon cutting, Dan Chane, who lives in the neighborhood of the hospital, drove his 1925 Model T Ford through the ribbon and into the new 305-car parking structure. With Chane in the Model T were Hunter, Sumner Andrews, vice chairman of the hospital's board of directors, and Dr. Gustav Kaufmann, chairman of the Gift of Health Campaign.

Construction of the garage was the first phase of the hospital's $23 million expansion and renovation project. Work on Phase II of the project, which will include the addition of 28 medical surgical beds to the hospital, is under way and is scheduled to be completed in early spring, 1984.

In the kick-off speech for Phase II of the Gift of Health Campaign, campaign chairman Dr. Kaufmann said that the garage has been paid for through pledges in the first phase of the campaign. "Now," Dr. Kaufmann said, "we're getting down to what a hospital is built for. Now we've got the care of people ahead of us."

By the end of June, he said, about $2 million had been pledged, including a $1 million gift from Mr. and Mrs. Frederic E. Abbe of Winchester and about $1 million in pledges from the community and the hospital family, which includes hospital directors, corporates, medical and dental staff, employees and volunteers.

The audience cheered when Dr. Kaufmann continued on to say that as of the day of the ceremonies, a total of $4,160,360 in pledges had come in - over half of the goal for the Gift of Health Campaign.

23 New Members Join The Friends Of Hospital Group

Many area residents attended orientation meetings held by the Friends of Winchester Hospital, an organization offering volunteer services to the hospital. Lou Ann Bankson and Joy Rossettos, vice-chairwomen of volunteers for the Friends, planned and chaired the meetings which attracted 23 new volunteers to the Friends' programs.

Nancy Hunter, president of Friends, welcomed everyone and gave a report on the growth of Friends from 150 members to more than 500 today. She explained the friends, dual purposes are to provide volunteer services and to interpret the hospital to the community.

Phyllis Hollinshead, director of Volunteers for the hospital, explained the importance of volunteers in complementing the work of the staff and helping provide a climate of caring. She is retiring from this position on Oct. 1 and introduced Marie Johnson as the new Director of Volunteers for the Winchester Hospital.

Each orientation concluded with a slide presentation illustrating various services and describing duties involved in each. The new volunteers were assigned a position and will start training this week. Anyone interested in more information on being a volunteer for the Friends of Winchester Hospital may call the hospital.

Cong. Markey To Visit For Environmental Forum

Cong. Edward J. Markey's mobile office will make a special visit to Winchester on Monday as part of a day-long, district-wide environmental affairs forum.

Members of Markey's staff will be at the corner of Main St. and the Mystic Valley Pkwy, from 10:30 to noon, to meet with residents who have questions or comments about hazardous waste disposal, water pollution, airport noise, off-shore oil drilling and other environmental issues.

"Winchester residents know all too well that we are confronted with some critical environmental problems, "Markey said. "The disturbing situation at Amberwood Estates and the contamination of the Mystic Lakes are examples of the serious problems that cities and towns throughout the nation are struggling to resolve.

Markey said that as a member of the House Subcommittee on Energy and the Environment, and as chairman of the Interior Committee's Oversight and Investigation Subcommittee he has been very active in the legislative efforts to deal with these problems.

"But more importantly, as Congressman for the Seventh District, I have been working diligently to ensure a liveable environment for the people I represent.

"This environmental affairs forum in my mobile congressional office affords my constituents an opportunity to express their views on this important subject and to learn more about what we are doing to make our environment safe for future generations."

The "special issues" program is a supplement to the regular mobile congressional office schedule. Congressman Markey's mobile office makes weekly stops in Seventh District communities throughout the year.

Baskin-Robbins Celebrates 10 Year Anniversary In Winchester

The place that has put the "happy into birthdays in Winchester for 10 years invites its friends and neighbors to celebrate its own birthday.

Inviting local residents to share in the fun during the store's birthday party is Leonard P. Davis. A variety of favorite flavors, including Choc. Mousse Royale will be featured during the celebration.

Each of Baskin-Robbins' 31 flavors offered monthly — originally designed so customers could have a different flavor for each day of the month — are chosen on a rotational basis from more than 500 recipes of ice cream, sherbets and ices.

In 1945, when most people in the world of ice cream were caught up in mass production and distribution, brothers-in-law Irvine Robbins and Burton Baskin developed the concept of serving unique flavors and a dedication to quality, and friendly neighborhood store atmosphere.

With their company growing rapidly in popularity from the first small store in Glendale, Calif., to worldwide Baskin and Robbins decided to offer franchises, continuing with the neighborhood ice cream store idea. The Winchester Baskin-Robbins is part of a network of more than 2,300 stores.

Fortnightly To Hold First Meeting Oct. 18

The Fortnightly will hold the first of the season's meetings Monday, Oct. 18, at 1 p.m. in Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church.

Refreshments will be by Finance and Hospitality Committees with co-chairmen Mrs. Ralph Hatch and Mrs. Ralph Carlisle.

The newly elected president, Mrs. William Sorenson, will conduct a business meeting. Mrs. Robert Watson, first vice president will present the program, "Plant Clinic" by Lois and Gary Gordon.

Nuclear Arms Freeze Resolution Should Be Debated At T M

By SUSAN SCHNECK

This fall, Town Meeting will be asked to join 135 other communities in Massachusetts who have adopted resolutions asking the president of the United States to take steps toward a mutual nuclear weapons freeze with the Soviet Union.

But before Town Meeting members can even argue the merits of a nuclear weapons freeze, they have another important debate before them -- whether or not it is appropriate for Town Meeting to consider an issue which does not directly affect the municipal affairs of Winchester.

It could be argued that the nuclear arms race has more of a direct impact on the lives of Winchester residents than video game licenses, renamed town land or downtown parking problems. The Soviet Union has missiles aimed at the United States which could instantly destroy life in Winchester as well as trigger off the obliteration of the rest of the planet.

But there are other governmental forums which will and are debating the advantages of a nuclear weapons freeze and the accompanying aspects of that issue.

No other governmental body can or will consider the effects that video games in town would have on the residents. No other governmental body cares whether electronic games downtown would damage or improve the business climate, increase or decrease the amount of vandalism or attract undesirable or desirable elements to Winchester.

No other political forum will engage in a lengthy debate about the advantages and disadvantages of installing an elevator in Town Hall or upgrading the town's outdated computer system.

Town Meeting members run for office specifically to decide those issues. And residents elect them for that purpose.

A debate on the nuclear arms issue could easily lead to endless nights of emotional argument as well as pave the way for other long debates.

Maybe so. But the consequences of failing to take advantage of a chance to have a say in our future are far more dangerous. Do we want to yield our say in governmental policy -- regardless of how small it might be -- to those who are in state and national politics? Or to those who may not have our best interests at heart?

Far too often, we hear about people who have lost their interest in national and international affairs because they feel helpless in their ability to influence the outcome of events.

Do we really want to turn down an opportunity to affect -- even in a small way-- the fate of the nuclear arms race and subsequently our future? Local participation in political issues is the basis of the democratic governmental structure. That government is weakened whenever citizens fail to exercise their constitutional right to speak out.

Selectman Mark Lombardi argued against a debate of the nuclear weapons freeze at Town Meeting saying that he had once submitted an article for the Town Meeting warrant that he considered very important, but it was turned down by the Board of Selectmen.

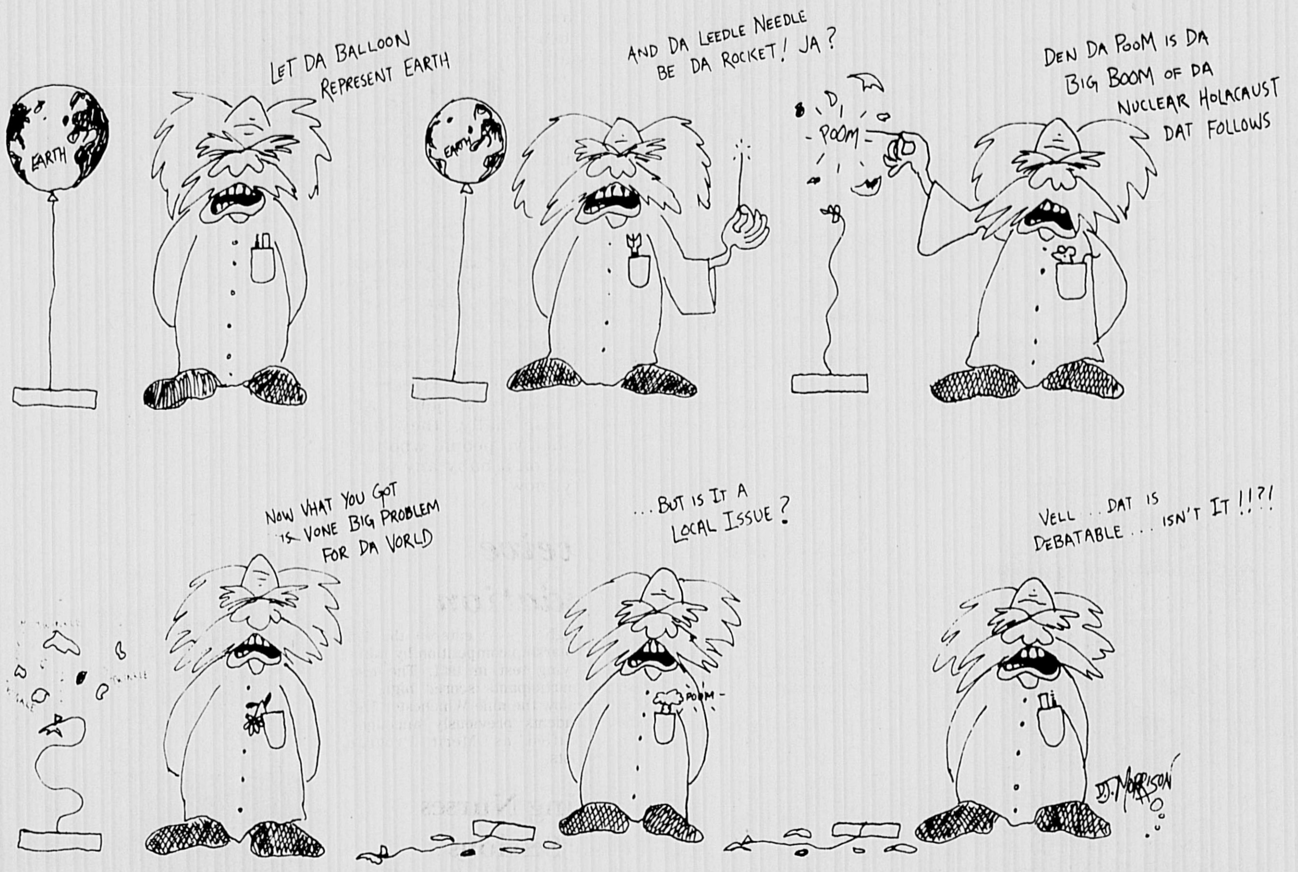
"Different issues are important to different people," Lombardi said. "If this (freeze) issue is allowed to be debated, then my (Winchester) article should have been debated. And we could go on and on."

We could. And maybe we should. But we definitely should not let fear of setting precedents stand in the way of deciding our future. Especially when it involves an issue like the nuclear arms race where the strong grassroots movement has had such a strong impact on national sentiment.

Town Meeting members should devote the bulk of their time to deciding issues which directly affect town affairs. But not at the expense of relinquishing their democratic right to shape their future and that of their country.

There is room for both, as 135 other towns have demonstrated. To do so, however, will require that the Town Meeting Moderator exercise his power to limit debates when they become repetitive.

But if residents let other speakers share the spotlight, or even speak for them, and the moderator ensures that debates do not get out of hand and become repetitive, the debate could be instructive for the town and maybe even for the country and world we live in.



Letters To The Editor

Keep U.S. Technology In This Country

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In the last 10 years alone, the U.S. and other Western nations have sold to the Soviet Union and its satellites more than $50 billion worth of sophisticated technical equipment the Communists could not produce themselves.

This equipment has been used to produce nuclear missiles, tanks, and armored cars, military command and control systems, spy satellites, and air defense radars.

In addition, the Soviets have been able to purchase entire factories, designed and built by Western engineers and financed in large part by American and Western European banks.

Much of the production of these factories is devoted to the manufacture of military transport, ammunition, and other logistical items for the Soviet war machine, the greatest in history.

We, the people, should demand that the top leaders of the government of the United States stop the sale and licensing for sale to the Soviet Union, and its satellites, and to Red China of the technology, including both hardware and software, used by the Communists to build deadly missles and aim them at the United States.

As technology of all types is utilized by Communist nations for military purposes, the marketing of any of America's technological achievements or scientific know-how to history's most brutal despots clearly is an act of treason against humanity.

We should further demand that our leaders no longer make any loans, provide any trade credits, grant most favored nation trade status or to reschedule any depts. for any Communist country. It is this type of American financial assistance that has allowed the Communists to purchase our technology and scientific know-how.

Respectfully,
Rupert Kuglin

Making Moral Decisions Is Part Of Democratic Heritage

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

"Humans do not have the right to play God." This idea is used to emasculate the human will. Those who espouse it would preclude euthanasia and abortion, prevent suicide and forestall capital punishment without regard to the merits of any particular case.

Does this belief have a place in modern society? It robs the individual of the right to make moral decisions. It stifles free will, which is essential to meaning in human life. The denial of free will and moral autonomy are self-effacing denials of the human condition.

To relinquish choice to the government is to shirk the responsibility we all have to freedom. Some deny this responsibility due to a mistaken concept of democracy. They presage the end of democracy. They belong in the Soviet Union.

Some believe we have no right to 'play God' for religious reasons. Then they give to the state the power that is God's. Granting the premise that God exists, humans have a duty to make decisions in his name. We are God's agents on earth.

Bill Schmidt Thanks Voters For Support

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Ten days ago, I was fortunate enough to win the Democratic nomination for Middlesex County Commissioner. In a year when most of the public's attention was focused on the campaigns for Governor and Lieutenant Governor, it was difficult to make people aware of the issues involved in county government.

However, due to the willingness of many of the daily and weekly newspapers in the county to cover our race, as well as the interest of many concerned residents, our efforts were successful on primary day.

In the next few weeks before the election in November, I will continue to make myself available to the press and Middlesex County voters to discuss the role of county commissioner, and to gain valuable insights into local needs.

Thank you for your interest, and support.

Sincerely,
Bill Schmidt

Lyons Thanks Voters, Opponents

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

To the Voters of Winchester:

Dear Friends,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for the suppport given me in the Democratic Primary for State Senator. Thank you also for the kindness and courtesy shown toward my wife Bernadette and myself as we campaigned throughout the town.

I especially appreciate the efforts of those of you who contributed your time and energy to my campaign. Your help and encouragement was a vital part of my electoral effort.

All of the candidates in the race conducted clean, energetic campaigns. I want to congratulate Dick Kraus for his victory in the primary and to extend my best wishes to him and his family.

Thank you again for your support. I hope in the future we will again be able to work together.

Sincerely,
Jim Lyons

Nuclear Proponents Are Soviet Pawns

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Proponents of the inclusion of a nuclear freeze article in the Town Warrant should be satisfied with the fact that the question will be voted in the state election in November. There are two groups advocating the freeze (1) sincere, patriotic citizens who have been misled by clever, subtle Soviet propaganda; and (2) those communist sympathizers and agents who put loyalty to communism ahead of loyalty to their own coutry.

The first group should read the enlightening article beginning on page 205 of the October issue of Reader's Digest. It may enable them to realize that they are pawns of Soviet strategy to gain world domination.

Let' not turn Town Meeting into a forum for Soviet propaganda.

Stanley B. Black

Dukakis Committee Thanks Supporters

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We'd like to take this opportunity to thank all the voters of Winchester for their support of Mike Dukakis on Sept. 14. This success was due to the enthusiasm and talent of over 100 campaign workers and the response of the voters.

This grassroots effort has created new friendships, a feeling of camaraderie, and the triumphant euphoria that only a political campaign can produce. It's been a long hard year of work, but it's been fun and exhilarating. Our thanks to all who are part of it.

Realization Sets In: I Am A Senior

by Betty De Conto

Last Saturday I took my first step on the incredible road of being a senior. On that sparkling morning which reminded me more of a summer day than the third day of autumn, I dressed in an unseasonable sweater and braced myself for the inevitable ordeal — senior class pictures! Until then, I found it hard to believe that I was actually a senior. Whenever anyone asked me what grade I was in, I had to think twice.

Getting my picture taken for the yearbook was symbolic to me and represented the first of a chain of events that will lead me and the senior class to recieve our diplomas in June. It was a reflection of the 12 hard years I've worked to get into the exalted position of being an upperclassman. After all, isn't senior year supposed to be the highlight of one's high school career, the memorable year to remember all one's life?

I took my "initiation into seniorhood" very seriously. This final portrait is to be my stamp, my mark on Winchester High, a reminder to everyone that I passed three years within its walls. Like it or not, it is how my classmates will remember me 20 years from now.

I even persuaded my orthodontist to remove the last remnant of my braces in honor of the occasion. I sure didn't want my classmates to remember me with silver on my teeth. In addition, I will no longer be left off the family wall and will finally become a "full-fledged" member of the family on the day when my graduation picture gets hung alongside those of my brothers and sisters.

But after my experience on Saturday, I'm not looking forward to seeing the finished proofs. I don't know how other seniors felt when they posed for their pictures, but that's exactly how I felt — posed. I know the photographers do their job well and the final products in the yearbook come out so perfectly it's hard to believe they are of the same people we see each day in school. But after thinking back on my session, I reserve some doubts.

For instance, I wonder if the feather placed in the background will have the desired effect the photographer promised it would. And what about the "neck-breaker", the pose so aptly described by the photographer in which you turn your head about 120 degrees for a nice view of the back of our head? I think I was so preoccupied with holding my head at the right angle and perfect tilt while looking in the specified direction, that I forgot to smile.

This is sure to be a memorable year, especially for seniors who, including myself, have to go through the required rituals. This is a year for firsts and lasts. Some firsts we have already experienced, including the first football games, parties, and dance.

The last exams, proms, and graduation are actually not too far ahead, although in only the third week of school they seem to be. The middle events, those between September and June, will include important decisions concerning college and the future.

But most importantly, in the months ahead will be made enough memories to last a lifetime.

Love Is What Endures — If We Let It Breathe

Terry Marotta

I have some friends who are getting married this Saturday.

They've known each other for a long while now, and they've been engaged for a whole year.

They're all grown up, with careers fully launched and chugging out in open waters. They have half an alphabet of letters that they get to put after their names, if the occasion ever arises for trotting out the degrees and the credentials. They're both engineers, is what they are — and so they understand what comprises the physical world, what keeps it glued together and ticking away.

So they're ready for marriage, you see. Grownups, as I say.

Not like the child I was that year I decided to marry. When I think of it now!

Nineteen I was when I met that boy at a summer job.

I remember with such clarity our first autumn together.

Hubert Humphrey was running for President, with his rosy cheeks and the Politics of Joy. The beatles dominated the airwaves. "Laugh-In" was changing the face of American television.

And I was weekending in Cambridge, arriving Fridays with a suitcase full of schoolwork; having picnics by the Charles; and attending that famous Harvard-Yale game where each team capped an undefeated season with a spectacular last minute 29-to-29 tie.

I had long hair down my back, which I set on soup cans to achieve the proper degree of smoothness. . . . Blowdryers weren't even invented.

We all wore skirts the size of small potholders.

I worried about Viet Nam, like most people my age. In a high school class of nearly a thousand, we'd already lost our share of boys to that war.

But I worried more about my immediate circumstances: about that paper due for American Political History; about whether or not there was a God; about whether or not I could afford to buy the latest Bob Dylan album.

I was a kid, living away from home in the sheltered and nurturing atmosphere of a liberal arts college.

I switched my tassle one June day, from the left side of my mortar board to the right. Three weeks later I put on a wedding ring and called myself a grownup.

At 21. With my records and my soup cans and my knowledge of the Whigs and the Federalists.

When I think of it now.

And then I think of my friends.

They really are grownups. Their combined ages total three times the 19 years I had when I decided on marriage. They own a house already, and a dog who Speaks and Sits and Snoozes on the bed. They have careers instead of summer jobs. And recently especially, they have the look of two people who'll be starting in on a baby any one of these days now.

But it's funny: at the same time they're still young, like we were young — in the place where it counts.

He writes love songs, and she wears T-shirts with pictures of Mickey Mouse on them. Lots of times when we go out, her waist-length hair is still damp and Breck-y from the shower. They believe in love, and in the hope of keeping it alive over the circling years.

They have every expectation that though change will rise to greet them again and again on their chosen paths, it will not create division between them.

Though circumstances change, and jobs change, and physical appearances change over time — there will be continuity still.

If he forswears song-writing to take up small arms; if she sheds the T-shirts and the simplicty for pancake makeup and whalebone undergarments, still, they expect to stay married in their spirits.

And here's why.

Because in a world where all things alter and all things age, where a rose is perfect for one day only, and they shoot song-writers like they shot John Lennon — in a world where the Politics of Joy is a thing long dead in today's complicated global equation. . . .

Love is what endures, if we let it just breath free.

It's the one thing that does endure.

That stays 19, with long hair down the back and a suitcase full of dreams.

That keeps us young forever, that redeems and sets us free.

(Terry Marotta lives in the state of marriage where she writes a weekly column for The Winchester Star)

OPERA TO GO — The Winchester - Wellesley Club benefit program Thursday, Oct. 14 will feature three performing artists, including soprano Flicka Willmore (left) and baritone David vanAbberna.

Wellesley Club Selling Tickets For Opera To Go

Tickets are on sale for Opera To Go, this year's Winchester-Wellesley Club benefit program. The curtain will go up at Hadley Hall, 70 Church st., at 10:30 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 14. Members of Young Audiences will perform and discuss excerpts from several well-known operas. After door prizes have been awarded, a salad luncheon will be served to all ticket holders.

The three artists who will be performing are soprano Flicka Willmore, baritone, David van Abbema, and accompnaist James Busby.

Flicka is new to the Boston area. She has had extensive performing experience in her native Texas and has extended her credits to such local organizations as the Boston Lyric Opera, the Brookline Symphony, and the Boston Philharmonic. She is scheduled to perform at Carnegie Hall several days prior to her engagement here.

Van Abbema is also new to New England audiences. He has performing experience in the Dayton and San Antonio areas and is currently a D.M.A. candidate at the University of Iowa.

Accompanist Busby is no stranger to Winchester. He grew up in the town and attended Winchester schools. He is music director at the First Parish Church in Brookline.

At a recent preview party Wilmore and Busby performed several pieces they plan to include in their program. One operetta they will include in the program is "The Telephone" by Gian Carlo Menotti. In this sequence Ben and Lucy have a problem communicating effectively because of a telephone. He finally shows some real ingenuity and succeeds in getting his message to her.

Proceeds from ticket sales will be divided between Wellesley College and the Winchester Scholarship Foundation. Tickets are available from club members.

OPERA — Well-known accompanist James Busby will appear at the Winchester - Wellesley Club benefit program "Opera To Go," on Thursday, Oct. 14.

15 WHS Students Receive Natl. Merit Commendation

Fifteen Winchester High School seniors are being commended in the 1983 National Merit Scholarship program. Letters of Commendation will be presented to:

Karen L. Carter of 158 Highland ave, Sean E. Cloherty of 50 Oxford st., Jeffrey Contompasis of 23 Alden lane, Robert M. Dixon of 9 Rangeley rd., Thomas E. Funk of 29 Woodside rd., Bart R. Mallio of 20 Westland ave., Julie A. O'Callaghan of 31 Winthrop st.,

Also, Vincent Pisacreta of 10 Plato terr., Jennifer H. Pulos of 21 Lincoln st., Karen S. Rahmeier of 39 Thornberry rd., Gerald C. Shaprut of 21 Symmes rd. Carla M. Torres of 19 Everell rd., Karen G. Twichell of 21 Swan rd., Rodney M. Ward of 4 Wildwood terr., Lani N. Yamamoto of 5 Carriage lane.

They placed among the top five percent of the participants in the twenty-eighth nationwide competition, according to WHS principal Vincent E. Larocco.

A spokesman for National Merit Scholarship Corporation, which conducts the Merit Program said that to rank among the top 50,000 performers in a competition that includes over one million participants is an outstanding attainment, deserving of public recognition.

The students being commended this month, who are now beginning their final year of high school, entered the 1983 Merit Scholarship competition by taking the qualifying test in 1981. The commended participants scored high, but slightly below the nine Winchester High School students previously announced who qualified as Merit Program Semifinalists.

Meeting Set For Young Adults To Help Latin Americans

Young people aged 16 to 23 who would like to work to improve the quality of life for the poor in Latin America are presently being recruited by Amigos de las Americas, a national youth volunteer organization with an active Boston-area chapter.

A general information meeting will be held by the Boston-area chapter of Amigos on Tuesday evening, Oct. 5 at 7:30 p.m. at the Payson Park Church in Belmont.

"Amigos" are friends, American high school and college students, who volunteer several weeks of their summer vacation to live and work with the poor in Latin America to improve medical, health and social services.

Parents and officers of the Boston-area chapter of Amigos will also be on hand to detail financial considerations and to explain the training program which is provided locally. Training sessions are held weekly from November through June.

The six-month training program, conducted by local professionals who donate their time, includes Latin American culture, public health care, human relations, Spanish, leadership training and practical skills for various job assignments.

For more information about the program, write to Amigos at 582 Pleasant st., Belmont, 02178.

Winchester Trails Start 14th Year With Walks And Slides

This month marks the start of Winchester Trails' fourteenth year of service to the school children and adults of the town. A full week of refresher walks and slide programs for the guides began Sept. 27 with a morning at Long Pond.

Reviews of Locke Farm Conservation area, Town Forest and other conservation land will take place on subsequent mornings. Those activities are preparation for October Field trips which are an integral part of the natural science program in the Winchester schools.

During the fall and again in the spring, all third and fourth grades will have the opportunity to explore Winchester's natural areas and to observe the processes which they have studied in classes and lab sessions.

Currently active Winchester Trails guides, and those who would like to prepare to join the group, are invited to all the refresher walks: for information please call Marjorie Moore at Dennett rd. or Maggie Howard at Gardner pl. arts festival

Nat'l. Association Gives Grant To Ambrose School

The Ambrose School has been awarded a $500 grant to develop a global education program to help its elementary school students begin to understand and appreciate an increasingly complex world.

Dr. Robert Forest, principal of the school said the $500 will be used to develop activities using global education concepts to teach current events and geography to elementary students.

The grant, awarded by the National Association of Elementary School Principals (NAESP) and Longview Foundation, is one of 22 presented to elementary schools throughout the country and Canada. The total amount awarded was $11,000.

"We live in an era of global interdependence. Nations rely on one another for minerals, food energy, technology, and the know-how to produce these and other goods," said H. Thomas Collins, an education consultant specializing in global education for NAESP. "But, he added, "we are just as interdependent on the exchange of culture, ideas, knowledge.

Traditionally, young people learn aboout the world in high school history classes or social studies. This piecemeal learning does not add up to global education. It is both too little and too late," Collins said.

Class Of '67 Plans Reunion Dinner

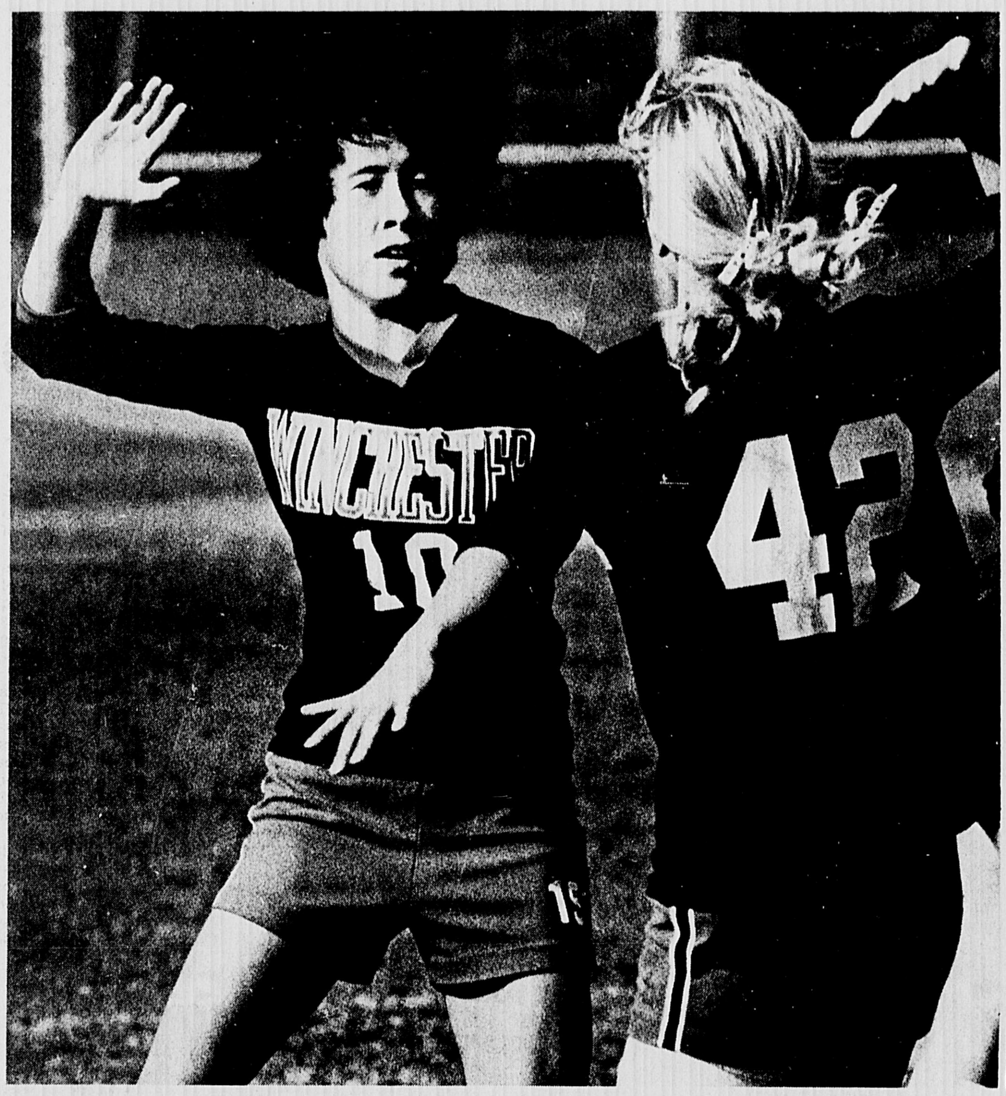
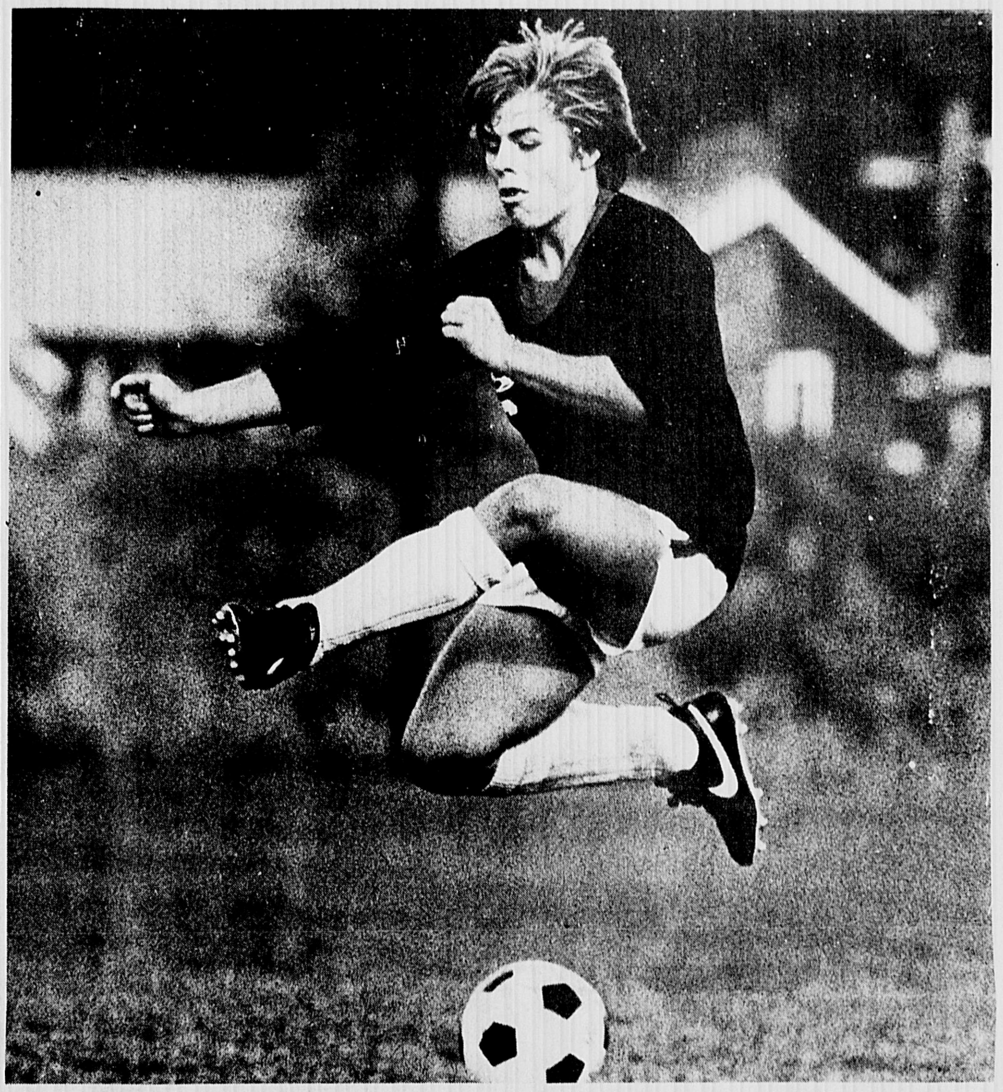
Soccer Powerhouses Roll On:



SIGN OF THE TIMES — Giving and getting "high-five" handshakes may become a symbol of the Sachemette soccer team if they contiue to overpower their opposition as they did during the first two games of the season. Mich Powers (left) and Karen Serieka celebrate Powers scored the team's first goal of the season Friday in a 6-1 win over Arlington. (Photo by Noreen Murphy)



HIGH FLYING SACHEMS — The Sachem soccer team is tied for the Middlesex League league with Lexington after five games as both teams are sporting unblemished records. The Sachems lead the league in goals with 19 and have allowed a league leading two goals against them. The powerhouse team is flying high but will soon face the iron of the league and then quality will show. (Photo by Noreen Murphy)

Sachemettes Awesome In Two Straight Wins

The quest for a fifth straight Middlesex League girls soccer crown got off to one heck of a start last week and didn't slow down one iota Tuesday. If anything, the Sachemettes are picking up steam and it could be that, as the losing Wakefield coach predicted Tuesday, nobody in the Middlesex League will be able to keep up with the red-hot Winchester team.

After a mere two games, the girls have outscored their opponents by a combined score of 14-2. In the first game alone, the Sachemettes had 40 shots on goal.

Tuesday's game against Wakefield was predicted to have been a lot tougher than the final 8-1 score. Wakefield was undefeated, boasting a record of 3-0-1. Winchester was also undefeated but had only played one game, that a 6-1 victory over relatively hapless Arlington Friday.

That prediction of rough going was looking like it might come true at the end of the first quarter when the Sachemettes found themselves behind 1-0. But apparently it was just a matter of getting the engines warmed up and then it became a one-sided drag race as Winchester left Wakefield in a cloud of smoke.

The second quarter produced four goals for the Sachemettes. Led by Kim Donlon (who had a hat trick in this game), they scored two quick goals. Donlon was set up first by Kristine MacNamara and then by Sara Richardson.

The Sachemettes never looked back after that. The two Ricciardelli sisters, Patty and Paula, each scored. Donlon squeezed her third goal between two Mich Powers goals.

Karen Serieko closed out the scoring for the Sachemettes.

It was a tremendous effort but coach Chris Scanlon was a little worried that it apparently took a goal against them to spark the girls to get started. Next time he hopes to have the opposition watching his team score first.

That was the case Friday against Arlington, as the Sachemettes' poor next-door neighbors didn't get a goal until the fourth quarter, long after the match was settled. The Arlington goalie faced 40 shots and allowed six goals, a strong game under the circumstances.

Mich Powers scored two goals and Kerry MacDonald had two assists. Powers and Laura Weylman gave the Sachemettes a 2-0 first quarter lead which was bolstered by two more goals in the third, one by Donlon and another by Maria Montouri. Powers and Patty Ricciardelli closed out the scoring for the Sachemettes.

It was an impressive start for the four-time champs and by now, opposing coaches might have started praying for snow days, when they are scheduled to play the Sachemettes.

Sachems Stretch Undefeated String To Five

Nobody figured it would be so easy.

Sure, the two opponents were in the bottom of the league standings. But Winchester had lost all of their back line to graduation and then tri-captain Chip Triglione was lost for the season with a broken leg.

But as of Tuesday night, the Sachems are undefeated, boasting a 5-0 record and tied with Lexington for the league lead. Winchester has the undisputed league lead in goals scored this season with 19 and is tied with Lexington for fewest goals surrendered - a measly two.

Tuesday's game was, hopefully, an indication of what's to come. The Sachems hosted Burlington very ungraciously, taking 30 shots on goal and sending their visitors home smarting from a 5-0 defeat.

But the offense and the defense sparkled. Senior tri-captain Chris Guarnotta was a stalwart, repelling several Burlington attacks with good assistance from Dan Sullivan.

Mike Driscoll didn't waste any time showing off the Sachems' mighty offense. Fed by Bobby Anderson (who was fed by Kevin Scully), Driscoll took one shot on goal that was deflected and then took the rebound which went in at 2:59 of the opening quarter.

Scully fed Roger Baldacci who scored the Sachems second goal at 4:04 of the first quarter. Baldacci returned the favor shortly thereafter with a pass to Scully who scored at 1:06 of the second period.

The fourth and fifth goals were almost carbon copies of one another. At 6:49 of the third quarter, Driscoll took a pass from Mark Herlihy and headed the ball into the net. At 5:20 of the fourth quarter, Scully did the same thing. Result: 5-0, Sachems.

The match against Reading on Friday was another shutout, not as overwhelming as Tuesday's match but a satisfactory 3-0 win nonetheless.

The Sachems took 28 shots on goal and their offense showed signs of great things to come. Roger Baldacci got an early goal off a rebounded shot by Mike Driscoll. The lead expanded to 2-0 when Bobby Anderson took a short pass from Bob Clower and banged the ball home. The final goal came form one of the team's leading defenseman as Guar-

Ouch!

Football Team Clobbered, 20-6

The glow of winning the Dalton Trophy hadn't even worn off when the Sachem football team was brought crashing back to reality Friday night, losing 20-6 to the Lexington Minutemen.

After winning the prestigious trophy awarded by the Boston Globe each year to the school with the best overall athletic performance, the Sachems went out and seemingly expected Lexington to keel over in front of the mighty Dalton Trophy school.

Unfortunately, the only ones doing any keeling over were the Sachems. Particularly on defense. Everyone suspected that the offense might not be too terribly potent following last week's squeaker of a win (a last minute touchdown for the 8-7 victory over Somerville). Few expected the defense to be a source of trouble.

But instead of having the offense shape up to join what had been a respectable defense, both squads collapsed Friday night. Total offense for Winchester amounted to a mere 123 yards, 41 of which came on just two plays. The defense yielded 230 yards to the Minutemen who seemed able to run through the Sachems at will, especially after Tom Porell left the game in the first quarter with stretched ligaments in his left knee. He was sorely missed and will be again as he is expected to be out for two weeks.

The anticipated challengers for the league title showed little potential. In the first three quarters, the Sachems managed to gain only one first down. Hardly a powerhouse on the rampage. At one point in the third quarter, the performances were so unbalanced that the Sachems were on the short end of a 16-1 first down tally.

Winchester couldn't do anything on land or in the air. And while the passing yardage outstripped the rushing yardage, there were two costly interceptions and the passing completion (six out of 21 attempts) was nothing to write home about.

While no one was making excuses, the loss of Porell did hurt. No, it was devastating. Even Lexington coach Bill Tighe, who admitted that he had been prepared to change plays at the line of scrimmage to run away from Porell, said that the Sachems are not the same team without Porell.

Combine the loss of Porell with a poor outing by quarterback Chris Cahill and there was little hope on the horizon to pull a win out of the team's first Middlesex League game of the season.

While the Sachems lost only one fumble, it was the beginning of the end. After the Sachems first play from scrimmage in the second quarter, Winchester fumbled. Lexington recovered and five plays later it was Lexington ahead, 7-0.

Despite the poor first half showing, the Sachems still weren't out of it at halftime, trailing only 7-0. But on the opening kick-off of the second half, Lexington returned the ball to the Winchester 48 and eight plays later (all running plays — oh, where is Porell?) the Minutemen were up 14-0. That really hurt the Sachems because the TD run came when the Lexington quarterback had been bottled up and was about to be

Keeping Of Traditions In The Vermont Style

By BERT HIRSCHHORN

Guest Column

We drove along the highway watching trees, mountains and farms blur by until our exit where a narrow road swallowed us into the scenery. On looking back we could see the edge of the Interstate slicing through central Vermont; the summer valley haze dropped an isinglass curtain between us and the fast-lane traffic we had just been a part of. We followed the road and allowed events to find us.

Just out of Randolph a small, hand-lettered sign advised that a horse and barn show was to be seen somewhere up the dirt road. We advanced upon an old inn and parked in the pasture.

The traditional horsemanship contests took place in the large corral where young women and girls, mostly, trotted, walked, jumped a variety of shaped and colored horses in no obvious order though order there was. The events were unhurried; the smallest horse with the youngest rider took the first prize.

Onlookers helped officials move the barriers and jumps; young boys moistened the track with water buckets making first sure that they had doused each other. The crowd, no more than a couple dozen, applauded languidly in the hot sun, sipped tonics sold by the local scout troop, and moved slowly from the corral to the barn and back again.

At the barn the Heifer Project International — an American volunteer group that sends small farm animals to the developing world — displayed prize pigs, how bees are raised, rabbits sheared for wool, and how the gift of a small animal multiplies itself to make the recipient self-sufficient and a donor, in turn, to others. One official asked for a minute of silence in respect of people in need around the world; even after we continued to speak in murmurs. We bought chances on homemade quilts, on rabbits, on a brown foal with limpid eyes.

We drove up to Brookfield. The road signs pointed to a floating bridge and our curiosity was rewarded by a one-lane wooden bridge on pontoons spanning a pond many times deeper and longer than wide. Teenagers sat like jays on the rails, dived into cool waters, held each other knee to knee, sipped beer, smiled at strangers. One told the story of the dump truck that had crashed the wood rails one drunk, moonless night to such depths it was never found again. After our swim we followed the one and two-lane roads that twisted into and out of valleys and up hills.

At some barns and churches young people sold old memories: iron hand tools, long wooden skis, stacks of National Geographics (whose pictures of bare-breasted natives once aroused adolescents to fantasy and desire but without prurience), chipped china from long-ago World Fairs. And there were many — too many — anonymous photographs of young boys in World War I uniforms, full of themselves; grandmothers wrinkled into black dressess and lace collars; little girls demure in high button shoes and organdy. All forgotten, all gone but for the recognition of faces shomehow familiar to us.

Then, around another curve, a farmers' market: young people with thick shoulders and thighs, tow-headed toddlers playing alongside vans and station wagons and under display tables laden with produce and flowers. They talked among each other of racoons, of crows, and a recent anti-nuclear protest.

Toward evening we found ourselves invited to a ham dinner for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid Society, at the village meeting hall. Families ate largely in silence. Children, clean and combed (no alligator shirts to be seen), asked for food to be passed, please and thank you. The food was plentiful, fresh and hot, served by elderly ladies who resembled each other. Whom did the Aid Society aid? We know who needs help, no one need ask, said one lady. Some whose houses are burned up, some too proud, others, "with problems."

In the lingering twilight we started to see the decaying clapboard frame houses along picturesque roads, rusted mobile homes of uncertain vintage, and some of the somber, creased faces of hardship and doing without we remembered from photo-essays of the 1930s. Nostalgia must not be selective.

We approached the Interstate and were once again insulated from rural life. We tuned to Vermont Public Radio where Garrison Keiior on the Prarie Home Campanion reminded us that nostalgia was the respect we pay to events we should have paid them at the time they happened. We wondered if the people of Vermont (and others like them) were safekeeping for us traditions we should respect Now: of home and peace, and a way of dealing kindly with each other; and we wondered how much longer they could keep those traditions safe if we, the highwaymen, ignored it elsewhere, or in ourselves.

Family Jewish Service Welcomes Volunteers For Two Programs

Jewish Family and Children's Service, Boston, announces volunteer opportunities. Volunteers can assist Soviet immigrants who are adjusting to their new life in America. Volunteers for this program are needed to help with language acquisition and understanding the American way of life. Participants can learn about the immigrant experience and life in the Soviet Union by giving three hours a week to visit with a Soviet family in the Brookline - Brighton area.

The group also has openings in a program to enrich the life of an older person by giving three hours a week to visit an isolated elderly person in his home. Participants can build a mutually rewarding relationship through conversations, walks and other activities. Supervision is provided for all volunteers.

Voices Needed

The Medford Community Chorus is seeking basses and tenor voices. Auditions will be held on Oct. 4 at 7:15 p.m., Medford High School, 489 Winthrop st., Medford.

Tea Ceremony

Habitat Institute for the Environment will offer a traditional Japanese Tea Ceremony for participants to experience the calming ritual associated with drinking tea. Contact Habitat, 10 Juniper rd., Belmont, to reserve a place for the Oct. 12 tea ceremony.

Sachemette Field Hockey Team Destroys Burlington, 1-0, Second Win

From now on, it's gravy.

The Sachemette field hockey team has already equalled last year's total of wins and can only be headed for bigger and better things in 1982.

The Sachemettes won their second game in a row Tuesday with a 1-0 victory over Burlington. Jean Romeo's goal in the second half was the margin of victory as Winchester dropped the winless Devilettes to a 0-4-1 record. The Sachemettes, by comparison, are a healthy 2-2-1.

Lisa Wiley was strong in the net for the Sachemettes and Patty Hudson put in a strong performance for the offense.

The first win of the season came Friday against Reading with a fine 3-2 victory.

Wiley again put on a strong show, hodling off the Rockettes in the waning moments.

But the offensive fireworks belonged to Sheila Connolly with a hat trick. She scored alone on a breakaway near the end of the first half to tie the score at 1-1. She connected again on a pass from Liz Doherty eight minutes into the second half. And her third goal came at the 15 minute mark on an assist from Beth Miara. With five minutes to go, Reading scored to ease to within one but Wiley held them off and the Sachemettes were able to start their winning streak.

J. J. Loftus Slo-Pitch Team Ends Up Fourth In North Reading Tournament

The J.J. Loftus slo-pitch softball team won five of its seven games last weekend to finish fourth in the North Reading tournament.

Losing only to the eventual winner, Hydronique, 6-4, and to Fairwind of Stoneham who finished third, they out-hit every opponent during the four-day event.

Leading the way offensively was Jay Ciampo (5 home runs), Ed Osterberg (4 home runs) and Earl Johnson (13 hits), while Bob Major, Craig West and Mark Pichler were defense stand-outs.

After the first four games which were low-scoring affairs, the Loftus bats were ready to explode. And explode they did on Sunday against Lenny D's.

Ciampo started the attack with a two-run triple in the first inning. Jerry Scully followed with a bases loaded single in the third, and Osterberg added a long two-run homer in the fourth.

By the time that they were finished Loftus had opened up a 9-1 lead. Lenny D's did make some noise in the fifth by adding four runs, but it was too little, too late and they fell 9-5.

In the second game Loftus was pitted against a powerful 99 club team. How powerful became evident when the 99 wiped out an early 2-0 Loftus lead with back-to-back home runs by Jack King. They then jumped out to a 5-2 lead before Loftus started its comeback.

With two out in the fifth Osterberg and Earl Johnson belted back-to-back doubles. Jay Ciampo followed with a monstrous home run to tie the score at 5.

The final inning was the stage for more two-out heroics as J.C. Forbes delivered a big single scoring Kurt Ellis with the winning run. Osterberg then ended any thoughts of a 99 comeback by hitting a three-run homer, making the final 9-5.

After two big wins, Loftus found themselves in the final four teams left in the tournament and playing Fairwind, a team they had already beaten earlier.

Again, they came out flying, getting home runs by Forbes and Osterberg in the first, Ellis in the second, and Ciampo in the third. By the fourth inning they were cruising 6-1. Here they stalled, however.

Fairwind added three runs in the fourth inning and four big runs in the seventh to defeat Loftus 8-7.

Jr. Jazzercise To Start Oct. 19

Junior Jazzercise, much like Jazzercise with a little more emphasis on jazz dance technique and specific dance choreography, is offered by the Winchester Recreation Department to boys and girls aged 11 to 15 who are interested in developing their ability to dance.

Junior Jazzercise enables the participant to improve flexibility, technique, balance and coordination as well as confidence.

The first class will be offered free. The classes will meet at the Winchester High School in the Social Studies Area beginning Tuesday, Oct. 19, from 3 to 4 p.m.

Fall registration is underway.

All-Star Baseball Team Awards 23 At Banquet

The Winchester All-Star baseball team from the Winchester Babe Ruth League held its awards banquet Monday night at the Winchester Knights of Columbus Hall.

There was much cause for celebration. Twenty-three jackets were awarded to players and coaches for the team's success during the 1982 season.

The team finished off the summer as the New England Babe Ruth League Champions. The Boston Red Sox presented the Winchester team with a trophy on Aug. 29 at Fenway Park to honor the All-Stars' superb playing.

The team started out as the Eastern Massachusetts champions. After competing in Dracut against 28 other state teams this summer, the Winchester All-Stars came home with a trophy as tournament champs. Not bad.

In Nashua, N.H., the local team played against six states and walked off the field as not only the state champs, but the king of New England Babe Ruth Baseball.

After playing 12 games this summer, the All-Stars wound up with an impressive 11 wins and one loss.

"The amazing part of that record is the number of runs scored for and against their opposition," commented Bill Morton, president of Winchester Youth Baseball and Softball. "In 12 ball games they (All-Stars) scored 164 runs and had 21 scored against them — and that was in five ball games."

The trophies are on display in The Winchester Star office window.

Rec. Department's Youth Canoe Trip This Weekend

The Winchester Recreation Department still has a few opening in its first fall activity for adolescents; a Saco River Canoe Trip this weekend, Oct. 1, 2, 3.

During the summer a similar trip to the Saco River was extremely successful. Past experience is not necessary. A complete, competent staff will be accompanying the group.

Major camping equipment is not needed. A complete list of necessary equipment can be obtained at the Recreation Dept.

For information, please call Steve at the Recreation Dept.

sacked. Instead, he got away and went 21 yards unmolested for the score.

Lexington scored yet again before the Sachems could get on the board. Winchester finally got a touchdown in the fourth quarter when Cahill completed three consecutive passes (to Chuck Allard, Chris Rogers and finally Steve MacDonald for the TD).

Not to worry, Sachem fans.

There are still eight games left, right?

notta, who was a starting foward during the second half of the 1981 season, moved to offense for a mere five minutes. Within a minute, he had scored.

Things look good for the Sachems but the iron of the league is still waiting, lurking particularly in the persons of the Lexington Minutemen who have a date with their fellow league leaders next Tuesday.

Adult Soccer Is Sundays 11-1 At MacDonald Field

The adult soccer group sponsored by the Winchester Recreation Department meets each Sunday at MacDonald Field.

All interested adult men and women who would enjoy an active and fun "pick up" type program as well as learn more about the game of soccer are urged to come. There is no registration fee.

The program is informally operated by a group of interested residents and would welcome any and all on Sunday. Participants may join in at any time through Dec. 19.

THANKSGIVING NOVENA TO ST. JUDE

O Holy St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present and urgent petition. In return, I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked.

Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and Glorias. Publication must be promised. St. Jude pray for us and all who invoke your aid. Amen. This Novena has never been known to fail. I have had my request granted.

It doesn't hurt to wash the outside of your headlight and taillights occasionally; they will provide better visibility at night. If you still have trouble seeing at night, check to be sure your headlight beams are shining straight ahead and not shining wall-eyed at the side of the road or in the eyes of other drivers. Check your headlights on both high and low beams. If one of your headlights won't work on low but does work on high, you will have to replace the bulb. Ask for a sealed beam unit. If it won't work on either high or low, you probably have a bad connection in the wiring.

Need Some Help?

Century Publications Incorporated, which includes The Arlington Advocate, Belmont Citizen and The Winchester Star, is creating a special section in their Help Wanted pages for Computer Hardware/Software Companies!

How can this help attract qualified applicants?

- The people you need will no longer have to wade through all the classified ads to find your ad.
- We will be drawing attention to the "Computer Help Wanted Section" with a special border and art work plus a promotion in the papers.

Why Century Publications?

- Our readers are well educated with an average of 14.3 years of schooling.
- Our papers are located close to many large computer companies.

People commute less and relocate less today and, we feel, wish to work closer to home. Our readers — your labor force — are only a few miles away from companies like Raytheon, Wang, Digital, and Compugraphic, to name just a few.

The Winchester High School Athletic Teams...

Winners Of The Dalton Trophy!

Congratulations, Sachems!

We knew all along that you were "Number One" and now, with Winchester the proud owners of the Ernest Dalton Memorial Trophy, the entire Commonwealth of Massachusetts knows it, too.

To win the prestigious Dalton Trophy, awarded each year by The Boston Globe to the high school with the best overall athletic performance in Division 1, you had to excel not in any one sport or even just the big name sports like football and basketball but in all sports, both boys and girls.

And you did it. The girls' soccer team won the Middlesex League Championship for the fourth straight time. The football, boys' tennis and girls' tennis teams all shared their respective Middlesex League championships. The baseball, lacrosse and girls' basketball teams each went to their state tournaments. And all the other boys and girls teams did their best to add to the outstanding 1981-82 combined athletic record of 201-96-12. — the best in the state!

It was a great year for the Sachems and we salute you.

REGISTRATION — Registration of voters was held last week for the first time at Winchester Hospital. Susanne J. Patrick (left), of Arlington st., registered to vote for the first time. Assisting her (from left to right) are: Mary O'Brien, registrar of voters; Town Clerk Carolyn Ward; and R. Rushton Harwood, registrar of voters. The last day for registration for voters who wish to vote in the November election is Tuesday, October 5. Voters can register at the town clerk's office in town hall.

New Sachems Get A Special Welcome With Screening Of New Slide Production

Winchester High School freshmen were urged to "Catch that Sachem Spirit" at the annual opening day orientation meeting held in the WHS auditorium.

High school principal Vincent E. Larocco greeted the freshmen class as usual; but this year he had the help of "Sachem Spirit," a seven-minute slide-tape presentation about Winchester High School produced by a member of the high school staff.

Marie C. Franklin, a Winchester High School English and media teacher, conceived the show idea last spring while studying audio-visual productoin at Boston University's Graduate School of Public Communication.

"The high school was the perfect subject for an AV show," Franklin said. Where else could I find 1400 teenagers and adults engaged in such diverse and photographically exciting activities?" She added.

"The high school offers a stimulating and challenging environment for the youth of this town and a visual presentation was the best way to show students the advantage of a WHS education," she said.

The show's purpose was to give incoming students a positive and comprehensive look at the high school. The sound track - which includes a narrator's voice accompanied by upbeat music - asks students to look at their school "as more than just a building."

It reminds students of the unique qualities of a WHS education and cites among others its media facilities, library and labs, sports program and curriculum diversity as key features.

The reaction to the show was enthusiastic. Students and staff surveyed said seeing the presentation was an exciting and innovative way to begin the school year.

According to Jennifer Ulwick, a ninth grader, the visual quality of the production made the school more familiar to her during her first day in a new building.

"It was fun to walk around the building after seeing all the slides of the school," she said. "The show gave me a good idea of what the school looks like. When I was walking around, I felt like I knew where I was going."

Jane Wiseman, a junior and the vice-president of the student government said, "the show was very effective in conveying to the freshmen what this school is about. It really captured the aura of Winchester High School."

Vice Principal Vandy French and Latin Teacher Linca Ciccariello agreed with the students. French said the show conveys the idea that the school is "People oriented" and able to give new students many "positive opportunities for growth."

Ciccariello said she "felt good about WHS, especially because the kids in the pictures were so involved in what they were doing."

"Sachem Spirit" will be used as an ongoing orientation tool, although Principal Larocco sees many other uses for the production.

"The first thing we plan to do is use it as part of our presentation to the New - England Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges," he said.

Parents, as well as other members of the community, who would like to view the show, may do so on Wednesday evening, Oct. 13, when it will be shown throughout the evening in the high school cafeteria as part of the annual Parents' Night activities.

St. Mary's Schedules Programs On The Family

St. Mary's Parish in Winchester will present "Focus On The Family" as its first adult education program this year. Dr. James Dobson, the featured speaker in this film series, a noted psychologist and author, is an associate clinical professor at the University of Southern California Medical School.

The series of films helps people deal with everyday problems of family life in a loving Christian way. Each film will be followed by a group discussion period for those who wish to take part.

The program is scheduled for six Wednesdays from 7:30-9:30 in St. Mary's Hall

Oct. 6 - "The Strong Willed Child."

Oct. 20 - "Shaping the Will Without Breaking the Spirit."

Oct. 27 - "Christian Fathering."

Nov. 3 - "Preparing for Adolescence: Origins of Self-Doubt."

Nov. 10 - "Preparing for Adolescence: Peer Pressure & Sexuality."

Nov. 17 - "What Wives Wish Their Husbands Knew About Women."

The program is designed for husbands, wives, parents, grandparents, single parents, teachers, parents-to-be. All are welcome.

My Cleaners, For Quality Drycleaning & Tailoring Of Clothes, Drapes & Shirts

You may have had a great time at that party Saturday night, but when you woke up Sunday morning to finally put that new suit away you found an ugly stain on it that wasn't there before the party. Plain tap water probably wouldn't take the stain out, but perhaps a trip to My Cleaners, Woburn Plaza, Woburn, would.

"I can tell if the stain can come out or if it's bad," said Sam Bejakian, co-owner of the new dry cleaning store near the Woburn——Winchester border. "The thing I'm most interested in is to give a quality job," he said. "What is most important to me is if the customer is happy and satisfied and going to come back here."

My cleaners can fill all of your cleaning needs including drapes, shirts, suits, and wedding gowns. Bejakian's father, John, who co-owns the store with his son, also does the tailoring chores, an important part of the three-month old business.

"We can do everything, including narrowing lapels to make a brand new jacket," said the younger Bejakian. The elder Bejakian can also change linings for coats and jackets. "We can do any kind of tailoring," he said. "We can fit the suits to fit just right."

In addition to emphasizing the tailoring end of the business, the Bajakians also are planning to expand My Cleaners' drapery and shirt business.

A new pleated drapery machine to clean and press custom pleated drapes is scheduled to arrive at the store in mid-August.

"We are trying to build up the shirt business," Sam Bejakian added. Shirts take a maximum of three days to be cleaned. The Bejakians are working to cut that time down by two-thirds. "Hopefully, soon we will have it ready within 24 hours," said Sam Bejakian.

My Cleaners is open Monday through Friday from 7:15 a.m. until 7:15 p.m. and Saturday from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. For further information, call 935-8125.

PRIZE PAINTING — Carolyn Latanision of Nassau dr. displays her prize-winning painting in her Woburn studio. Depicting a scene at Boston's Haymarket, the painting will be included in the Cambridge Art Association small group show Oct. 1 through Oct. 14.

Carolyn Latanision To Show Watercolors At Gallery

Watercolors by Carolyn Latanision of Nassau dr. will be featured as part of a small group show to be held at the Cambridge Art Association, 25R Lowell st., Cambridge, from Oct. 1 through Oct. 3, from 5-7 p.m. to which the public is cordially invited; the exhibit will be on view during regular gallery hours Tuesday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Carolyn Latanision's representational watercolors have been featured in numerous juried exhibits in metropolitan Boston and the Baltimore - Washington, D.C., area including, among others, The Copley Society of Boston, Boston Center for the Arts, Boston Symphony Hall, Boston Visual Artists Union, Cambridge Art Association, and Tufts University.

Solo exhibits include the U. S. Department of Commerce, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Cambridge Art Association. Among her awards are those from Cambridge Art Association, American Artist Magazine, U.S. Department of Commerce, and Baltimore Watercolor Society.

Additionally, she has received awards from Winchester Art Association, Reading Art Association, and Woburn Guild of Artists. She received her bachelor's of science degree in art education and has also studied at Ohio State University, The Art Institute of Boston, and Radcliffe.

Her paintings are represented in private collections in this country, Europe, Japan and Australia, Prudential, and Palmer and Dodge.

She teaches in her Woburn studio and is on the board of directors of the Cambridge Art Association.

Sharing the current exhibit with Latanision at the Cambridge Art Association are sculptor Jane Beveridge, acrylic still-life painter Margaret Dillon and landscape-seascape painter Jane Ritchie.

The Covinos Are Hosts Again In The American Host Program

A successful year for the American Host Program has come to an end, and with it the end of another visit to Winchester.

This program has been in effect since 1962. Since inception more than 30,000 American families have opened their homes to over 10,000 teachers. During July and August of this year, 530 English speaking elementary and secondary school teachers from 17 countries have been the guests of American Host families.

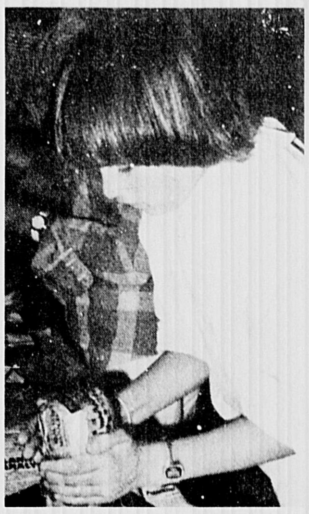
Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Covino of Sanborn st., in the program since 1973, have had as their guests visitors from England, France, Germany, Sweden and Finland. This year their guests were Christa and Deitlef Eberlein from West Berlin.

Winchester's proximity to Boston enabled the visitors to do much on their own. They used public transportation, visited the Faneuil and Quincy Markets, walking to Winchester Center and were just being part of the Covino family.

Deitlef Eberlein, a teacher of geography and history, as well as math and German, was interested in historical spots in Boston, Concord, Lexington and Carabridge. Christa Eberlein, an export manager, gave an insight into German management.

The Eberleins and Covinos agree that the American Host Program provides a program which is most rewarding and satisfying; visitors coming as strangers, but leaving with a feeling of lasting friendships. They feel the host program's objectives "to gain a realistic and truthful understanding of our American way of life" was met.

Although the American Host Program is not designed as a reciprocal program, the Covinos have been able to visit former guests from Germany and Switzerland. Anyone interested in knowing more about the organization may contact Fran or Ernest Covine or write the American Host Foundatoin at 12747 Broodhurst st., Garden Grove, Calif. 92640.



FEELING IT OUT — When Leslie Callard, 12, of Lorena rd. finihes shaping her papier-mache armature, the seventh grader will use it for an original clay head sculpture. Her artistic talents are being put to creative use in McCall Junior High's art classes.

Rummage Sale

Adult Ed. Offers Weight, Stress, Smoking Seminars

The Winchester Adult Education Program which began this week includes special seminars on smoking, weight loss and stress management.

Nationally known hypnotherapist-psychotherapist Barry Beder, MSW, CSW, is bringing his successful Hypnosis Stop Smoking, Weight Loss and Stress Management programs to Winchester High School on Oct. 25, 26 and 27. The Stop Smoking program will be conducted on Oct. 25, the Weight Loss program Oct. 26, and the Stress Management program on Oct. 27. Each program costs $25 and includes a free cassette tape for home reinforcement.

Beder's clinics initially received wide attention after he conducted a unique Stop Smoking program in Detroit for the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan, "The Great New Year's Cigarette Send-Off," attended by over 800 people.

Beder, who has a master's degree in psychiatric social work, became nationally known when NBC Nightly News and The Wall Street Journal reported his work designing and conducting the only Stress Management program accepted and used by PATCO, the Progessional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, at Chicago Center. Both Time Magazine and National Public Radio also recently reported Beder's work with Stress Management.

Beder's hypnosis clinics have been used by the American Lung Association of Michigan, Blue Cross-Blue Shield, Ford Motor Company, Sheraton Corporation, Hunt Memorial Hospital, Lawrence General Hospital, Tufts University, and other local and national organizations.

Students interested in one or more of these seminars should register through the Adult Education office at the high school. Write Clinical Consulting Services, 886 Washington st., Dedham 02026, for information.

Prof. Ronald Latanision Is Given MIT Science Chair

A contribution of $875,000 from the Shell Companies Foundation Inc. has established the Shell Distinguished Chair in Materials Science at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The chair has been awarded to Professor Ronald M. Latanision of the Department of Materials Science and Engineering.

The Nassau dr. resident is recognized internationally for his work in introducing the fundamental principles of materials science into corrosion engineering and for his applications of recently developed surface analytical tools to contemporary engineering problems.

Doris J. O'Connor, senior vice president of Shell Companies Foundation Inc., in a letter to MIT President Paul E. Gray, cited, "Dr. Latanision's demonstrated scientific ability and productivity and potential for a continuing brilliant career."

Since 1948, Shell has supported teaching and research in several MIT departments and laboratories with annual grants. The company was a substantial contributor to MIT's Second Century Fund and has been a member of The Industrial Liaison Program since 1952.

The foundation established the Shell Distinguished Chairs program in 1980 in recognition of the need for major research support in the nation's leading research universities. The five-year term chairs in science, engineering, business and public affairs are held by promising young scientists with an established reputation as outstanding performers and with potential for continuing brilliant careers.

MIT's record of contributions to the science and engineering of corrosion and corrosion resistance began with the work of Professor Herbert Uhlig in the 1940s and led to the Corrosion Laboratory in the Department of Materials Science and Engineering becoming one of the world's leading research centers in the field. Professor Latanision has directed the laboratory since Professor Uhlig retired.

In the last decade Professor Latanision has introduced a wide range of modern techniques for surface characterization and for the measurement of the effects of corrosion on both metallic and non-metallic materials. He has gathered a large group of talented graduate students and attracted a number of post-doctoral researchers to the laboratory. Professor Latanision and his group are working on problems that are of importance to the future technological development of industry. Professor Walter S. Owen, head of the Department of Materials Science and Engineering, said the scientific methods and experimental techniques that Professor Latanision brings to bear on these problems "are of the most advanced kind to be found anywhere."

Professor Latanision received the B.S. in metallurgy from Pennsylvania State University (1964) and the Ph.D. in metallurgical engineering from Ohio State University (1968). He joined the faculty in 1974 as an associate professor and was promoted to professor in 1981.

His principal fields of interest are corrosion science and engineering, environmental degradation of materials, applied surface chemistry and electrochemistry.

Professor Latanision and his wife Carolyn have two children, Ivan and Sara.

Winchester College Club To Host Harvard Speaker

The Winchester College Club will open the season with a general meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 13, at 12:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. William Kennedy, 3 Lakefiew terr. New and old members are invited. An invitation is extended to members of the Newcomers Club.

Guest speaker will be John Cohen, Ph.D., an Institute Fellow at the Harvard Institute for International Development and a faculty member in the Government Department. Dr. Cohen recently returned from Africa where he spent last three years in Kenya on a Harvard project, World Development in Africa.

The Winchester College Club is a local organization which supports scholarship in the schools and offers educational interests in the adult community. Subjects include antiques, book exchange, history, literature, needlecraft and travel. New groups form if enough interest is shown.

The first board meeting for the current season was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Chester Dawes. Assisting Mrs. Dawes are the following officers and chairpersons:

vice president, Mrs. William Kennedy, Treasurer, Mrs. Henry Delaney, recording secretary, Mrs. William Byrne, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frank Pedulla.

Also: education, Mrs. Eugene Mark, interest groups, Mrs. John Ciano, hospitality, Mrs. John Nevins, publicity, Mrs. Theodore Shasta, nominating, Mrs. Fisher Black, program, Mrs. Jeremiah Harrington, membership, Mrs. Walter Dignam, yearbook, Mrs. Thomas Mawn, historian, Mrs. Joseph Puffer.

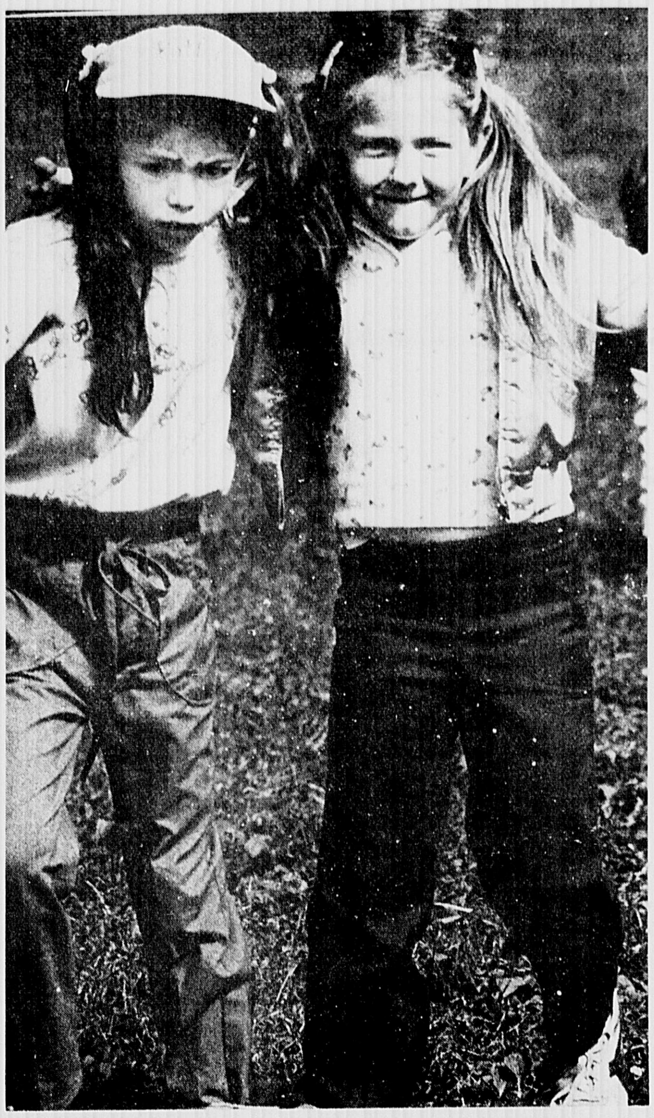
Women Beginner Joggers Invited To Rec. Class

Winchester Recreation Department's program, Women On The Run is designed and geared for the beginner.

Held twice a week, individual attention as well as educational information and reference material is given. Running exercises are done very slowly. Individuals progress at their own pace.

Proper stretching exercises, nutrition, injury prevention as well as buying a correct running shoe are discussed. There is no need to purchase shoes before class starts.

The first class is planned for the second week in October, Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 - 7 p.m. at McCall Junior High. Call the Recreation Department for information.



THREE-LEGS — The Vinson-Owen get-acquainted picnic included a lot of games for the children, including the old favorite, the three-legged race. Kathy Peterson (left) and Karen Koenig, both of Henry st., put all their physical and mental effort into "running" together.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

NUCLEAR QUESTION (S 1825) — Senate approved 33-1, the bill placing a nuclear freeze question on the November ballot. The House passed the measure on a voice vote, and Governor King signed it one hour before the deadline to get it on the November ballot as question five. This version was drafted by a conference committee after the House and Senate had passed conflicting versions over the summer.

The version passed by the Senate on June 30 asked whether voters support a verifiable, mutual freeze of U.S. and Soviet testing, production and deployment of nuclear weapons and missiles. On July 2, the House added amendments including conditions first requiring the Soviet Union to stop oppression of the Polish people and pull its forces out of several countries and stating the U.S. not enter into any agreement which would put it in an inferior military situation.

The new version, which will appear as Question 5 on the November ballot, asks whether it is the desire of the people of Massachusetts to have the government of the U.S. work vigorously to negotiate a mutual nuclear weapons moratorium and reduction, with appropriate verification, with the Soviet Union and other nations.

Supporters argued the voters should have the right to express their feelings on the nuclear question. Many noted they support a freeze. Some said they were disappointed that the new version was weaker than the original Senate version. Opponents said they were glad this was a weaker version, but said they had many problems with the freeze question. They said a freeze without a reduction by the Russians would hurt the U.S. and argued the question does not allow voters to demand the U.S. not put itself into an inferior military situation. (A "Yea" vote is for the new version. A "Nay" vote is against it).

Senator Rotondi voted "Yea."

SURTAX (S 2032) — Senate refused 20-10, to reconsider its defeat, several weeks ago, of Governor King's bill eliminating the seven and one half percent surtax. Supporters argued it was still possible to act on the measure and really reduce taxes in the state. They noted since Governor King is no longer up for re-election, the Senate can act on the bill without political influence from the governor's race.

Some opponents said the legislature passed the bill increasing the personal exemptions in the state income tax from $2000 to $2200 instead of the surtax cut. They claimed the $2200 exemption was a fairer reduction that helps everyone, and claimed it would be fiscally irresponsible to also pass the surtax cut when the state cannot possibly afford it. (A "Yea" vote is for reconsidering the defeat of the surtax cut. A "Nay" vote is against reconsideration).

Senator Rotondi voted

PASS THE DIRT, PLEASE!

Many years ago, when one person sold property to another, the two of them would go out on the land that was about to be transferred. While witnesses watched, the seller would take a leaf from a tree or a clump of dirt and solemnly hand it over to the buyer. This was a symbol of the sale, literally showing the seller transferring the land to the buyer.

Then the "scrivener" (a person who could write) wrote the agreement on some kind of durable material so it couldn't be erased or altered. The name of the seller was written down, he put his personal seal on the "document," and that was it! The sale was complete with every one happy and satisfied.

Needless to say, things aren't that simple anymore, and much more is involved in buying and selling property now. There is a veritable maze of details and procedures that MUST be followed. An unwary person lost there could find himself with many problems, possibly causing the loss of much money. We, as professional Realtors know our way through that maze, and we guide our clients through it safely and confidently!

CIVIL WAR Unit looking for members: The 5th Massachusetts Battery is made up of people in the Greater Boston area interested in the Civil War. There are two divisions: (1) competition shooting divisions which is a North-South Skirmish Association unit that competes in team matches with a full-sized muzzleloading cannon as well as with muskets, carbines and revolvers of the pre-1865 era. And (2) the "chowder and marching division" which takes part in parades, battle re-enactments, and authentic living history demonstrations. You can join either or both depending on your interests. The musket and carbine shooting events involve team shooting at breakable targets with the shortest elapsed time determining the winning team. It's fun if you're interested in black powder shooting. For further information contact 5th Mass. Battery, John Humphrey, 195 West st., Reading, or Al Goscinak, 27 Washington st., Charlestown, by phone or mail. 3.19TF

SHERIFF'S SALE
The Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Middlesex, ss., December 4, A.D. 1981

Taken on execution and will be sold by public auction, on Wednesday, the thirteenth day of October A.D., 1982 at three o'clock P.M., at my office, 99 First Street in Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, all the right, title and interest that Robert J. Piazza and Marilyn F. Piazza of Winchester in said County of Middlesex, had (not exempt by law from attachment or levy on execution) on the ninth day of October A.D. 1981, at ten o'clock and fifty minutes, a.m., being the time when the same was taken on execution in and to the following described real estate, to wit:

Parcel 1

The land in said Winchester, being shown as Lot 2 on "Plan of Land in Winchester, Massachuetts, owned by C. B. Westgate and C. A. Prest," dated September 14, 1963, Albert A. Miller and Wilbur C. Nylander, Civil Engineers and Surveyors, recorded with Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds in Book 10687, Page 390.

Lot 2 is bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHERLY by the curve of Fox Hunt Lane, fifty (50) feet;

SOUTHWESTERLY by Lot 1 as shown on said plan, one hundred seventy-two and 56-100 (172.56) feet;

NORTHWESTERLY by land of Edward Nahigian, seventy-eight (78) feet and by land of Winchester Country Club Trust, thirty-five and 84-100 (35.84) feet, as shown on said plan;

NORTHEASTERLY by land of said Winchester Country Club Trust, sixty-two and 48-100 (62.48) feet;

NORTHWESTERLY again by said land of Winchester Country Club Trust, seventy-nine and 23.100 (79.23) feet;

EASTERLY by Lot 3 as shown on said plan, one hundred ninety-one and 18-100 (191.18) feet.

Containing 22,274 square feet of land, according to said plan.

Together with the right to use said Fox Hunt Lane in common with others entitled thereto for all purposes for which streets and ways are commonly used in said Town of Winchester and also subject to a right to use the municipal services under said Fox Hunt Lane.

Said premises are conveyed subject to a taking by the Town of Winchester dated May 28, 1974, recorded with Middlesex South Deeds Book 12638, Page 566.

Said premises are also conveyed subject to restrictions and easements of record, if any there be, insofar as the same are now in force and applicable, to the taxes assessed for the current year, and to the building laws and zoning laws of the Town of Winchester.

Parcel 2

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated in Winchester, said Middlesex County, Massachusetts and designated as Lot No. 3, Fox Hunt Lane as shown on a plan drawn by Albert A. Miller and Wilbur C. Nylander, Civil Engineers and Surveyors, being plan number 1350 of 1964 recorded with Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds in Book 10687, page 390, and bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHWESTERLY by Fox Hunt Lane, fifty (50 feet;

PLANNING BOARD
NOTICE OF
PUBLIC HEARING REGARDING ZONING BY-LAW
AMENDMENT

Notice is hereby given that the Winchester Planning Board will hold a public hearing on WEDNESDAY,
OCTOBER 20, 1982
at 8:30 P.M.
in the Jenks Senior Center, 109 Skillings Road, upon the petition to amend the Zoning By-law as follows:

ARTICLE To see if the town will vote to amend the Zoning By-law to allow the use of "Coin Operated Automatic Amusement Devices" in the General Business District (GBD), the Central Business District (CBD) and the Conservancy-Institutional District (SCI).

Amend Section 4.4 - Table of Use Regulations by adding the following:

24A Coin Operated Automatic Amusement Devices, Mechanical and Electronic Game Machines. The total number of coin operated automatic amusement devices to be installed (in excess of one) shall be governed by the ratio of one device per every 500 square feet of gross ground floor area

PRD	RB	RDA	RDB	RDC	RG	BL
N	N	N	N	N	N	N

GBD	CBD	II	SCI	RA
SP	SP	N	SP	N

Add to Section 9 - Definitions — the following:

COIN OPERATED AUTOMATIC AMUSEMENT DEVICE: Any game or recreational activity that is activated by the paying of a fee or the direct insertion of coinage into a machine such as video games, pinball machines, and other similar electronic or mechanical devices.

The purpose of this amendment is to now require a Special Permit for any establishment to operate more than one coin operated amusement device. The intent is not to outlaw usage but to closely govern usage and thereby define an appropriate method for the town to assess impact on an application by application basis.

Prior to the hearing information may be obtained at the Planning Board-Engineering Office, Town Hall, Winchester, MA.

By order of the Winchester Planning Board this twenty-eighth day of September, 1982.

Obituaries

Arline I. Emerson

Longtime Winchester resident Arline I. Emerson died Sept. 25 at Winchester Hospital after a long illness. She was 73.

Mrs. Emerson was a native of Somerville. She was a member of First Congregational Church in that city.

She was the wife of Arthur W. Emerson; mother of Eleanor L. Neil of Burlington; sister of Mavis E. Rockwood of Andover, Alda O. Barrett of Harvard and Luella Nordstrom of Chelmsford; and the grandmother of three.

The service was held Sept. 28 at the Allen Funeral Home in Medford. Burial was at Laurel Hill Cemetery, Reading.

Memorial donations may be made to the Heart Fund.

Helen L. Enman

Helen Lothrop Enman, the longest standing member of the First Congregational Church of Winchester, died Sept. 27 at age 90.

Mrs. Enman died at Winchester Hospital after suffering a broken hip in a fall. She was a native of Readville. She attended Simmons College and had lived in Winchester for about 80 years.

Mrs. Enman's husband, Frank H., died in 1940. She is survived by a nephew and niece, Philip D. Cabot of Cohasset and Jeanette Taylor of Southport, Maine.

The funeral service was held Sept. 29 at Ripley Chapel, First Congregational Church, with the Rev. Walter B. Davis officiating.

Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery. Norris Funeral Home handled arrangements.

Memorial donations may be made to the First Congregational Church Pastor's Discretionary Fund.

John Scimone

John Scimone, 80, former owner of Frascati's Restaurant in Somerville, died unexpectedly on Sept. 23. He died at Winchester Hospital after suffering an apparent heart attack at his Churchill rd. home. Mr. Scimone, who was born in Italy, had lived in Winchester for more than 21 years.

He is survived by his wife, Olga (DiNozzi) Scimone; son, Lawrence A. Scimone of Saugus; and brother, Anthony Scimone of Syracuse, N.Y.

The funeral was held Saturday from the Robert J. Costello Funeral Home with funeral mass celebrated by the Rev. Mark S. Sheehan at Church of St. Mary. Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery.

Angeline Ottiano

Funeral mass will be celebrated this morning for Angeline S. (Sarnie) Ottiano of Pierrepont rd.

Mrs. Ottiano died Sept. 27 at Winchester Hospital after a long illness. She was 83.

The 45-year resident of Winchester was born in East Boston. She was a member of the Guild of the Infant Saviour, the Ladies Sodality of St. Mary's Church and the Winchester Senior's Association.

Mrs. Ottiano is survived by her husband, Augustine W. Ottiano; son, John W. Ottiano of Pitman, N.J.; daughter, Jacqueline A. Lopez of Winchester; sister, Antoinette Capone of Revere; and three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be held from the Lane Funeral Home at 10:15 a.m. with funeral mass at St. Mary's Church at 11 a.m. Burial will be at Wildwood Cemetery.

Seventy-three-year-old Catherine G. Holland of Oak st. died Sept. 27 at Winchester Hospital after an illness of several months. The funeral service will be held today.

Mrs. Holland, who lived in Winchester for 56 years, was a native of Nova Scotia. She had worked as a cook for many Winchester families over the years and at the Mt. Vernon House.

She was a member of the Winchester Senior's Association and the senior bowling league.

Mrs. Holland was the wife of the late Edward D. Holland. She was the sister of Leo Gerrior of New Brunswick; Bernard Gerrior, Bertha Pettipas, Margaret Hines and Christine Gerrior, all of Nova Scotia; and Mary I. Pearce and Josephine A. Romans of Winchester. She is also survived by nieces and nephews.

The funeral will be held from Lane Funeral Home at 9:15 a.m. with funeral mass to be celebrated at St. Mary's Church at 10. Burial will be at Calvary Cemetery, Woburn.

Memorial donations may be made to the charity of one's choice.

Charlotte O'Connell

Charlotte Ann (Downey) O'Connell, 34, died Sept. 26.

Mrs. O'Connell, a registered nurse in the operating room at Sancta Maria Hospital in Cambridge from 1968 to 1974, died at Massachusetts General Hospital after a long illness with cancer.

She was a 1964 graduate of St. Peter's High School and a 1968 graduate of Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing.

She was the wife of Daniel J. O'Connell III and mother of Alison Bridget O'Connell.

Mrs. O'Connell is also survived by her mother, Frances T. Downey of Cambridge; brothers and sister, Francis T. Downey Jr. of Weymouth, William H. Downey of Cambridge, Paul L. Downey of Melrose, Michael J. Downey of Acton, Stephanie C. Deveau of Cambridge, David J. Downey of Medford and Philip D. Downey of Cambridge.

She is also survived by many aunts and uncles and 20 nieces and nephews.

The funeral was Wednesday from the Robert J. Costello Funeral Home with the mass celebrated at St. Mary's Church. Burial was at Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to the Charlotte A. O'Connell Scholarship Fund, St. Mary's School, 158 Washington st.

PLANNING BOARD
NOTICE OF
PUBLIC HEARING REGARDING ZONING BY-LAW AND MAP AMENDMENT

Notice is hereby given that the Winchester Planning Board will hold a public hearing on TUESDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1982
at 7:30 P.M.
in the Board of Health Meeting Room, Basement, Town Hall, upon the proposal to amend the Zoning By-law and the Map incorporated therein as follows:

ARTICLE To see if the Town will vote to amend the Zoning By-law and map incorporated therein by changing land that is located between Main Street, Park Street, Elmwood Avenue and Vine Street, from an "Apartment House Residential District B (RB-20)" To a "Center Business District (CBD-2.0)", said parcels of land comprising about 1.5 acres and bounded and described substantially as follows:

EASTERLY by Main Street 386' plus or minus

SOUTHEASTERLY by the intersection of Main and Park Streets by a curve 35' plus or minus

SOUTHWESTERLY by Park Street 224' plus or minus

NORTHWESTERLY by Elmwood Avenue 277' plus or minus

NORTHERLY by Elmwood Avenue 94' plus or minus

and parcels of land bounded as follows:

EASTERLY by Main Street 131' plus or minus

SOUTHERLY by Elmwood Avenue 100' plus or minus

WESTERLY by land now or formerly Fells Realty Inc. 60' plus or minus

NORTHERLY by Vine Street 105' plus or minus

This amendment would change land that under present zoning only permits Group, Garden, Town House and Mid-rise apartments. Proposal would permit retail business and consumer service uses, as well as Multi-family and commercial uses in combination if secured under a special permit by the Board of Appeals.

ARTICLE To see if the Town will vote to change the Zoning By-Law by amending Section 6.28 Multiple Development Use (MD) Special Permit as follows:

A. Amend Subsection 6.284 (d) Submission of Final Plans by deleting the reference to subsection 1.2 and s.2 and substituting in place thereof 6.284 (c) and 6.281 (b). Section 6.284 (d) to now read as follows:

6.284 (d) Within thirty-five-days of the receipt of the final plan from the Town Clerk, the Planning Board shall submit to the Board accompanied by the written recommendations noted in subsection 6.284 (c) a report discussing the feasibility of the project and its consistency with the purposes in 6.281 (b).

Purpose of this amendment is to correct the reference to sections that were remnants of earlier drafts of the by-law.

B. Amend Section 6.287 Permitted Uses by deleting in its entirety subsection A. 1. and 2. which presently reads

A. Residential

1. Apartments, only on floors above the ground floor.

2. Condominiums, only on floors above the ground floor.

and substituting in place thereof the following:

A. Residential

1. Apartments, only on floors above the ground floor. However, in areas where the multi use project abuts a residential zone, apartments are allowed on all floors on the side of the parcel facing the residential zone.

2. Condominiums, only on floors above the ground floor. However, in cases where the multi use project abuts a residential zone, condominiums are allowed on all floors on the side of the parcel facing the residential zone.

Intent of the mixed use development is to allow for residential development on all floors in cases where the project abutted a residentail district. Purpose of this amendment is to correct the existing language so as to now allow the construction of an all residential facade.

Prior to the hearing plans and information may be viewed at the Planning Board-Engineering Office, Basement, Town Hall, 71 Mt. Vernon Street, Winchester, MA.

By order of the Winchester Planning Board this 13th day of September, 1982.

★ Regulations

some of them, we decided to wait," he continued. "But as chairman of the board, I feel it is my responsibility to expedite this as soon as possible."

"We're anxious to pass them, because if another Surrey rd. happens, (see related story) we wouldn't have to pay for the tests," agreed Board of Health Director Steven Weinstein.

Quigley and Weinstein said copies of the newest draft of regulations have been mailed to residents along with requests for comments.

"We would appreciate hearing comments from anyone," Quigley stressed. "Our goal is to get a set of regulations that meets with everyone's approval."

Residents' comments at the Sept. 20 meeting inspired several changes in the regulations. Most of the changes concerned "legalese" according to Quigley, but there were a couple of substance changes made.

Acting on a suggestion made by a contractor, the board added a stipulation to require truckers to put up a bond for a license before they are allowed to bring in fill.

"This way, we can always revoke their licenses," explained Weinstein. "That'll probably work.

"By licensing the haulers, we can have a dual effort," agreed Quigley. "But the buck has to stop at some place and that place has to be the owners because someone like the owner of Surrey rd. could say he did not know anything about landfill being dumped on his land."

Quigley pointed out that since the Surrey rd. landowner was on vacation when the fill was dumped on his property, the board had every reason to believe him that he did not know about the dumping.

The board had been considering levying a $1,000 daily fine on persons who violated the fill regulations, but decided it would be more feasible to make that fee $500.

"Town Counsel pointed out to us that the courts may construe the fine (of $1,000) to be too much of a hardship and they might eliminate the whole fee or reduce it to $50 or $100," Quigley said. "We wanted to make the amount high enough to give the person an incentive, but we didn't want to have it taken away totally by the courts."

The new regulations proposal are as follows:

By virtue of the authority granted to the Board of Health of the Town of Winchester under provisions of the General Laws, Chapter 111, Section 31, the following regulations pertaining to requirements for the placing of fill upon any premises within the Town of Winchester are hereby promulgated:

1. No person or owner of real property, excluding the Town Department of Public Works when performing its normal and routine functions but contingent on Board of Health approval, shall place, cause to be placed, permit to be placed upon any premises within the Town, topsoil, borrow rock, loam, peat, humus, clay, sand, gravel, earth or other clean fill in excess of 30 cubic yards during any 12-month period without obtaining a permit from the Board of Health. The fee for such a permit is $5.

2. The applications for such permits shall describe the origin, type, quantity and location of disposition of fill. At any time before or during fill operations a chemical analysis or other appropriate test acceptable to the Board of Health and at the expense of the applicant may be required.

3. The permit shall be valid for a period of one year subject to review of conditions, including but not limited to grading of existing fill, as determined by the Board of Health.

4. A copy of the permit shall be displayed in a conspicuous location at the site of the filling.

5. All fill operations including but not limited to transportation, dumping and grading shall be carried out in an orderly manner, during a reasonable time, and measures shall be taken to maintain safe conditions. All trucks shall be covered and so constructed to prevent any spillage of contents.

6. No fill, as proposed by these regulations, shall consist of material including but not limited to any waste material from sanitary land fills, hazardous waste land fills, dumps or industries generating hazardous wastes, including areas distance from such sites as determined by the Board of Health.

7. Not withstanding, quantity or license, all fill containing putrescible or nonputrescible solid waste materials, consisting of all combustible and non combustible solid wastes including garbage, paper, rags, cartons, boxes, wood, excelsior, rubber, leather, tree branches, yard trimmings, grass clippings, tin cans, metal, mineral matter, glass, crockery, dust, ashes, construction wastes, industrial wastes, commercial wastes, agricultural wastes, abandoned vehicles, street sweepings, bulky wastes, the residue from the burning of wood, coal, coke or other combustible materials, demolition wastes including: furniture and shingles also tires and machinery, shall be placed only in an approved sanitary landfill conforming to the requirements of the General Laws of the Commonwealth Chapter 111, Section 150A. Violations of this section are subject to fines of $500 per day.

8. The Board of Health, upon its own initiative or upon application to it by any person, after due notice and public hearing, may vary any provision of these regulations as it may deem necessary with respect to any particular case when, in its opinion, the enforcement thereof would do manifest injustices or cause undue hardships, provided that the decision of the board shall not conflict with the spirit of these regulations. The burden of proof of the manifest injustices or causes of hardship shall be the responsibility of the applicant.

9. Variances, when granted, shall be in writing and shall be effective for a period of time specified by the board. A notice of grant of variance shall be filed in the office of the Town Clerk within 10 days after the variance is given.

10. Any person or owner of real property violating any of these regulations shall be subject to a fine of $200 per day.

11. Each of these regulations shall be construed as separate to the end, that if any regulation or sentence, clause, or phrase thereof shall be held invalid for any reason, the remainder of that regulation and all other regulations shall continue in full force.

may mean the PAH's dissipate over time with the oxidation via sunlight or bacteria," he added. "They also found phalates which are known as plasticisers and are on the priority pollutant analysis."

Weinstein stressed that property owner Chehames is not to blame for the complications with the removal process. He noted that Amberwood dr. developer Felix Pitterino also had difficulty finding a place to dump his chemically contaminated fill earlier this month. Pitterino subsequently dumped his 2,000 cubic yards of fill at the Weston landfill site.

"It's similar to the Amberwood dr. situation where the person responsible for getting the fill out was having a hard time bringing it someplace," Weinstein said. "It's not that they are not interested in getting it removed."

Recent experiences with contaminated fill, however, have prompted health officials to proceed with extreme caution regarding the Surrey rd. fill.

"We've learned a lot through our other experiences on Amberwood dr.," said Board of Health Chairman Lawrence Quigley. "We are willing to let him (Chehames) bring in new fill to prepare the area because we realize that is the best way to remove the contaminated fill, but we are going to insist that he stake off the contaminated fill first.

Quigley pointed out that unlike the situation at Amberwood dr., the topography at Surrey rd. made it possible to stake off the fill while simultaneously preparing the land for fill removal.

"That option was not open to us at Amberwood dr.," he said.

"We want to make sure there is no danger of having the good fill contaminated," he emphasized. "By staking out the area, I mean that it will be carefully observed by the health director as well as isolated by a fence."

While the polluted clay is isolated, health officials will visit Surrey rd. several times daily to monitor the fill removal process until it is finished.

"We've requested that before any of the material can be covered over, it must be inspected by the health director," Quigley said. "Between the health director and the health assistant, there will be at least two to three daily visits to Surrey rd.

"We don't want someone to come to us a week later and tell us that there is contaminated fill under there," he added.

Although the Surrey rd. fill contains the same top priority pollutants found in the Amberwood fill which was taken from the MBTA's Alewife construction site in Cambridge, health officials are not convinced both originated from the same place.

"I have no way of knowing where it (Surrey rd. fill) came from," Weinstein said. "The owner has told us that he does not know how it got there.

"It looks similar (to the Amberwood fill) and the test results are consistent with those done at Amberwood, but we have no way of telling," he added.

Weinstein also said the board has not asked Amberwood dr. Developer Felix Pitterino if there is a connection between the recently-removed Amberwood dr. fill and the Surrey rd. fill.

"That is not an appropriate question for Mr. Pitterino," Weinstein said.

Chehames is not responsible for polluted fill being dumped on his property, since he did not solicit the material or post signs asking for fill, according to Weinstein.

Health officials first learned about suspicious fill on Surrey rd. after Town Manager Thomas Groux reported that while he was driving through the area, he saw 10 piles of gray fill sitting at 81 Surrey rd.

The fill was later bulldozed flat by Chehames after neighbors complained that the piles of clay were ugly, Weinstein said.

The Board of Health voted to send out samples of the fill for a chemical analysis on Aug. 16. The test was conducted by Energy Resources Co. Inc. (ERCO) of Cambridge, the same firm that tested the Amberwood fill. The recent tests cost the town $400.

On Aug. 31, ERCO took samples to test for several indicator chemicals including benzo(a)pyrene, a known carcinogen, and naphthalene. Test results released last Thursday showed the fill contained pollutants. Those chemicals were also found in the Amberwood dr. fill.

"Some of the chemical values in the Surrey rd. fill were in higher concentrations than the ones in the Amberwood fill," Weinstein said.

The substances found in the fill can cause health hazards in certain quantities when dust is blown into the air according to reports issued by the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Cong. Markey Announces Coast Guard Applications Available

Congressman Edward J. Markey announces that the United States Coast Guard Academy is accepting applications from men and women for appointments as Coast Guard cadets for the class of 1987.

Applications for appointment must be submitted to the Director of Admissions, U.S. Coast Guard Academy, prior to Dec. 15. Candidates must arrange to participate in either the College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or American College Testing Assessment (ACT) on or before the Dec. 11 administration for the ACT and the Dec. administration for the SAT.

The cadet competition is based on the candidate's high school rank, performance on either the SAT or ACT, and leadership potential as demonstrated by participation in high school. Extracurricular activities, community affairs and-or part-time employment.

Appointments as Coast Guard Cadets are tendered solely on the basis of an annual nationwide competition with no congressional appointments or geographical quotas. To qualify for the competition, an applicant must be unmarried at the time of appointment, have no legal obligations resulting from a prior marriage, and must have reached the age of 17 but not 22 by July 1983.

Applications can be obtained by writing Lt. Burton Carr, U.S. Coast Guard Academy, Admissions Office, New Camden, Conn., 06320. The constantly updated Academy curriculum leads to a Bachelor of Science degree with a strong academic emphasis on engineering and science. Graduates are commissioned as ensigns in the United States Coast Guard. Selected officers may pursue further post graduate education and specialized training at many leading civilian and military graduate or professional schools.

Under the Department of Transportation, The Coast Guard establishes and coordinates search and rescue operations by ship and plane, maintains advanced electronic and other aids to navigation scattered around the globe, operates the icebreakers which clear the way for all polar expeditions, and enforces marine law and all aspects of merchant marine safety. In addition, the Coast Guard has responsibility for boating and marine environmental protection.

Tufts Welcomes Blood Donors
